NEW DEAL COST TO U. S. $12,891 EVERY MINUTE

$2 Spent for Each $1 Taken In.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—New Dealers have spent tax money, and money which will ultimately come from taxpayer pockets, at the rate of $12,891 every minute thus far in the 1934-'35 fiscal year, the treasury disclosed today.

While the Roosevelt administration was pouring out $12,891 every minute of the last eight months, it was collecting only a little more than half that sum—$6,464 a minute. The spending figure is not based on the NRA 40 hour week but includes every minute of every day and night, including Sundays and holidays, in the period.

U. S. Rushing Into Debt.

The government is running into debt at the rates of $6,427 a minute. Stripped of its maze of figures the treasury report for the first two-thirds of the fiscal year shows that the government is spending approximately $2 for every dollar it takes in. The 1934-'35 bookkeeping began last July 1 and will close next June 30.

The report gives the total receipts during the eight months' period at $2,262,612,132, and the total expenditures at $4,511,935,367. The excess of expenditures was given at $2,249,323,235.

The New Deal emergency expenditures through the fifty alphabetical units accounted for almost every dollar of the deficit. These totaled $2,326,473,822.

776 Million for PWA.

The bulk of the New Dealers' emergency expenditures was in their pets, the Public Works administration and the Federal Emergency Relief administration. The PWA spent 776 million and the FERA 665 million, according to the treasury report.

These two units, with the CCC division, spent more than half the emergency total. The CCC share was 262 million.

None of the regular branches of government was able to compete with the New Deal agencies in spending. The highest expenditure listed by the treasury in routine bureaus was 370 million for the veterans' administration. Second was army and navy expenditures, totaling $365,000,000.

Interest on the ever mounting public debt has eaten up 470 million dollars thus far in the fiscal year. This is one of the major drains on the treasury. Interest on the debt has cost more than the running expenses of such old line bureaus as the state, justice, interior, and labor departments.

Nine Items Get 90 Per Cent.

Nine items of the scores listed in the treasury department accounted for approximately 90 per cent of the total of four and one-half billion thus far expended. These items are PWA, 776 million; relief, 665 million; AAA, 494 million; veterans, 370 million; army and navy, 365 million; debt interest, 470 million; departments, 246 million; CCC, 262 million, and RFC, 324 million. The nine units spent more than 3 billion 965 million dollars.

The statement gave the public debt to date, less a balance of 2 billion dollars in the general fund, $26,455,350,211. A year ago it was $21,150,606,665 and on Dec. 31, 1930, the date of the lowest post-war debt, it was $15,719,283,767.

SILENT ON WORKS PLANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—Administration leaders maintained a strict silence today on any strategy being prepared for another attempt to push the 4 billion 800 million dollar "works relief" program through the senate.

No statement came from Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], majority leader of the senate, and it is expected that he will try to have the required number of votes in his pocket before trying another tilt on the senate floor. The deadlock on the McCarran prevailing wage amendment, passage of which upset administration plans, is still in effect.

Meanwhile the federal emergency relief administration alloted $56,500,000 to meet the requests of the states until March 15. The money came from an advance of 80 million dollars from the PWA.

Illinois Allotment Withheld.

Allotments were withheld, at least temporarily, from 12 states and Hawaii, some of which have failed to meet the requirement of Relief Administrator Hopkins that they share in the burden of caring for the unemployed. The states include Illinois, Arkansas, Georgia, Idaho, Minnesota, New Mexico, New York, North Da-

AFTER 3 YEARS BULK OF LINDY RANSOM SOUGHT

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

New York, March 2.—(AP)—The ransom phase of the Lindbergh case remains tonight, three years and a day after the actual kidnaping of the child, only "two-fifths solved."

Of the $50,000 paid by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to a ransom collector in a Bronx cemetery April 2, 1932, only $19,715 has been accounted for.

Somewhere—either in a hidden place, in actual circulation still, or perhaps destroyed by the treasury department—there is $30,285 of the currency which Dr. John F. Condon, the Lindbergh intermediary, handed over to the ransom collector.

Where is it?

What Happened to Money.

Lindbergh ransom	$50,000
Still missing	$30,285
Hauptmann had	14,600
Hauptmann admitted having spent [about]	100
"J. J. Faulkner" exchanged [May 1, 1933]	2,990
Exchanged at Manufacturers' Trust company [April 28, 1933]	500
Exchanged at Chemical National bank [April 26, 1933]	500
Appeared outside New York City [about]	80
	$50,000

Some Believe It's Hidden.

Some authorities who have been active in the investigation of the crime of the Sourland hills believe Bruno Richard Hauptmann, under death sentence for the murder, has the money in a hidden place.

Others believe Hauptmann succeeded—despite the fact that the numbers on each bill were listed and known to all banking houses—in putting it into circulation.

In prosecuting Hauptmann, New Jersey's attorney general, David T. Wilentz, contended that Hauptmann, and Hauptmann alone, kidnaped the baby, and collected and spent the ransom.

State's Theory on Ransom.

He said Hauptmann disposed of $49,986 of the money as follows:

In brokerage accounts	$16,942.75
In savings accounts	9,073.25
For one mortgage	3,750.00
Gold coins found in home	120.00
Ransom money in Hauptmann's garage	14,600.00
Advance to Isador Fisch for furs	5,500.00
Total	$49,986.00

This accounts for sums of money traceable to Hauptmann, but does not, except by implication, attempt to account for the actual currency in the ransom bundle.

One official of the federal reserve bank used tonight the word "impossible" as regards a theory that the ransom bills could have been passed through the banks unrecognized to be finally destroyed or stored in the old money vaults of the United States treasury department.

Believes Some Destroyed.

The internal revenue department, on the other hand, holds that much if not all of the $30,285 which is still unaccounted for must have passed through the federal reserve banks and been finally destroyed.

"Either this," observed Hugh MacQuillan, special agent in charge of the New York division of the internal revenue department, "or else the bills are still in circulation.

"There are probably quite a few of the bills still being used or stored away by the public, but a large part of it must have slipped through the banks into the treasury department."

An official of the federal reserve bank in New York, who has worked on identification of the Lindbergh ransom money, said that either of these possibilities would be "out of the question."

Sees One Possibility.

"There is one possibility of the money getting past us," he said, "and that is very remote.

"During the two weeks following the payment of the ransom, things were in such a mess, what with checking the numbers serially and arranging pamphlets publishing the numbers, money might have got by us.

"But following that period not a single bill could have gone through the Federal Reserve bank in New York, and, according to what other banks report, equal vigilance was exercised elsewhere."

He said that even during the huge turnover occasioned by the President's gold order in May, 1933, it "would have been impossible for one of the

17 Hitlerites Condemned to Die in Austria

SALZBURG, Austria, March 2.—(AP)—Seventeen of twenty Austrian Nazis on trial were condemned to death today when convicted of violating the stringent decree against possession of explosives.

An appeal will be taken. In court circles it was regarded as unlikely that the stern penalty would be imposed. Lawyers pointed out that in recent months there have been numerous death penalties in the persistent drive to uproot Hitlerism but that President Miklas invariably commuted the sentences.

One defendant was freed while the other two in the mass trial were sentenced to from one to ten years in jail.

They were accused of smuggling explosives into Austria from Bavaria shortly before the Nazi putsch last July.

Rintelen Pleads Not Guilty.

VIENNA, March 2.—(AP)—Wrappings of mystery which for seven months have clung to the Nazi putsch of last July remained almost intact tonight at the close of the first day's testimony in the trial of "King Anton" Rintelen, the Nazis' alleged choice for chancellor.

Rintelen, former minister to Rome, pleaded not guilty to the charge of complicity in the Nazi uprisings. He testified several hours, but said little to throw new light on the powers behind the putsch, which cost the life of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss.

Eventually psychiatrists told the court Rintelen, who has been in prison for months, was unable to remember clearly the events of last summer and that he was in no condition to testify further. Court then adjourned to Monday.

Admits Being Known As "King."

"King Anton" testified he received his nickname from his vigorous suppression of communist disorders in the province of Styria shortly after the war. Communists captured him during a political mass meeting, and tossed him out of a window, seriously injuring him.

He denied there was enmity between him and Dollfuss and denied knowledge of preparations for the July putsch.

His first remark when he heard that the Nazis, from their captured radio station, were broadcasting reports of Dollfuss' resignation and his accession to the chancellory was, he testified: "How ridiculous!"

Previously the prosecuting attorney had cited Rintelen as an extraordinarily clever and cautious intriguer, charging he fell victim to his own excessive caution because "he hesitated until he was lost."

"The fact that he is a Catholic and nevertheless attempted suicide while under arrest showed he was acutely conscious of his guilt," he added.

Policeman who discovered him took him to the Waukegan station and charged him with driving while intoxicated.

Fear Holmes Near Death; Strength Ebbs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—Fear for the life of Oliver Wendell Holmes, distinguished former justice of the United States Supreme court, was expressed late tonight by the three specialists attending him.

After issuing earlier in the evening a bulletin which said the 93 year old former jurist was "a little weaker than yesterday," Dr. Thomas A. Clayton at 10:50 p. m. reported that his condition was "unchanged."

Mr. Holmes still was under an oxygen tent, Dr. Clayton said upon leaving for the night after a fifteen minute call upon his patient.

Physicians Are Worried.

The earlier bulletin, issued by Dr. Clayton and the first made since the former justice became ill, said:

"After a consultation with Dr. W. T. Longcope and Dr. Lewis C. Ecker, we find the justice a little weaker than he was yesterday. In view of his advanced age, this is a disturbing condition."

The doctors spent approximately an hour at the consultation.

About an hour after the three doctors departed, four tanks of oxygen were carried into Mr. Holmes' house. It was learned then that the former justice is being kept under an oxygen tent almost constantly and that he is absorbing approximately one tank of oxygen every 12 hours.

Patient Light Hearted.

Until he became weaker, Mr. Holmes maintained a light hearted attitude, characterizing as a "lot of damn foolery" the precautionary methods ordered by his doctors. At breakfast and luncheon today he joked with nurses and physicians. He became ill of pneumonia early this week.

Death has interested the legal philosopher for many years. Friends said his attitude in his illness is patterned after one of such expressions, "If God should tell me I had only five minutes to live, I would tell him, 'I'm sorry you can't make it ten.'"

Close friends were permitted to call earlier today at the modest brick residence at 1720 I street. In the afternoon they were permitted to peek into the sick room at the insistence of the justice, physicians forbade any conversation. Each visitor was greeted by Mr. Holmes with a smile.

3 Cream Puff Robbers Admit Killing Woman

A 17 year old desperado whose twin ambitions were to "be like John Dillinger" and to eat his fill of pies and cream puffs confessed yesterday that on Jan. 31 he shot and killed Mrs. Anna Marie Schmitt, 36 years old, during a holdup of her husband's bakery at 7745 South Halsted street.

The admitted killer, Joseph Zvirblis, 2016 Canalport avenue, and two companions who were with him in the robbery went to the bakery and willingly reënacted the crime. The others are Peter Sinkus, 20 years old, 1816 Ruble street, who stands 6 feet 5 inches tall, and Raymond Halverson, 15 years old, 727 West 21st street.

Two Major Incidents.

During the reënactment Frank Schmitt, husband of the slain woman, seized a pistol with the intention of shooting the youths, but was disarmed by Sergt. Edward Hennig of the Maxwell street police. The police also had to protect the trio from a crowd of a hundred or more residents of the neighborhood who gathered outside and made threats to handle them roughly.

Young Halverson said that he went into the place by himself and purchased a dime's worth of cream puffs. Besides Mrs. Schmitt, there was one other person present, Jerry Dowd, 7832 Emerald avenue, who had stopped to obtain change for a dollar.

The Holdup Begins.

As Mrs. Schmitt turned to Dowd, Raymond walked over to the door, munching one of the puffs, and switched off the lights. At that moment Zvirblis and Sinkus, carrying pistols, walked in. They commanded the baker's wife to lie on the floor. The order was obeyed.

Schmitt, who was dozing behind the partition, was heard moving about. The robbers said this alarmed them. Mrs. Schmitt, apparently fearing that her husband would come out and be shot, got to her feet and started, screaming, to the rear door.

"I shot twice," declared Zvirblis. "I didn't want to hit her and my aim was high. But she fell. I don't understand how she was killed."

Killed by Half Bullet.

Investigators have established the fact that one of the bullets struck a steel refrigerator door and split. It was a fragment of this bullet that struck Mrs. Schmitt in the head and caused death.

After the shooting Sinkus took $10 from the cash register. This, with $1 in small change taken from Dowd and two pies, which the bandits ate on their way to their homes on the west side, was the total loot.

Throughout the recital Zvirblis, who claimed to be the leader of the gang, maintained a nonchalant attitude. Each of the three corroborated the statements of the other two. Although Dowd, taken to view them at the Maxwell street station, was unable to identify them, stating that it was too dark in the store, the three all said he was the man they had robbed.

Fireman Seizes Key to Mystery.

The capture of the killer and his friends was in the nature of an accident. Fireman Peter Sperling of Engine company No. 25, saw the tall Sinkus robbing a pedestrian, ran to the latter's assistance and overpowered the youth. At the Maxwell street station Sinkus named Zvirblis and Halverson as his companions in other robberies and Halverson, seized at home, first told of the Schmitt killing.

POLICEMEN FACE DROUTH; TAVERN VISITING BARRED

It promises to be a long and dry season for the Chicago police department, according to General Order No. 695, issued yesterday by Police Commissioner James P. Allman. The order forbids any policeman to enter "any place where intoxicating drinks are sold" while on duty, except "in the immediate discharge of duty."

ATHENS, March 3 (Sunday).—Determined to crush swiftly the rebellious forces in the navy who seek to restore to power former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, the government today ordered mobilized the 1932 and 1933 military reserve classes.

BULLETIN.

ATHENS, March 2.—(AP)—Former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, "Grand Old Man" of Greek politics, threw his strength behind a swiftly executed revolt tonight as darkness brought a halt to a running battle between five rebel warships and the loyal air force.

Venizelos, who has been living in retirement in his native Crete since his unsuccessful attempt to defeat Premier P. Tsaldaris at the polls, declared himself in support of the rebels in a violent anti-government speech at Crete.

The five bomb scarred warships were steaming down the Aegean tonight toward that island, presumably to pick up Venizelos.

[United Press dispatches said the rebel fleet was composed of eight warships and four submarines. These dispatches reported that one of the submarines returned to Piraeus, port of Athens, early this morning and surrendered. The government was said to have sunk two merchant ships at the entrance to Saloniki harbor, bottling it up.]

Troops Pour Into Athens.

A government demand for surrender climaxed the day of fighting by sea and air. Tsaldaris warned that unless the rebels capitulated they would be subjected to another bombardment tomorrow.

Three bombing planes were prepared for a takeoff at dawn armed with 200 pound bombs. Fortresses at Crete were ordered to open fire on the warships if they showed up there.

Three changes in the cabinet were announced following the resignation of the minister of the navy, Alexander Hajikyriakos, who was succeeded by Admiral Sophocles Douzmanis. Premier Tsaldaris took over the foreign portfolio and Pierre Metaxas was appointed minister without portfolio. Minister of War George Kondylis is in charge of the loyal troops. Government forces were poured into Athens, and Greece was under martial law.

The possibility of revolt in Crete, despite the apparent failure of the uprising last night in the Athens area, caused alarm in government quarters.

No Estimate of Casualties.

A request for time to consider an offer of mediation was the last word from the rebel warships. There was no estimate of the dead and wounded.

The commander of the airplanes which attacked the fleet at sea issued a report claiming that two direct hits were made on the cruiser Averoff and that a destroyer apparently was disabled and was being towed.

Dispatches from Spain indicated that Prince Eugene Lascaris, pretender to the Greek throne, had known a revolt was brewing and had been in touch with the rebel elements since yesterday. Spain has been Prince Eugene's home since his father, the late imperial Prince Manuel, chose this country as his place of exile. He has become a naturalized Spaniard, uses the name of Don Eugenio Lascorz Labastida, and says he likes to think of himself as a Spaniard rather than a Greek.

Premier Tsaldaris telegraphed a direct appeal to Venizelos to keep clear of the revolutionaries. He wired his hope that the liberal leader "will not sympathize with the crazy attempt of a few officers."

Cruiser Partially Disabled.

The rebel fleet, which fled from the Athens harbor after government forces had recaptured Salamis arsenal, was reported this evening off the Island of Milo, east of the extreme southernmost point of Greece.

In this vicinity the government planes had caught up with them a second time, dropping a rain of bombs without apparent effect. Previous artillery fire from four pursuing destroyers and aerial bombings had made two direct hits on the cruiser Averoff. Despite two direct hits, the cruiser was making 15 knots, accompanied by the cruiser Helli and three destroyers.

Following the offer of mediation made by Admiral Tipaldos, the rebels requested a respite. They wired that the Averoff, carrying 600 men, had been gravely damaged.

Athens under its martial law was quiet. Strict censorship was imposed upon outgoing telegraphic messages, and opposition newspapers were suppressed.

The government in an official statement blamed the sudden revolutionary movement upon supporters of Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, dictator for a day during a revolt in 1933. Plastiras is now at Cannes, France.

Later advices, however, indicated that the government was placing intense pressure on its attempts to find out the exact connection, if any, of Venizelos with the revolutionaries. The trial of 18 persons charged with attacking and injuring Venizelos last summer and gravely wounding his wife was temporarily postponed.

Two former admirals in the Greek navy, named Demestichas and Kollialexi, were reported in command of the rebel craft. They had high records in the naval service but were subsequently expelled for participation in previous anti-government plots.

Papanastasio Is Detained.

Former Prime Minister Papanastasio, labor party leader, was stopped while leaving for Saloniki and held at his home in Athens. Inquiries at Saloniki revealed that reports of rebel cooperation there were not substantiated.

Many arrests were made among alleged followers of Venizelos in Athens, and hasty trial under court-martial, beginning possibly on Monday, was urged for them. Former Gen. Papoulas, whose democratic defense organization was alleged to be implicated in the revolt, was reported to have vanished.

The plot broke with startling suddenness at 6 p. m. yesterday in Athens. It was first discovered in the Salamis arsenal, where fifteen former officers, who followed Gen. Plastiras in his one day dictatorship in 1933, started a swift series of events by persuading the picturesque kilted Evzones [select members of light infantry] to revolt. After an ultimatum loyal troops shelled the barracks and the rebels yielded early this morning.

Rebels Raid Military College.

Meanwhile 100 civilians and twelve military rebels broke into the military college, held up the commandant at the point of a revolver, and locked him in his office. They were trying to persuade the cadets to join the revolt when government troops charged into the college and cleared the rebels out without casualties.

A similar surprise was staged at the Perama arsenal by twenty-five rebels and officers under Admiral Demestichas. They sent a launch to the warship Averoff and loyal officers aboard were lured from their posts.

The rebels then boarded the Averoff and officers who resisted were put in irons. Mutineers gained command elsewhere of four destroyers and three submarines. The submarines were put out of commission and left behind.

Government artillery rushed to Perama early today and two batteries started firing on the rebel ships. The fire was ineffective because of the distance but the guns of the cruiser, turned on the town, did considerable damage to houses.

DOCTOR KIDNAPED BY FUGITIVE TRIO FREED UNHARMED

Clinton, Okla., March 2.—(AP)—Dr. Fred Lewis Myers, who was kidnaped by three fugitive Granite reformatory convicts, was released unharmed at Cottonwood in Major county early tonight.

Dr. Myers called the sherif's office here to say that he was safe.

The three fugitives vanished in the rugged timberland of Western Oklahoma today with the doctor as hostage after playing a grim game of hide-and-seek with hundreds of possemen, guided by an airplane.

G. H. Simpson, sherif of Custer county, said the desperadoes were identified definitly as Dale Stanphill, Malloy [Red] Kuykendall, and W. L. Baker Jr., escaped inmates of Granite reformatory.

Dr. Myers, a Chiropractor of Leedey, Okla., was whisked away in his own automobile. His was the second car they had stolen during the day.

"Fill up that damn car quick. The officers are behind us and the electric chair ahead of us," one of the trio shouted as they came upon Ernest Walker at his home near Leedey. They deserted his car in Leedey to kidnap Dr. Myers.

NEW ACT MAKES SALE OF LIQUOR TO INDIANS LEGAL

Olympia, Wash., March 2.—[Special.]—Sales of "firewater" to Indians, prohibited from time immemorial, became legal today, when Gov. Martin signed a measure passed by the Washington state legislature repealing a specific statute enacted in 1909.

By some quirk in the legislative idea of justice, sponsors of the repeal measure made a last minute fight to insert an emergency clause, making the law effective immediately upon signature by the governor.

"Indians have been deprived of liquor for more than 300 years," sponsors of the emergency provision argued. The amendment carried.

Representative Adams, who introduced the original bill, is an Indian. When the bill carried, he bought cigars for the legislature and the no-smoking rule was suspended.

Greek airplanes loyal to the government of Premier Tsaldaris yesterday bombarded warships in the hands of rebels near the island of Milo. The rebels are headed for Crete, where former Premier Venizelos has thrown his influence in favor of the revolt. The Greek government this morning called out military reserves to combat the uprising. The country is under martial law.

CHURCH OFFICIAL FLAYS MEXICO IN RELIGIOUS ROW

Says Priests Jailed Without Cause.

MEXICO CITY, March 2.—(AP)—Msgr. José M. Gonzalez, archbishop of Durango, publicly took issue today with official statements denying that there is religious persecution in Mexico. He charged that in his state there had been "innumerable outrages."

Over his signature the archbishop set forth:

"We lament, we protest. Almost all my priests have at one time or another been jailed without cause. Those priests who with our authorization registered in accordance with the regulations have been expelled from the state.

Temples Are Closed.

"Almost all our temples have been closed, leaving immense regions and populations unable to comply with their religious obligations. The seminary has been closed, and an auxiliary force of professors and students jailed.

"A few days ago several priests were taken to military headquarters and held without judicial proceedings. It is impossible to describe in detail the persecutions to which Catholics in Durango have been subjected."

One person was killed and fourteen were shot or injured by missils tonight in a clash between communists and members of the gold shirted A. R. M. [Mexican Revolutionary Action] organization. The Gold Shirts attacked and broke up a meeting of some 1,000 communists, held to observe the opening of new headquarters of the Mexican communist party.

The Gold Shirts, one of whose announced objects is to "drive the Jews out of Mexico," had not appeared in public for many months until tonight.

Nine Revolt Suspects Freed.

TAMPICO, Mexico, March 2.—(AP)—Nine men held in connection with a revolutionary plot against the government were freed today by orders of President Lazaro Cardenas.

The president was informed by the military commander of Tampico that the men were charged with revolutionary activities and that the authorities had gathered enough evidence to convict them.

After hearing the case President Cardenas asked the district attorney to withdraw the charges.

POUND AND HALF BABY TREBLES IN SIZE; GOES HOME

Mrs. Julius Volk, 1122 Hyde Park boulevard, was permitted to hold her baby boy in her arms yesterday for the first time since his premature birth 15 weeks ago. The baby, Martin, was taken home from the Passavant hospital.

At the time of his birth, Nov. 20, Martin, who was a six months' baby, weighed but one pound 10½ ounces. Pronounced an unusually healthy baby after life in an incubator, he tipped the scales yesterday at 5 pounds 12 ounces. He was graduated to a crib three weeks ago by his physician, Dr. James H. Bloomfield.

"I couldn't sleep a wink last night," Mrs. Volk told Mabel B. Fennie, supervising nurse of the obstetrical department of the hospital and her assistants as they dressed the baby in the layette the mother brought. "I was up at 5 o'clock. I thought the time would never come when I could hold my baby and not just look at him through a glass partition."

During January and February 238,356 passenger automobiles were licensed by the city. During the whole of last year 365,585 passenger automobiles were licensed and receipts from all classes of vehicle taxes totaled $4,692,095.

Strikers Urge Mexico to Expel 2 Standard Oil Men

TAMPICO, Mexico, March 2.—(AP)—Expulsion as "pernicious foreigners" of two high officials of the Huasteca [Standard Oil of New Jersey] Petroleum company was requested in a petition presented today to President Lazaro Cardenas by striking employés of the company's refinery here. The petition for application of article 33 of the constitution against L. L. Anderson, general manager of the company with headquarters in Mexico City, and Patrick J. Kelly, superintendent of the refinery, was based on charges they had employed strike breakers and formed "white guard" or company union organizations.

Britain Pardons Mother, 62, Who Killed Imbecile Son

MANCHESTER, England, March 2.—(AP)—British justice was tempered with mercy today and frail, ailing Mrs. May Brownhill, who put her imbecile son, Denis, "to sleep" with 100 sedative tablets and gas returned home to her 70 year old husband.

The home office, in response to nation-wide sentiment that developed after her conviction of murder, not only saved her from the gallows, but took her from behind prison bars.

In Jail 13 Weeks.

Thirteen weeks ago the 62 year old woman, whose hair turned from grey to white in prison, heard the black capped judge of the court at Leeds sentence her to be hanged for the "mercy murder" of her son, whom she had nursed 30 years.

Two days later the home secretary's office, moved by the jury's recommendation for mercy and the thousands of appeals arriving from all over Britain, assured her of a reprieve.

Today she left prison, where she spent most of her time in the hospital ward, to be borne swiftly in an automobile to a reunion with her husband and sister. Soon she will undergo an operation. After that, when she is well, she hopes to go away for a holiday.

"I think that won't be for a long time, though," she said.

"Arrest Law," Attorney Asks.

At her trial, Mrs. Brownhill testified that she put "Denis to sleep" out of mercy. She knew she must undergo an operation, she said, and she did not believe she would get well. And she did not want Denis to be unattended.

Norman Birkett, one of Britain's ablest lawyers, represented her at her trial, and pleaded with the jury to "arrest the law a little, do a little wrong in order to do a greater good."

George Lansbury, veteran labor leader in the house of commons, headed a movement to save her from the gallows.

VERDICT REACHED AFTER DEADLOCK IN KELLOGG SUIT

Finding Sealed; Ballots Swing to Plaintiff.

After more than eight hours of deliberation a jury in the court of Circuit Judge Craig Van Meter reached a verdict last night in the trial of Mrs. Florence Kellogg's $50,000 suit, charging alienation of affections against Mrs. Ruth Ritze Kellogg. In pursuance of an order of Judge Van Meter, who came here from Mattoon to sit temporarily on the local bench, the verdict was sealed and will be read at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

There were rumors around the court that four ballots were taken by the jurymen and that the first was 6 to 6. The second, according to rumor, was 8 to 6 in favor of a verdict for Mrs. Florence Kellogg, and the third 11 to 1 in her favor.

Jury Is Dismissed.

The jury, after turning over their written decision to the court bailif, was dismissed for the night at 8:25 o'clock.

In the suit it was charged that Mrs. Ruth Kellogg stole the love of George M. Kellogg Jr., attorney for the International Harvester company, while he was still married to Mrs. Florence Kellogg.

The latter obtained a divorce in May, 1933, and about a week after Mr. Kellogg married the then Mrs. Ritze.

The jurors had heard Attorney Melville Mucklestone beg them to "uphold the stability of the American home" by awarding Mrs. Florence Kellogg, 7529 Kingston avenue, enough money to live on comfortably the rest of her life. They also had listened to a denunciation of all such heart balm suits, as Attorney Royal W. Irwin urged them to consider the right to happiness of his client, the present Mrs. Kellogg, and her husband.

Women Exchange Glares.

While the jury listened to the closing arguments the two Mrs. Kelloggs sat on opposite sides of the courtroom and glared at each other. Mrs. Florence Kellogg, a former president of the Illinois department of the American Legion auxiliary, was accompanied to court by her daughter by a previous marriage, Mary Jane, 19 years old, who testified at the Friday session.

Mrs. Ruth Kellogg sat with her handsome husband. He is 48 years old and she is 40. Mrs. Florence Kellogg is 48. The women are Kellogg's second and third wives, respectively. The first Mrs. Kellogg got a divorce at Sioux City, Ia., in 1916, soon after her husband came to Chicago. She has not figured in the case.

"You have not alternative but to return damages in this case," asserted Attorney Muckelstone, opening his final plea to the jury. "The theft of a husband's affections does not occur in the light of day, but under the cover of darkness on hidden byways. That is why circumstantial evidence is the only proof available.

Tells of Hiring Detectives.

"My client had no opportunity to detect her husband and this other woman in their clandestine meetings, so she hired detectives, when she felt her house tumbling down about her. When the sanctity of the family fell apart and loose morals crept in, Rome fell. The sanctity of the American home must be preserved."

In reply, Attorney Irwin assailed all alienation of affections suits. He charged they are brought for only one purpose—spitework.

"The fact that such people can come into a court and clutter up the docket with this kind of a case is disgraceful," the lawyer declared. "It only attempts to destroy the character of an innocent person. Just spitework, that's all. A case of this kind never should have seen the light of day."

Case Amuses Jurors.

When the jurors retired at 11:40 a. m. they appeared at first to consider the whole case a joke. Loud laughter was heard from the room, as they ate their lunch, but it gradually subsided as the twelve men began considering the evidence.

One juror was heard to remark: "A man doesn't leave a woman except for another woman." This brought a comment from another juror: "If the second Mrs. K. could bring alienation action against the third Mrs. K., then the first Mrs. K. could have done the same against the second Mrs. K."

The defendant is the divorced wife of Dr. John A. Ritze, head of a sanitarium. She and Kellogg live at 6237 St. Lawrence avenue.

POLICE QUIZ SUSPECT WHO CARRIED PHOTOS OF DU PONT HEIRESS

Philadelphia, Pa., March 2.—(AP)—A man, held on an extortion charge, was questioned tonight by police for carrying a newspaper photograph of Miss Ethel du Pont, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene du Pont of Wilmington, Del.

He was held in $5,000 bail. The suspect, who identified himself as Joseph Digiovanni, 23, of Philadelphia, told Magistrate Edward Roberts he "just clipped the photograph from a newspaper."

He was arrested last night and accused of being a member of a band operating in subway entrances and mid-city buildings for several weeks.

William Eichel identified Digiovanni at the hearings as a man who took $35 and two rings from him.

Police said a ring and a fake detective badge were found in the prisoner's possession.

WOMAN RELIEF WORKER BEATEN; 2 CLIENTS HELD

Roy Cloutier, 44 years old, 638 East 89th street, and his wife, Queen, 44 years old, were arrested on disorderly conduct charges yesterday after the woman had beaten Miss Beatrice Meany, case worker for the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, at the Roseland district station at 50 East 109th street. Miss Meany was interviewing the couple in a first floor office, when Mrs. Cloutier assaulted her. She was cut and bruised about the face before Policeman Charles McMorman, on duty at the station, intervened.

ROBBER SLAIN BY COLORED PASTOR; WIFE IS WOUNDED

The Rev. Washington Wainwright, 48 years old, colored Baptist pastor, last night shot and killed one of two colored robbers who entered his parsonage at 3311 East 91st street and seriously wounded Mrs. Wainwright.

According to the story told to the police by the minister, the two men knocked at the front door. Mrs. Wainwright answered and immediately was told: "This is a stickup." She screamed and the men fired, a bullet striking her in the right side of the chest. The pastor then seized his own pistol, followed the men outside and fired. One of the robbers fell dead. He was identified by his finger prints as Charles Thomas, 25 year olds, 2744 Cottage Grove avenue. Mrs. Wainwright was taken to the South Chicago hospital in a critical condition.

ABANDON THEORY OF ACCIDENT IN HEIRESS' DEATH

Solicitor Says It Was Murder or Suicide.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 2.—[Special.]—The theory of death by accident in the case of Mrs. H. Bradley Davidson Jr., Statler heiress who was found dead in the garage at her winter home here Wednesday morning, was abandoned today by Solicitor Roland S. Pruett.

"The facts indicate that Mrs. Davidson's death was murder or suicide," the solicitor said, "but I am not yet prepared to say which."

Family to be Quizzed.

Mr. Pruett announced that he would question members of the family Monday. He indicated he doubted the theory that Mrs. Davidson's death had been caused by carbon monoxide poisoning. Her body was found in a kneeling posture on the running board of an automobile in a closed garage.

Mrs. Davidson, one of the heirs to the fortune of the late E. M. Statler, hotel operator, was a bride of less than eight weeks. Attorneys for Mrs. M. H. Statler, her sister-in-law, and Ellsworth Statler, her brother, in whose estates Mrs. Davidson had income shares, said today that Mrs. Davidson recently had drawn a will leaving $555,000 to her husband. No will has been filed for probate.

Question Use of Bed.

One of the questions which Mr. Pruett said he would seek to have answered is whether Mrs. Davidson slept in her bed Wednesday morning after coming home from the party.

Of chief interest at Tuesday's inquest will be the report of Dr. C. C. Carpenter of the Wake Forest Medical school, who conducted the autopsy and is making microscopic examinations. "When I examined the body first," he said, "I found a condition that probably could have resulted only from carbon monoxide poisoning. However, there may be other contributing causes."

EXPECT ELMORE TO SURRENDER TO U. S. TOMORROW

Howard W. Elmore, former president of the sanitary district and prominent real estate man, is expected to surrender tomorrow to deputy United States marshals and to post a $10,000 bond guaranteeing his appearance in federal court on an indictment charging income tax evasion.

Deputies sought Elmore yesterday armed with bench warants issued upon return of the income tax indictments Friday. He could be found neither at his home at 10650 Longwood drive nor in his office at 29 South La Salle street, and was thought to be avoiding arrest until he could complete arrangements for bail.

In Washington, Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the treasurer, denied Elmore's charge that he inspired the indictments, which accuse Elmore of evading a tax of $51,659 on his income in 1929 and 1930.

"I didn't know Elmore was being investigated," Secretary Ickes said. "In complaining that I persecuted him he flatters himself, as I never gave him a passing thought. But since he does choose to rush to the newspapers with such a ridiculous statement, I might observe that no one has ever been indicted for income tax frauds who hasn't cried 'persecution!'"

JUDGES 'MISSING,' COUNTRY JURISTS COME TO RESCUE

14 Sit in Two Courts in Regulars' Absence.

While the regular Cook county Circuit and Superior court judges here are vacationing in the south or are for various other reasons unable to take care of their usual court calendars, country judges have been called in to see that litigants in Cook county courts do not meet with unavoidable delay in the prosecution or defense of their cases. Besides the $20 a day salary allowed these visiting judges, they also receive railroad fare from their home towns.

14 Out of Town Judges Sitting.

A survey of the county building yesterday showed that there are fourteen out of town judges sitting in the Circuit and Superior courts. They are helping to clean up crowded calendars or are taking the places of six regular judges who are in the south and others who are too busy with other duties to hear their own call.

Among the "missing" judges of the Superior court, Judge Joseph Sabath is in Hot Springs, Ark., but it was explained he did not take his regular vacation last summer; Judges Marcus Kavanagh and Joseph David are in California [Judge David was busy in the Criminal court last summer]; Judge David M. Brothers is seriously ill at his home.

Absent Circuit Judges.

The "missing" Circuit court judges are: Daniel P. Trude, in Florida for one month [Judge Trude is paying the salary of his substitute]; Benjamin P. Epstein, in Hot Springs, Ark. [sat in Criminal court last summer]; John R. Caverly, "out of town."

Chief Justice Joseph Burke, who recently returned from Florida, now is assisted by a visiting judge because of his added duties as chief justice. Judge Harry M. Fisher is devoting all his time working on a revision of the criminal code.

SUSPECT IN MAIL LOOT PLOT HERE IS SEIZED IN N. Y.

Louis Wolfe, 44 years old, who was one of forty persons indicted in federal court here Friday for conspiracy to dispose of securities taken in the $237,000 mail robbery at Clark and Adams streets on Dec. 6, 1932, was arrested at his home in New York last night. Wolfe told the New York police that he had been in Chicago the day of the holdup. He denied, however, that he had anything to do with it.

Federal investigators have described John J. [Boss] McLaughlin and Wolfe as the leaders of the conspiracy. With twenty others, they were also indicted Friday for having possession of the bonds.

FIVE MENACE 30 AND ROB MOTOR AGENCY OF $1,000

Five robbers held up the automobile agency of Ben T. Wright at 1111 North Clark street yesterday and took $1,000 after firing several shots to intimidate 30 patrons and employés. Two robbers remained as lookouts and three entered the agency. They ordered Miss Jessie Middleton, 21 years old, 6104 Kenwood avenue, to leave the switchboard. Wright, the owner of the agency, saw the invasion through the glass window of his office. He was reaching for a revolver when the holdup men began firing. He was brought out and lined up with others.

Miss Virginia Strauss, the cashier, was then forced to turn over the cash drawer receipts.

"SO JOE SAYS, 'HOW MUCH?'"

FEARS CHACO WAR WILL INVOLVE ALL SO. AMERICA

Head of Chile Declares Peace Is Periled.

BY NORMAN INGREY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 2.—Fears that the larger South American countries may become divided by or involved in the Chaco war between Paraguay and Bolivia were strengthened today by sensational declarations by President Arturo Alessandri of Chile to Joaquin Blaya, Argentine writer, at the former's summer residence at Valparaiso.

Alessandri, while approving the plan for a gathering of South American presidents in principle, opposed an early conference on the ground that the leading powers are pursuing different policies regarding the Chaco conflict.

He referred to his proposed meeting with President Augustin Justo of Argentina.

Cites Three Problems.

"I refuse to participate in banquets and festivities while Chile and the Argentine still have three problems to solve between them," he said. "There is first, the Chaco; second, the Beagle channel, and third, trans-Andean communications."

The veteran Chilean statesman was quoted as saying that peace in the Chaco boreal depends on the Chilean and Argentine chancellories settling their differences.

The Beagle channel dispute between Chile and Argentina involves the sovereignty of several islands in the southern channels of Patagonia — a bitter legacy of arbitration submitted 30 years ago to King Edward VII. of Great Britain.

Trans-Andean communications involve the reopening of the railroad and reduced customs duties which Chile alleges is deferred continually because of lack of Argentine interest in a matter regarded as vital for Chile.

The president's references to Chilean-Argentine complications in the Chaco strife followed reports that the two nations are unable to see eye to eye regarding the promotion of peace. Chile is alleged to be backing Bolivia while Argentina is said to support Paraguay.

Ready to Invade Bolivia.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, March 2.—(AP)—A Paraguayan defense ministry communique tonight announced Paraguayan forces have crossed the Parapiti river to begin their long-expected invasion of Bolivia proper, after wiping out the Bolivian garrison of 300 men stationed at Tamachindy. The invading forces captured the town of Yuquy in Bolivia, the defense ministry said.

To the south, it reported, Paraguayans continued pressing at the defenses of Villa Montes, Bolivian army base, having pushed the defenders back half a mile in some places.

Urge President to Stick.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, March 2.—[U.P.]—Bolivians turned out in mass today to prove their patriotic support of President Jose Luis Tejada Sorzano, and to voice their desire that he remain in office until a victorious end of the Chaco war.

Any doubt of congress' action tomorrow on the question of the presidential succession March 5 must have been removed by the gigantic demonstration of popular approval.

Fifty thousand Bolivians filed through the streets in a pouring rain, and stood in the plaza. Although President-elect Franz Tomayo's genuine Republican party controls congress, the people's representatives are expected to extend President Tajada Sorzano's term. Tojado Sorzano assumed the presdency last November when President Daniel Salamanca resigned.

Bugs and Bullets Fell Soldiers in Jungle War; Sick and Wounded Fill Hospitals

BY GUY MURCHIE JR.

Six thousand men in drooping caps and limp brown shirts file their way along a jungle trail, brushing the thorny vines from their faces as they go. Suddenly comes the order to halt. Most of the men sit down to swat flies and doze in the sultry tropic shade. A few of them, designated as patrols, deploy into the tangled mass of creepers that is the texture of the jungle, hack their way forward with knives and hatchets. Presently the noise of the chopping is heard by other scouts somewhere beyond in the nebulous tangle. Shots ring out. Bullets come zipping through the vines. The enemy has been aroused. Quickly the men waiting on the trail are summoned. Trenches are dug and the sweating soldiers nestle close to the mossy, marshy, mushy ground, excitedly firing their rifles at every suspicious sound out of the steamy nothingness before them.

The Nations Involved.

Such are the battle tactics of the armies of Bolivia and Paraguay in the well known "hide and seek" war which has been going on for some three years for possession of el Gran Chaco in the heart of jungled South America. Bolivia and Paraguay are the only two countries in South America that have no sea coast, and naturally enough they want all the territory they can get, especially adjoining a navigable river which leads to the sea. Such a river is the Rio Paraguay, which flows along the eastern edge of the Gran Chaco, reminding one of the "great, gray green, greasy Limpopo river all set about with fever trees" which meanders similarly out of the heart of Africa.

The dispute over the Gran Chaco, a territory about the size of Illinois, dates back over a century, but only with the recent economic development of South America has the issue become hot enough to outflame the sultry heat of the jungle. In the present war Paraguay has had the advantage most of the time in being geographically nearer the scene of military operations. Her troops, supplies, and food are shipped to the front by a combination of light railway, motor truck, mule, and knapsack methods. Bolivia, on the other hand, has had to contend with a separation of a thousand miles between her forces and the main base at her capital, Sucre, far over the trackless ranges of the Andes.

Narrow Wagon Road.

Only a few hundred miles of this distance are spanned by railroad. The rest is a narrow rutted wagon road circling at first over high rocky plateaus, then down forested mountain slopes to the steamy flatness of the jungle. In winter the road is thick with powdery dust; in summer it is flooded and washed away in many places. In the early months of the war the Bolivian troops had to march hundreds of miles ankle deep in dust or mud, depending on the season, but now with their new motor trucks they can ride most of the way, getting out only occasionally to dig the vehicles out of a quicksand. The trucks come in very handy for hauling water, too, as formerly the rarity of drinkable water in the parched jungle of the winter months was one of the most serious of the many problems for man and mule.

Though the difficulties of jungle fighting, in which rapid movement is impossible and visibility almost nil, tend to make things somewhat static, plenty of bullets fly and surprise attacks are easy. Most of the engagements are at close range and result in heavy casualties. The emergency hospitals are crowded with wounded and sick most of the time, while suffering is greatly increased by the heat, swarms of flies, and the shortage of water.

Only about one out of seven inhabitants of Bolivia is white, the majority being full blooded Indians, and so the great mass of Bolivian troops are at least part Indian. Being landless, illiterate, desperately poor, and long held in virtual peonage, these Indians, who were forcibly drafted to fight a war in which they have no real interest, do not help the morale of the Bolivian army. The Paraguayan troops, however, which are more predominantly white and literate, have a nationalistic spirit which the men from feudalistic Bolivia have never known.

The forces of both sides in this gruesome struggle for "Green Hell" have remained at approximately 100,000 men spread over a front several hundred miles long most of the time. But as the more able bodied men have been killed off by bug and bullet, an increasingly large proportion of boys of 15 or 16 and old men of 60 or more must take their places. Fighting Paraguay, which in the past has had her men outnumbered by women one to three at the finish of a war, bids fair to repeat the performance.

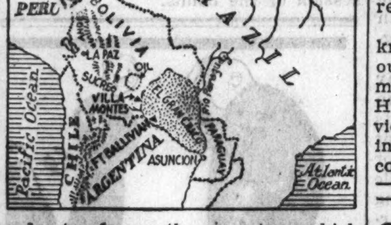
Others Are Involved.

There are others than natives of the two countries involved also. Though the officers of both armies are mostly of Spanish descent, there are among them wanderers of many nations, including Englishmen, Germans, and Americans, who hurry from war to war, seeking adventure and remuneration, like the hired mercenaries of old. The commanders of both armies are foreigners who have "availed themselves of the laws of naturalization to regularize their position." Gen. Kundt of Bolivia is probably the most famous of these. After distinguishing himself in the world war he returned from Germany to reorganize the Bolivian army. A man of "culture, charm, and strong character, knowing neither physical nor moral fear, he has succeeded by virtue of his determination and energy in molding bricks without straw."

Bolivians Driven Back.

The above quotation referring to Gen. Kundt's "success" was written some time ago. Of late Bolivia has not had what is known as success in the Gran Chaco war. The forces of little Paraguay have been driving the Bolivians back and back all fall and winter until now Paraguay has practically complete possession of the territory in question. How long Paraguay can hold her present position is another matter. Bolivia, though more of a feudal area than a nation, has a population almost four times as large as has Paraguay, and the nearer the fighting zone gets to the Bolivian base of supplies the better equipped and reinforced is the Bolivian army, while the Paraguayan soldiers have to suffer for the increasing distance which separates them from the essentials of life and war.

Another factor tending to help Bolivia and hinder Paraguay is the advice of the league of nations, which tends to favor the country which listens to reason from Geneva. Naturally Bolivia, with her back to the wall, is only too ready to submit to arbitration by the world court, while Paraguay, after three years of terrific sacrifice and victory dangling just beyond her finger tips, puts her faith in one last desperate drive up the slopes of the Andes while murmuring such righteous chants as "God's side can never fail."



To restrain noncoöperating Paraguay the league recently advised its members to clamp their arms embargo down hard on that country, while lifting it from Bolivia. Britain, France, Italy, and Sweden have agreed to do so—and so naturally Paraguay is hastening to finish the war off with victory before Bolivia begins to get her new cheap ammunition, leaving isolated Paraguay to struggle along on bootlegged bullets which would soon exhaust her treasury.

An "Extra Inning" War.

This sort of intervention from outside has been going on for years and is undoubtedly a principal reason for the duration of the contest. If you always shave the bats of the leading team and give every break to the under dogs, you shouldn't kick when extra innings prolong the ball game.

When Bolivia won the "battle of 100 hours" a year ago she was not inclined to listen to Geneva, while Paraguay was then full of ideas of conciliation in the interests of peace. Several peace agencies—a commission of neutrals including the United States, a group of South American powers [Argentina, Brazil, Chile, and Peru], the Montevideo conference, and the league of nations—have all tried to persuade the belligerents to quit. But the only one to listen was always the one on the bottom of the pile.

Only on rare occasions, and then temporarily, have both sides taken a rest at once. Being of religious temperament, one of the times these people can usually be persuaded to quit is at Christmas.

The war has seen three Christmases so far. During the first one, in 1932, the Bolivians and Paraguayans spent Christmas day tossing oranges and pieces of chocolate across the thorny barricades with yells of yuletide greeting. On the day after Christmas they returned to their bombs.

At Christmas, 1933, a longer truce of several days was observed, thanks to the Pan-American conference at Montevideo.

Last Christmas, however, in spite of the pleading of the pope, the only truce was during the Christmas eve midnight mass. At daybreak, instead of "Merry Christmas," the Paraguayans cried "Over the top!" and bullets flew far into Christmas night.

As for the recent Paraguayan advance, it is just possible that the Paraguayans may be able to push their way to victory and a favorable treaty before the outsiders can help Bolivia enough to keep the war going. In November the nationalistic Paraguayans took Bolivia's important Fort Ballivian after a clever surprise march.

Villa Montes Next?

Next concentrating on the northern sector behind which lie the rich oil deposits of Bolivia, the Paraguayan forces fought their way to the gates of Villa Montes, which Bolivia is seeking to retain at all costs. If the Paraguayan general, José Estigarribia, can drive the Bolivians back from Villa Montes the war may well be over, for it is rumored the disgruntled Bolivian Indians have had their fill of the jungle swamps. Once back in their dry highland plateaus behind Villa Montes they will revolt sooner than return to el Gran Chaco.

Not even José Estigarriibia can know when the war will end, and to outsiders it is just another jungle mystery. As Secretary of State Cordell Hull hopefully said during the Montevideo conference: "If we achieve peace in the Chaco, this will be the greatest conference of all time."

THE LID'S OFF IN RIO DE JANEIRO! 1,000,000 DANCE

Wild Four Day Carnival Grips Brazilian City.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, March 2.—(AP)—In the din and dazzle of revelry a million dancing men, women and children tonight celebrated the city's annual "Carnaval Carioca."

Unrestrained hooting and whooping filed the brightly lit Avenida Rio Branco as four days and four nights of singing and dancing were inaugurated at 8 p. m.

Army, navy and police were in readiness for authorities reckoned that four-fifths of the population of nearly 2,000,000 would hardly be home for the 96 hours during which homage is rendered to convivial King Momo, mythical monarch of this mass attack on inhibitions.

Round Up Criminals.

All week police have been rounding up habitual criminals and placing them in "protective custody," safe from the temptation offered by so many deserted homes, offices and stores. Henceforth, except for murders, criminal attacks or larceny, the authorities will pay no heed to complaints. Those held will be released on Ash Wednesday, March, 6, when the city resumes its workaday appearance.

The famous Avenida Rio Branco, from Maua square, where North American travelers debark, to the Obelisk, where the seaside drive begins, was covered ankle deep with confetti as the evening wore on. Over its lower reaches hung a fog-like layer of dust raised by the frolicking feet of uncounted thousands, moving slowly under the lights. They were watched by the occupants of raised kiosks in the center of the street, hired at $8 a day, and balconies on the side rented at $40 by owners of the buildings.

Diplomats Join Celebration.

Diplomats and servants rubbed elbows in the swaying crazy-quilt of the throng. Tonight the man in white who cleans the streets may aspire to dance with the finest lady in the crowd, for neither has to tell his or her identity.

At midnight most of these hundreds of thousands pass through illuminated gardens in view of the moonlight sea and skirting lighted, multi-colored fountains to their clubs, casinos and hotels to carry on. Some, mostly Negroes, repair to distant open ground, there to execute their rhumbas, chants and syncopated music.

PERU AUTHORIZES $2,400,000 LOAN FOR DEFENSE PURPOSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, March 2.—A defense loan of 10,000,000 sols [about $2,400,000] was authorized by the Peruvian congress in its closing session yesterday.

The loan is designed primarily to provide Peruvian warships with dock facilities because of the refusal by the Panama canal authorities to provide them during the Leticia dispute with Colombia, and to establish a national munitions factory in view of the possibility of an arms embargo by the league of nations and the great powers.

The dock contract probably will be awarded to British bidders. Machinery for the munitions factory will be purchased through a German firm.

TERRORIST DRIVE GROWS IN CUBA; HOMES BOMBED

HAVANA, March 2.—(AP)—A new alarmist campaign got under way to the roar of bombs today as Col. Carlos Mendieta, veteran of many political upheavals, held steadfastly to the presidency in the face of insistent demands that he resign.

With Col. Fulgencio Batista, army commander-in-chief, still behind him despite intimations that he himself might take the office if things came to crisis, Mendieta ignored the demands of the new opposition "common front" and 300,000 striking students and teachers that he resign.

Terrorists set fire to 40 mail boxes in Havana, destroying correspondence, and placed two bombs, one at the home of Gustavo Herrero, political writer for the newspaper El Pais, and the other at the residence of Carlos Narto, former mayor of the nearby town of Hoyo Colorado. The buildings were badly damaged.

FOUR KILLED BY TRAIN.

El Camp, Tex., March 2.—(AP)—A mother and three children were killed and a fourth child was injured dangerously today when the automobile in which they were returning home from church was demolished by a motor car passenger train five miles west of El Camp. The dead: Mrs. Frank O. Roznovsky, 34; Julia, 9; Agnes, 6; Eugene, 4.

3 STREETS MAKE HAZARDOUS SPOT FOR PEDESTRIANS

27 Hurt at City's No. 7 Death Corner.

BY HAL FOUST.

"How's a person supposed to walk across this intersection to continue in Lincoln avenue?" a reporter asked Policeman Frank J. Mironias, on duty at the intersection of Lincoln, Belmont, and Ashland avenues.

"Some cut across Belmont avenue here," he replied, pointing north from where he was standing at the most easterly property corner (see diagram). "Then you can walk north in Ashland avenue until you can turn due east for the short way through Ashland trafic or you can cut diagonally across Ashland and use the safety island to help dodge automobiles.

Or Try This Way.

"Or, if you want to continue on the other side of Lincoln, you can walk that way," he pointed due west, "and take a chance going through both the Lincoln and the Ashland trafic lanes, or you can go back to that corner," he continued, pointing southwest, "and you'll be getting across Lincoln and Ashland separately, leaving you just Belmont to be crossed."

These directions, reproduced in print, are confusing, fairly representative of the confusion in the foot and vehicular trafic that converges at this six point intersection in one of the north side's most important business districts. This confusion is responsible to a large measure for the intersection's being designated by Leslie Sorenson, engineer for the bureau of streets, as Chicago's No. 7 death corner.

27 Hurt at Corner in Year.

The twelve months' trafic toll on this corner was twenty-seven personal injuries and no deaths. There are eight intersections in Chicago with a year's record of three deaths and there is one intersection, 55th street and Cicero avenue, where four were killed, but there are only two corners with more personal injuries last year.

As the policemen talked men, women, and children were fairly well scattered over a pavement almost as big as a fotball gridiron, getting across the intersection as best they might with street car, truck, and automobile trafic directed at them from six directions. There are cross walks, but so many of them that at first glance the pedestrian movement seemed to be as helter skelter as a herd of sheep.

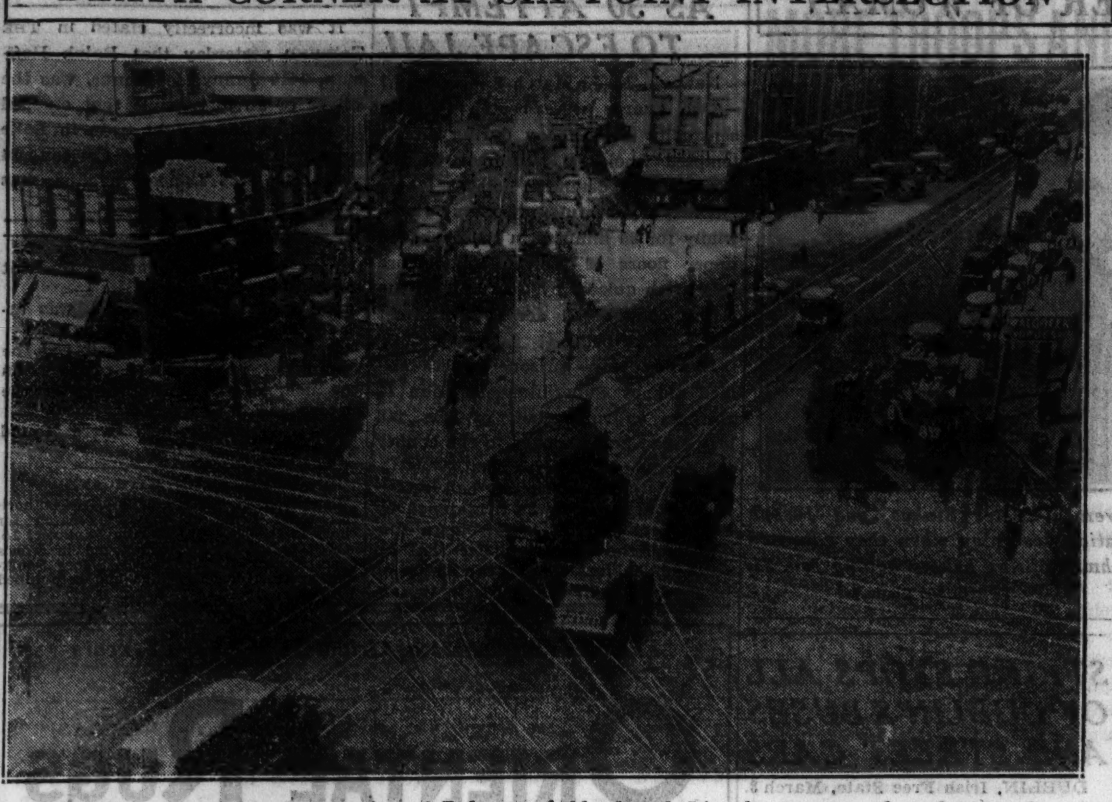
Heavy Trafic in Ashland.

Passenger car trafic was particularly heavy in Ashland avenue, a widened thoroughfare with a bad accident record ever since it was widened. Most of this trafic, en route on trips of three miles or more, is of a type that would use an elevated highway system.

It's the local residents and the street car patrons transfering at the corner who suffer most in the accidents at the intersection. Police department records show that twenty-two of the twenty-seven persons injured at the corner were pedestrians, four were motorists, and one was a bicyclist.

Following the survey the bureau of streets at the city hall was told of the tangle of cross walks at Belmont, Lincoln, and Ashland. Engineers were assigned to study a new system of pedestrian paths. Mr. Sorensen was told that the present "no left turn" signs were of low visibility. He said illuminated signs will be installed within two or three weeks.

DEATH CORNER AT SIX POINT INTERSECTION



In this view of the intersection of Belmont, Ashland and Lincoln avenues the photographer has caught pedestrians fairly well scattered over the extensive pavement. It is this condition that accounts in part for the intersection being designated as Chicago's No. 7 death corner. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Boy Playing on Lake Shore Ice Bank Slips to His Death

Robert Morris, 11 years old, 708 Cornelia avenue, was drowned yesterday afternoon when he slipped from a high bank of snow and ice along the lake shore off Cornelia avenue, and fell into the water. William Williams, 11 years old, 3429 Elaine place, one of a group of boys playing on the ice bank, fell with the Morris boy, but saved himself by clinging to the piling.

NAME WINNERS IN CONTESTS ON TRAFIC SAFETY

Winners in the trafic safety contests sponsored by Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee were announced yesterday. They will receive medals and prizes from the mayor at a final safety campaign massmeeting at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow in the Civic Opera house.

Eleanor Dintzis, 16 years old, a student at Austin High school, placed first in the high school essay contest conducted by the committee, and Eleanor Kulovitz, 13 years old, 303 West 42d street, an eighth grade student at St. George's parochial school, won the grade school contest. The essays were on trafic safety.

H. J. Walsh, 38 years old, 837 Wolfram street, won the safety song writing contest with his march "Keep Chicago Safe." Walsh, who works in a paper box factory, won among 1,500 entries. Fred Westphal, 21 years old, 6648 South Halsted street, won the radio scrip contest. In addition to these, 54 other contest winners will receive prizes.

Four Rob Coal Co. Office in Palatine; Take $200

Armed with pistols and a sawed-off shotgun, four men yesterday raided the W. R. Comfort and Sons Coal company at 52 North Brockway street, Palatine, held up five men, and robbed them of $200. The robbers fled in an automobile toward Arlington Heights. Two of the victims were customers.

STOLEN TRUCK STRIKES STREET CAR AND BURNS

Driver Expected to Die of Injuries.

A newspaper delivery truck, stolen from the loading platform at Tribune Tower last night, crashed into a street car at 51st street and Artesian avenue early today and the driver was probably fatally burned. The truck was going north at a high speed when it struck the front end of the street car, then careened against a trolley pole snapping it off.

The impact hurled the street car over on the side walk. Both the car and the truck caught fire as the gasoline tank exploded. The firemen soon extinguished the flames on the street car, but the truck was practically destroyed. The Tribune Circulation department had reported it stolen at 9:30 o'clock last night.

The driver of the truck who gave his name as Frank Rebels, 25 years old, 3240 South Morgan street, was burned from head to foot and was hurried to the South Town hospital. Fourteen passengers were on the street car, but only one of them was injured. She is Miss Mary Petus, 24 years old, 5440 South Kildare avenue. She was taken to South Town hospital.

Wedding Party in Crash.

Five members of a wedding party were injured yesterday afternoon when an automobile in which they were riding skidded on the slippery pavement at Grand and Karlov avenues and crashed into an electric light post. The injured included three bridesmaids and the best man, who were on their way to take part in the wedding of Miss Jean Sasak, 2452 North Lotus avenue, and Joseph Menajadlo, 968 Chicago avenue.

The bridesmaids injured are Miss Lottie Sasak, 17 years old, sister of the bride; Miss Marie Check, 20 years old, 825 North Paulina street, and Anna Barwacz, 14 years old, 2025 Custer street. The other two injured are Stanley Menajadlo, 24 years old, 968 Chicago avenue, the best man and brother of the groom, and Mrs. Josephine Witek, 21 years old, 1834 Augusta street. Menajadlo received a broken nose and a possible skull fracture, and the others incurred bruises.

After accompanying the injured to a nearby hospital, Joseph Menajadlo and Miss Sasak continued on to St. John Cantius church, Chicago avenue and Carpenter street, where they were married.

One death yesterday raised the Cook county trafic fatality toll for 1935 to 145. Up to 3 p. m. yesterday 117 persons had been killed so far this year within the Chicago city limits and 2,298 injured. Yesterday's victim:

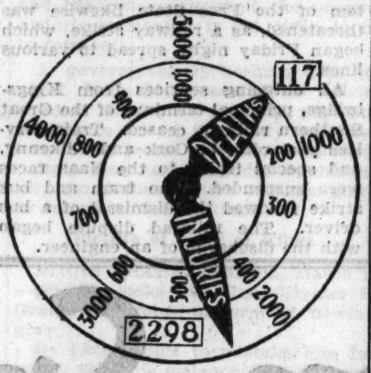
Morris Krinstein, 44 years old, 1216 South Spaulding avenue, a salesman. Killed yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a coal truck at Spaulding and Fifth avenues. John Sydnor, 744 East 47th street, colored, driver of the truck, employed by the Douglas Coal company, 3248 South Pulaski road, was questioned by the Fillmore street police. Police pointed out that an accident of this nature would have been avoided on an elevated highway.

Struck as He Stands by Auto.

James Swalwell, 25 years old, 8000 Escanaba avenue, was seriously injured yesterday morning when he was struck by an auto as he was standing beside his own automobile at 14th street and the outer drive repairing a puncture. He is an embalmer. Arthur Pauls, 21 years old, 7429 South Western avenue, is being held by the Central police.

AVOIDABLE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile accidents are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

'DE LAWD' FAILS TO MAKE SHOW FOR FIRST TIME

Colored Actor Stricken by Exhaustion.

New York, March 2.—[Special.]—Richard B. Harrison, 70 year old colored dramatic actor, who plays "De Lawd" in "The Green Pastures," was resting in the Fifth Avenue hospital tonight after suffering a collapse from fatigue in his dressing room today as he was making up for his 1,659th consecutive performance in the celebrated play.

It was the first time in more than five years of playing the part in 203 cities in 40 states that Harrison ever missed or was late for a performance. The show, however, went on with Charles Winter Wood in the famous part. Wood is Harrison's close friend and understudy, but it was his first appearance in the part before an audience. He has rehersed the rôle once a week throughout the years.

But Wood went into the play today with no joy in his heart for he was worried about the condition of his boyhood friend. He was with Harrison when the latter was stricken. "Hold me up, Charley," Harrison said when about to totter from his chair.

Heart Condition Is Good.

Harrison immediately asked that a heart specialist be summoned to his dressing room and on quick examination it was feared his heart had been affected. However, after exhaustive examination of the actor tonight, Dr. Milton J. Rainsbeck, his personal physician, declared no heart condition existed and that his patient was suffering only from exhaustion.

Dr. Rainsbeck declared it was impossible to tell when the aged actor would be able to return to the cast because he needs a "good rest." Since the return of the company to New York Harrison has had a strenuous time being interviewed by newspaper and magazine writers and greeting friends. He sat through 10 hours of interviews without halt during his first day back.

Because of the strain of traveling 40,000 miles and the fact that Harrison was eager to return to his home in Chicago where his wife and daughter are ill in a sanitarium, the run of the show in New York had been limited to three weeks.

Parents Were Slaves.

Harrison was born in 1864 in London, Ont., of former slave parents who escaped to Canada at the outbreak of the civil war. When he was 17 years old he returned to the United States and found employment in Detroit where he worked for several hotels and the Detroit club.

He became interested in dramatics and in 1891 made his first professional appearance in Shakespearean recitals in the south. Later he went to Mexico and Canada. By this time he had become a favorite on chatauqua and lyceum circuits, where his répertoire always included a number of colored dialect stories.

For some years he was employed as a dining car waiter by the Santa Fe railroad and later was employed on the private car of an executive.

Understudy Is Educator.

Wood is 69, a year younger than his friend. He was educated at Beloit college in Wisconsin where he won a master's degree. There he majored in the classics, specializing in Shakespearean work. He organized the first professional troupe of colored Shakespearean actors in the United States.

Thirty years ago, through efforts of the late Booker T. Washington, Wood became affiliated with Tuskegee institute where he was head of the English and drama departments. After Harrison was chosen for the rôle of "De Lawd" by Marc Connelly, author of the piece, he was told it would be necessary to have an understudy. When none could be found who was suitable, Harrison recommended his friend and Wood left the school to join the troupe in New York.

Hugo, Okla., March 2.—(AP)—Two colored boys were whipped publicly today after they had been found guilty in County court of throwing stones at white children in front of a school. They were General Lee Clark, 10, and Wilburn Clark, 14. County Judge Tom Hunter paroled the two to their mother and uncle and recommended the whipping. It was given by the uncle with a lether strap.

TWO DEFEATED IN COUNCIL RACE SUE FOR RUN-OFF

Official Canvass Shows 2 Contests in April.

The official proclamation of votes cast in the aldermanic election of Feb. 26 shows that runoff elections will be held on April 2 in two wards only the 6th and the 19th. Defeated candidates in two other wards, however, filed petitions yesterday with the county court asking for runoff elections.

Those seeking another chance to be elected to the city council are Ald. James C. Moreland [41st], who the proclamation shows was defeated by William J. Cowhey, and former Ald. John J. Hoellen, who was defeated according to the official canvass by Ald. Albert F. Schulz in the 47th ward.

Both petitioners assert that the board of election commissioners did not follow the election law in failing to count spoiled ballots cast in the two wards. The petitioners claim that if these spoiled ballots were included in the total vote cast the declared winners would have failed to receive a majority of all the votes, and therefore the election should go to a runoff.

Jarecki Cites Statute.

On this point, County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, who is head of the city election machinery, declared yesterday that spoiled ballots should not be counted to determine a majority under an act passed by the state legislature in 1931, and since upheld by the State Supreme court.

In 1927, prior to the enactment of the bill on spoiled ballots, Judge Jarecki had ruled that they should be included.

In the two runoffs shown by the proclamation, due to the fact that no candidate got a majority of all votes cast in the two wards. Ald. John F. Healy [6th] will be opposed by Patrick S. Smith, a former city clerk, and Ald. O. E. Northrup [19th] by John J. Duffy. Neither of these two sitting aldermen obtained a majority of all the votes cast for aldermen in their wards.

On the face of the police returns on election night, it appeared that there would be a runoff election between Schulz and Hoellen in the 47th. The official canvass, however, upset the police returns.

Kelly's Vote 481,572.

The proclamation, which was issued by the board of election commissioners, shows that 481,572 votes were cast for Mayor Kelly in the mayoral primary held on the same day as the aldermanic election. Emil C. Wetten, winner of the Republican nomination for mayor, received 69,130 votes.

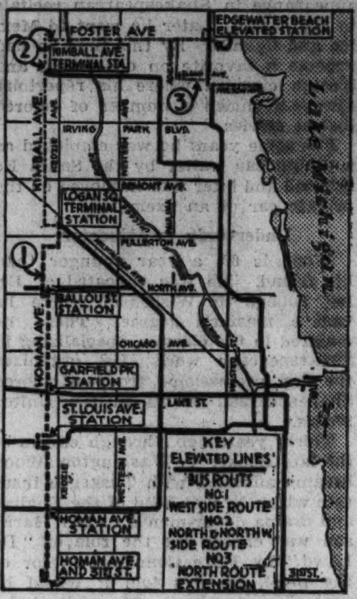
The three opponents of the mayor in the primary polled a total of 60,529 votes, making the total vote for the Democratic mayoral candidates 542,101. Wetten's two opponents got 47,020, bringing the aggregate Republican vote on mayoral candidates to 116,150.

City Clerk Brady, who had no opposition in the Democratic primary for renomination, received 487,049 votes, and Gustave A. Brand, Democratic nominee for city treasurer, 356,237 votes. On the Republican side, Otto M. Webb, nominee for city clerk, drew 40,510 votes, and Charles W. Swanson, nominee for city treasurer, 52,787.

CHARGE POLICE CAR TAMPERING.

Cyril E. Dalton, 27 years old, was arrested yesterday on a charge of trying to steal the automobile of Sergt. John T. O'Malley while it was parked in front of the Chicago avenue police station.

"L" BUS ROUTES



Two bus lines planned to link six elevated branches on west, northwest and north sides. Extension of north bus route to Wilson beach shown. Specially designed motor buses are to be used for the free transfer service.

'L' ASKS PERMITS FOR 2 BUS LINES, WEST AND NORTH

Belt Service to Link Six Branches of Elevated.

The Chicago Rapid Transit lines filed with the Illinois Commerce commission yesterday in Springfield a petition for authority to establish two motor bus cross routes to link six elevated lines with free transfer service. Col. A. A. Sprague and Britten I. Budd, receivers of the Rapid Transit lines, entered the petition.

One of the proposed bus lines would connect with three radial elevated divisions on the north and northwest sides. The other would join the Logan square branch and three west side divisions.

The Routes to Be Followed.

The west side buses would run largely in Homan avenue, from the Logan square terminal to 31st street and Homan avenue. They would touch the Ballou street station on the Humboldt park "L," the Garfield park station of the Lake street branch, and the Homan avenue station of the Douglas park elevated.

The north side buses would form a belt chiefly in Kimball and Foster avenues from the Logan square terminal to the Berwyn avenue station on the Evanston elevated, with an extension southward at Ashland avenue and eastward in Leland and Wilson avenues Lincoln park and the new Wilson avenue beach. The main route would touch the Ravenswood "L" terminal at Kimball avenue.

The transit company previously petitioned the commerce commission for permission to operate comparable service for the north and northwest sides, but yesterday's formal request brought the plans up to date.

Point Out Convenience of Plan.

The petition says that when the commission approves the elevated company's proposals the transit lines will purchase a fleet of new motor buses designed especially for the service. The document points out that at present cross line service links the western "L" branches on Paulina street, two miles west of the loop, but otherwise passengers from outlying regions must proceed to the crowded loop itself to transfer.

"The Rapid Transit company regards this plan as one of the most important and progressive steps in local transportation in years, and we are hopeful that it will get support," said Bernard J. Fallon, operating officer for the receivers. "We will have the service ready 30 days after receiving permission from the commission."

CONDUCTOR DIES ON JOB.

Lewis Miller, 65 years old, 7755 Normal boulevard, conductor on a Clark-Wentworth street car, died of a heart attack on the rear platform of the car yesterday at Clark street and Diversey avenue.

JOLIET CONVICT TO STAND TRIAL IN BREMER CASE

Oliver A. Berg, one of those indicted for the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, now is serving a sentence of ten years to life in Joliet penitentiary for another crime, it was learned yesterday. Berg is charged in the indictment with having handled some of the $200,000 ransom money.

Berg, with Harry Linard and George Brown was sentenced in December, 1926, for the robbery of three jewelry salesmen of half a million dollars' worth of diamonds on an Illinois Central passenger train near Urbana. All pleaded guilty. Berg and Linard originally were sentenced to life imprisonment, but these terms were changed by the Supreme court. They were granted liberty pending habeas corpus proceedings and Berg was a fugitive until he was captured last August.

It was reported yesterday that Berg will be taken to St. Paul to stand trial in April with the other defendants in the kidnaping case.

EX-CHICAGOAN SENT TO PRISON AS NELSON AID

San Francisco, Cal., March 2.—(AP)—In a courtroom bristling with armed guards, one man was sentenced to prison, another pleaded guilty, and the trial of eleven more and one woman was set for March 18 as the government moved against alleged aids of the slain gangster, George [Baby Face] Nelson.

Jack Perkins, Chicago bookmaker who surrendered here recently, was sentenced to two years in prison by Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure. Joseph [Fatso] Negri pleaded guilty to a conspiracy count, while another indictment against him was continued. He will be sentenced March 18.

Grace Perkins, wife of Jack, will be tried with the 11 men who have denied their guilt. She heard her husband described by E. P. Guinane, department of justice head, as a probable participant in the June 30 holdup of the Merchants' National bank at South Bend, Ind.

STRIKE STOPS ALL OF DUBLIN'S BUSES AND STREET CARS

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 3.—[Sunday]—(AP)—A complete stoppage of Dublin's transportation system began today as last minute negotiations by the government failed to obtain postponement of a scheduled midnight strike. For the first time this city of half a million population is without street cars or busses.

A tieup of the entire transport system of the Free State likewise was threatened, as a railway strike, which began Friday night, spread to various lines.

All outgoing services from Kingsbridge, principal terminus of the Great Southern railway, ceased. Train services yesterday to Cork and Kilkenny, and special trains to the Naas races were suspended. The tram and bus strike followed the dismissal of a bus driver. The railroad dispute began with the discharge of an engineer.

GUARDS BEATEN AS 30 ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE JAIL

Newark, N. J., March 2.—[Special.]—Two guards were beaten into insensibility early today during an attempted wholesale jail break at the Essex county detention home.

Thirty youthful prisoners rioted wildly for 40 minutes in the darkened upper floors of the building before they were quieted by guards from the Essex county jail across the street and Newark police.

Eleven of the prisoners were singled out by Superintendent John L. Burgess as ringleaders of the jail break plot and removed to the county jail pending an investigation.

Belief that the rioters had assistance from outside was heightened by the report of Radio Patrolman McGrath of the Newark police that an automobile blocked his path twice as he sped from headquarters to the detention home in response to the riot alarm.

James Gamba, the driver, was arrested and will be questioned.

Another hint of outside help was the finding of an unloaded revolver on the floor of the dormitory after the rioters had been quelled.

Several knives also were found when the riot was over.

GIRL SLAIN WITH AX.

Henderson, N. C., March 2.—(AP)—Authorities today made an intensive search for clews to the slayer of Martha Faulkner, 15, whose battered body was found in woods near her home by her father, Sidney Faulkner, a tenant farmer. She had been killed with an ax.

BEG YOUR PARDON

It was incorrectly stated in THE TRIBUNE yesterday that Ralph Hoffman, 1410 Sunnyside avenue, was the driver of an automobile that crashed into a Soo line freight train in Lake county Thursday. Roy Carlson, 24 years old, 2346 Lyndale avenue, was the driver.

Oil King to Send 2,000 on European Holiday Trip

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 2.—Sir Henri Deterding, oil magnate whom Socialists denounce as one of the bad boys of capitalism, turned Santa Claus today. He offered to pay traveling expenses for 2,000 employés of two of his oil companies so they can travel on the continent. Married men may take their wives and children at his expense next summer. His idea is that travel works for peace by bringing peoples together.

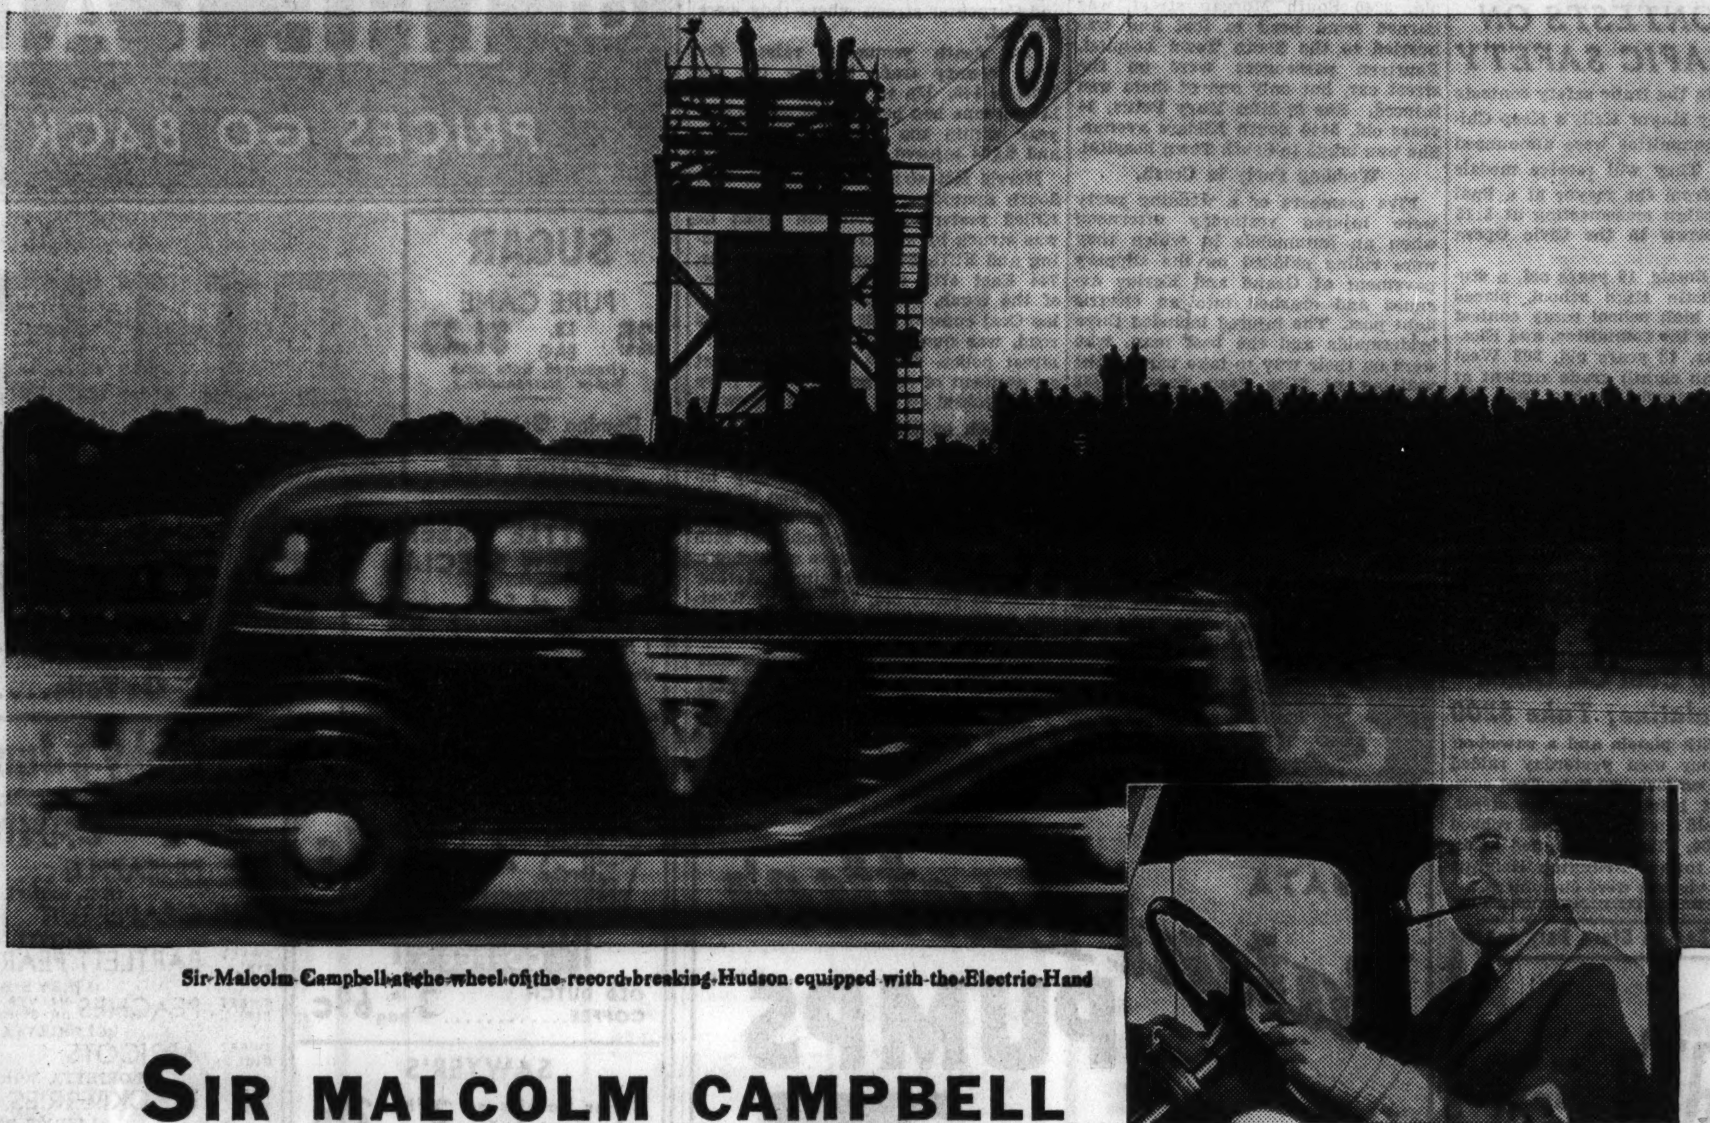
Hudson Smashes
7 WORLD RECORDS AT DAYTONA!



Sir Malcolm Campbell at the wheel of the record-breaking Hudson equipped with the Electric Hand

SIR MALCOLM CAMPBELL PROVES PERFORMANCE AND RUGGEDNESS IN STOCK MODEL SEDAN

Again Hudson gives you proof of power, performance, ruggedness—instead of claims. Seven new official A. A. A. records at Daytona Beach—on February 11.

Top speed counts, of course! And Hudson set a new stock car record of nearly a mile and a half a minute. But more amazing was its mark of a mile at 68.18 m. p. h. from a standing start. That's acceleration, and lightning fast shifting with the Electric Hand. And its running-start record in second gear at more than 70 m. p. h.—"the most savage punishment I ever gave a car," the driver called it. That's ruggedness!

Said Sir Malcolm Campbell—"A remarkably smooth, powerful motor. But what amazed me most is the way the car was unaffected by the slamming around it took in preparation for the runs."

Remember, a stock Hudson sedan set these records—a car picked at random from a dealer's showroom by A. A. A. officials. Come in and see its duplicate and by all means drive it before you decide on any car. Try it!

REFUSE TO FREE LOFTON'S CLIENT; UPHOLD SULLIVAN

Waukegan Court Holds New Trial Sole Hope.

Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady of Lake county at Waukegan yesterday denied a writ of habeas corpus to Milton Panateles, a convicted Chicago robber. This development was the latest in the efforts of Attorney Joseph B. Lofton, to free his client whom the Cook county prosecutors are seeking to return to the state penitentiary at Joliet where he was released by a previous habeas corpus action.

In sustaining a motion by Assistant State's Attorney James V. Cunningham and State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county, to dismiss the petition, Judge Dady advised Lofton that his only recourse is to seek a change of venue next Wednesday.

At the time a motion to quash the capias, under which Panateles was rearrested, and a contempt of court citation pending against the lawyer will be argued before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court.

History of Case.

The case began in 1932 when Judge Harry M. Fisher sentenced Panateles to one year to life for robbery. Two attorneys interested in his case succeeded in obtaining an order for a new trial from Judge Fisher, and the case was assigned to Judge Joseph B. David.

Judge David held that the new trial order was in error, and remanded Panateles to the penitentiary. While in prison he wrote a letter to the Chicago Bar association, stating that there was new evidence in his case which warranted intervention. The bar committee for the defense of indigent persons investigated and assigned Attorney Lofton to the case.

Early last January, the lawyer appeared before Judge Sullivan, and obtained permission to have a record of the case made without cost, alleging Panateles was a pauper. Since then Judge Sullivan has asserted that he allowed this with the understanding Attorney Lofton intended to prepare an appeal.

Clash with Judge Sullivan.

Instead, Lofton went to Du Page county and sued out a writ of habeas corpus before Circuit Judge Max F. Allaben at Wheaton. Judge Allaben decided that Panateles was being held unlawfully and freed him. Learning of this, Judge Sullivan ordered the lawyer to answer a citation for contempt of court, and issued a capias for Panateles' rearrest. Arguments on these matters were continued from Jan. 18 to Feb. 25 and finally until Wednesday.

Last Thursday Lofton filed his new habeas corpus in Lake county.

In making his motion for dismissal of this petition, Assistant State's Attorney Cunningham admitted the contention of Lofton that Judge David's order was void, which merely meant, Cunningham said, that Panateles was entitled to a new trial, and it was for this that he was rearrested.

Attorney Lofton contended, however, that the lapse of time had voided the state's right to retry Panateles.

Upholds Judge Sullivan.

Judge Dady ruled that the issue of the legality of the new trial order could be decided only in the Cook county Circuit court and that Judge Sullivan had the authority to issue the capias for Panateles' rearrest. This left no issue for the Lake county court to pass on, Judge Dady declared, so the petition was dismissed.

When Judge Dady suggested that Lofton file an affadavit of prejudice if he felt he could not get a fair hearing before Judge Sullivan, the attorney replied that such a move would indicate he wanted a new trial.

This was not his intention, he said. Judge Dady replied that this was his only alternative, and that then at the trial he could move for a discharge on his contention that such procedure was incorrect.

SABER MATCH WOUND PERILS YOUTH'S LIFE

Dayton, O., March 2.—(AP)—Robert Zolg, 24, was near death tonight from a wound suffered in a saber match with a friend. His lungs were punctured by the thrust of a saber wielded by Larry Libecap, medical student at the University of Cincinnati.

Co-captains of the University of Dayton fencing team in 1933, they found themselves matched last night. They battled furiously for points that would decide the match. The points of their weapons had been blunted, Libecap said, but his thrust glanced off Zolg's shoulder and sheered into the latter's body.

Libecap said he had not known Zolg had not donned the customary body padding. Padding, he said, would have prevented the accident. Officials said no charges would be filed against him even though the wound proved fatal.

Ship Docks at Milwaukee After Distress Reports

Milwaukee, Wis., March 2.—(AP)—The steamer Missouri, reported disabled in Lake Michigan, arrived here safely from Muskegon, Mich., this afternoon. Engine trouble was experienced during the cross-lake trip, but repairs were made without assistance. Coast guardsmen earlier had feared for the safety of the ship.

SARAH KIRBY'S WILL DISPOSES OF ESTATE VALUED AT $500,000

South Bend, Ind., March 2.—[Special.]—Bequests disposing of an estate valued at $500,000 were made today in the will of Miss Sarah Kirby, a pioneer resident of South Bend, who died a week ago in Chicago at the age of 65. The will names a score of distant relatives and friends. It was filed for probate here.

In addition to extensive real estate holdings here, the estate includes a small fortune in art treasures, jewelry and furniture collected by Miss Kirby during her extensive travels. Miss Kirby's summer home at South Dartmouth, Mass., was bequeathed to the McDowell colony of artists, while other beneficiaries included servants who cared for her during a serious illness in Japan.

Principal beneficiaries of a trust fund created under the will are Don K. Stephenson, Vern Stephenson and George Stephenson of South Bend; Mrs. Edward Peacock, Honolulu; Edna Urquhart, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Stanley Stephenson, Salt Lake City; Mrs. Margaret Carlisle, Chicago; and Herbert Wall Jr., Beverly Hills, Cal. All are distant cousins of Miss Kirby.

Texas Governor's Sister Wed in Executive Mansion

DU PAGE COUNTY POLICE DANCE TO AID CRIME DRIVE

The second annual ball of the Du Page County Police association to raise funds for the furtherance of cooperative crime fighting by fifteen towns of the county was held last night at the Medinah Country club. About 1,500 persons attended and Chief of Police Henry Domiuans of Hinsdale, president of the association, said that a final check of receipts would probably show a net of over $1,000.

The proceeds will be used for finger print equipment and personnel, for the posting of police bulletins on wanted criminals or information on crimes, and other crime preventive projects.

Members of the association are expecting eventually to set up a central police headquarters to direct police work throughout the entire county.

3 NEW JERSEY BOYS DROWNED AS ICE BREAKS

Hillside, N. J., March 2.—(AP)—Three boys drowned near here today when rapidly thawing ice cracked and plunged them into the icy water of the Elizabeth river.

The bodies of James Boyle, 11, of Elizabeth and James Cunningham Jr., 15, of Hillside were taken from the water shortly after the accident, but searchers have not found the body of Donald Mallon, 11, of Elizabeth.

Early police reports were that the boys were trying to rescue a dog that had wandered out on the ice. A dog had accompanied one of the groups and was romping near by when the accident occurred.

MUSSOLINI SENDS MORE TROOPS AND GUNS TO AFRICA

Two Italian Ships Ready to Sail.

ROME, March 2.—(AP)—The steamers Campidoglio and Antonietta made ready to sail from Naples for East Africa tonight with 66 officers and 554 men aboard, lending new emphasis to the ministry of colonies' prediction that this year will be "historic in the life of Italy's African colonies."

Stopping at Messina tomorrow to pick up additional troops of the Peloritana division, the 29th Brigade, of which is concentrating at Messina under Gen. Carlo Boscardi, the ships will steam in the wake of other vessels carrying men and war material to Africa.

Says More Men Are Ready.

The ministry of colonies' report, which was presented to the chamber of deputies by Deputy Ferretti di Castelferretto, said, "many of our comrades are waiting with arms ready for defense of our rights and dignity as a great power."

After mentioning recent Italo-Ethiopian border clashes, the deputy said: "What are to be the developments and the consequences of the present historic moment it is not given to us to foresee."

A government spokesman said tonight Italy had received no official word of Ethiopia's reported payment to France of an indemnity for lives lost in the recent clash near Djibouti.

Italy also has demanded an indemnity for Italian native soldiers killed in recent border fighting.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, March 2.—(AP)—He looks like Gen. Ulysses S. Grant in a rebel uniform of flowing gray.

He likes people to mistake him for white; then his melancholy face lights up and his black beard parts in a warming smile.

His fingers are long and tapering, almost feminine, and at dinner he rests his hands on the table, admiring them.

He is emperor Haile Selassie I., the king of kings, elect of god, conquering lion of Judah, lineal descendant of the queen of Sheba.

Today, flanked by warrior chiefs of a million men reputed to be "the fiercest and best fighters in the world," he is waiting in his African villa—waiting uneasily but unafraid—for the war drums to roll again, as they rolled some 40 years ago, for the same foes from Italy.

Does Not Want War.

He does not want war, he says. But he believes it is inevitable. Memories are long in Abyssinia, and his people remember vividly—in the face of threats from mighty Italy—that these same Italian invaders came to stunning defeat at their hands once before.

They remember that 15,000 men from the north crossed the borders to storm little Ethiopia, and that 7,500 were killed, 3,000 wounded or taken prisoners. Those who were captured wished they had died, too. They were savagely mutilated.

The emperor's army is one of the strangest in the world. Out of a total population of 15,000,000, he can throw 400,000 men into the field overnight. Many of them have only antique rifles, with few or no bullets. But they don't need bullets.

Eat Raw Meat.

"Raw meat and a drink of tedje—and nothing can stop him but death"—that's one description of the Ethiopian warrior.

Like armies of old, they march without commissariat, feeding on villages as they pass, eating raw meat, drinking potent native beer.

And they love to fight!

PARENTS GET 15 YEARS FOR FORCING 'BAD GIRL' TO ATTEMPT SUICIDE

FRANKFURT-AM-MAIN, Germany, March 2.—[U.P.]—The parents of a German "bad girl" were heavily sentenced today for forcing her to attempt suicide in expiation of her real or fancied misdeeds.

Wilhelm Hoefeld, a religious fanatic, and his wife were given 15 years in prison each on the charge of attempting to murder their daughter Hildegard, 14. It was charged they attempted her compulsory suicide because the father regarded her as a "bad girl." Hoefeld forced the child to jump 35 feet into the ice-choked river Main from one of Frankfurt's chief bridges. She was rescued.

The testimony showed he often took his family into the woods, forcing them to stand for hours, worshiping trees. He also brutally flogged Hildegard for minor insubordination. Another daughter, Mina, 16, was acquitted on a charge of abetting her parents in the persecution of Hildegard.

bills to have escaped our attention, we were so careful."

Fail to Trace Bulk of It.

So far as authorities have disclosed none of the $5,000 in federal reserve notes nor of the $10,000 in $5 bills included in the ransom bundle has been traced to Hauptmann.

The money which Hauptmann admitted he possessed and which he contends was left with him by his now dead friend and business partner, Isador Fisch, was in $10 and $20 gold certificates.

Hauptmann said that he had spent "maybe a little more than $100" of the ransom money between the time he says he discovered it in the package Fisch had left, the middle of August, 1934, and his arrest, Sept. 18, 1934.

Excluding the money found with Hauptmann, the three ransom exchanges in New York banks, which authorities have not traced to Hauptmann, and the bills that have turned up out of town, about $945 of the recovered ransom appeared in New York.

First Bill Turns Up.

The first bill to be recognized turned up at the East River Savings bank two or three days after the ransom payment. During April and May, 1932, five bills were passed in New York.

Federal and banking authorities say they know of no ransom money that has turned up in Boston. Reports were circulated that two ransom bills were offered an airline office there in payment for passage recently.

According to official records the last bill to turn up was a $10 gold certificate "floater" that was recognized in Newark, N. J., on Oct. 12, 1934. This was believed to be one of the bills Hauptmann admitted passing.

LINDBERGH WITNESSES THREATENED

Ernest Miller (left), Elmer Johnson, and Catherine Minners, three witnesses against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, have received threats of death, it was revealed yesterday. Their testimony gave alibi for the late Violet Sharpe, maid in home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, on night Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. was kidnaped.

DEATH THREAT SENT THREE

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, N. Y., March 2.—[Special.]—Three witnesses who testified against Bruno Richard Hauptmann at the trial which resulted in a death sentence for the German ex-convict have received threats of death, it was revealed today.

This was the latest development of the campaign being waged with great success in Nazi strongholds in New York to prevent, by one means or another, execution of the sentence meted out to Hauptmann by a New Jersey jury which found him guilty of the murder of the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Nothing could illustrate more clearly, it has been pointed out, the variation in viewpoint between this city and the remainder of the country. A majority of the citizens in the United States apparently are willing to permit justice to proceed in an orderly manner, but nightly in New York mass meetings are being held at which indignation runs high concerning the Hauptmann verdict.

Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, wife of the condemned man, appeared last night, as she appears almost every night, at one of these meetings in a ballroom in the borough of Queens. Her brief plea in German for financial assistance was followed by a tirade, also in German, from a mysterious man who poses as an adviser for Mrs. Hauptmann.

Lawyers Jubilant Over Fund.

The defense fund now totals more than $10,000. Inasmuch as the state of New Jersey was compelled to pay the $3,000 cost of printing the record on the ground that Hauptmann was a pauper, the four lawyers engaged in drafting an appeal for the convicted man are a jolly group these days.

The witnesses who received death threats were Elmer Johnson, Ernest Miller, and Catherine Minners, all of New Jersey. Their testimony supplied an alibi for Violet Sharpe on the night of March 1, 1932, when the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped.

GIRL EAGER FOR OPERATION THAT MAY COST LIFE

Fall River, Mass., March 2.—(AP)—Such is the courage and confidence of Alyce Jane McHenry, 10 year old Omaha, Neb., girl, that she was impatient tonight to have an operation performed which may be a crisis in her life.

The little girl told her mother, Mrs. Louella McHenry, that she wished the operation performed immediately, instead of waiting until Monday, the date set by Dr. Philemon E. Truesdale, noted surgeon.

In conferences with other specialists, Dr. Truesdale has completed his plans for a delicate operation to correct the effects of a ruptured diaphragm. Alyce Jane's stomach and several other organs now occupy the left chest cavity and until this condition is remedied she faces an ever present threat of death. Because of her weakened condition the operation will be serious.

FRANCE IS READY TO GIVE RADIO FANS TELEVISION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 2.—The first French television broadcasting station installed by the ministry of communications will begin operation within a few days. It will broadcast on a 7 meter wave length one hour a week. The wave length will be increased as the owners of sets multiply. Dimensions of televised images are limited to a screen 14 inches square at present.

French engineers, who have been studying the progress of television in England and America, have been working on the project for a year. The television announcement caused much interest to the public which is just becoming accustomed to the idea that radios are here to stay.

Only last week Paris got its first fleet of radio equipped taxicabs. Most cafés have radios. It is probable that some boulevard cafés soon will be boasting television entertainment.

CARNI VALE THE SIGNAL FOR 40 DAYS OF FASTING

Lenten Season Observed by Christian World.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Carni vale! "Good-by meat!"

Farewell to flesh is Tuesday's business for many persons this week. This carnival spirit of Mardi Gras, "fat Tuesday," precedes the worldly and fleshly renunciations of the devout on Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent. Then comes the remaining of the 40 days with their fasting and abstinence.

The season has long been observed. Some parts of Christendom kept Lent for nine weeks, others for but two. But for the most part Lent itself has been set at 40 week days in commemoration of Christ's desert fast before His temptation. "Great Lent," which includes nine weeks, is still observed in some churches while in others the additional three weeks represent a turn from festive Christmas and Epiphany seasons to the somber fasting period.

Back to Magical Sacrifices.

But some authorities say that ideas behind the Lenten season go back to early man in his magical sacrifices and penitential prayers for the return of the sun god as that deity seemed to be departing prior to the winter solstice each year. Then followed the festival of the sun's return. This age old festival time, which later became Christmas for Christians, a winter feast, together with the spring time feasts which became Easter, were once the same. Their separation came because early calendars failed to take account of the extra quarter of a day in each year. In certain aged communities of the east the calendar "slippage" finally became so great that planting festivals had got into summer growing seasons or even into the harvest.

With the two feasts growing from the same roots in primitive man's experience, it was easy to translate the joy of the one into the celebration of the birth of the Savior, and the other into the Easter victory of His empty tomb. The latter parallels in date and compares in spirit with the Passover feast of the Jews.

Observed by 525,000,000.

The world over, Lent is observed as the most devout season of the year by 300 million Catholics, 125 million Eastern Orthodox Christians, 75 million Lutherans, and 25 million Anglicans or Episcopalians. Some of the churches which came into being after the reformation, particularly the Reformed, Baptist, Congregational, and Presbyterian bodies, repudiated the Lenten season and other so-called "popish ways." These groups, for many decades, also refused observance of Christmas, Easter, Pentecost, and all other feasts.

But the past 75 years has seen a vast movement to return to observances of the main fasts and feasts of the traditional church year.

AAA ABOLISHES MILK MARKET LICENSING HERE

U. S. Expected to Wind Up Affairs and Step Out.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, announced in Washington yesterday the termination of the Chicago milk license agreement under which dairymen and distributors have been operating since Feb. 5, 1934. The action followed the request of the Pure Milk association on Feb. 28 asking the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to suspend the milk license in the Chicago area. The Pure Milk association is the bargaining agency for 18,000 dairy farmers in the area.

In granting the association's request the secretary of agriculture went a step further than the requested suspension and signed an order abolishing the milk license. After settlement is made for milk delivered last month to Chicago distributors under the AAA plan it is understood the federal government will withdraw its forces from the local market.

Regular Settlement for February.

Frank C. Baker, who recently submitted his resignation as federal milk market administrator here, said last night that he had not been officially advised of Secretary Wallace's action. He announced that the local administrator's office would require distributors to continue to make reports of milk delivered to them in February and that settlement with farmers would be made through the milk pool in the usual way.

Officials of producer and distributor organizations said last night that arrangements had been practically completed for dairy farmers and Chicago dealers to again take over the task of handling their own milk marketing problems.

Contract Forms Ready.

Don G. Geyer, manager of the Pure Milk association, said that his officials had accepted a form of contract to be signed by his organization and individual distributors in marketing milk in the future. Paul Potter, secretary of the Associated Milk Dealers, Inc., an organization of ninety dealers in the city and surrounding suburbs, said the distributors' attorneys had approved the contract which would be submitted to members early this week.

Under the new contract, dairy farmers will be paid for milk according to its various uses. Instead of reporting to the AAA milk market administrator's local office, as has been done during the last year, the dealers will record their sales with the Pure Milk association. An auditor, accepted by both groups, has been selected to insure fairness under the producer-dealer plan.

Include Arbitration Clause.

One of the features of the contract is that differences of opinion over prices will be arbitrated, guaranteeing that there will be no suspension of milk deliveries to Chicago consumers.

It was a disagreement over prices, resulting in a milk strike and suspension of deliveries, that prompted the federal government to move its expert market troops into Chicago to assume command of the Chicago milk market under federal license a year ago.

In reviewing the year under rule of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, producers' representatives gave credit to the license plan last night for holding up farm prices last April and May when the price controversy was on between distributors.

Expect Larger Checks.

Credit was also given AAA for advancing farm milk prices in June and July last year when the drouth cut feed supplies and increased the cost of production.

Despite the increases made in the base prices of milk, producers complained of the low average price they received each month through the government control plan. Under the newly devised scheme of classifying milk dairy farmers expect to receive a bigger milk check than was paid them while the government administered their marketing affairs.

Retail Price to Stay as Is.

During the period of government control the retail price of milk sold to consumers in homes, restaurants, and hotels was increased three cents a quart. With the farmer-producer plan operating in the sale of milk no advance in the retail price is anticipated in March. The base farm price of $2.30 a hundred [4.7 cents a quart] for class 1 milk containing 3.5 butterfat will be paid in March as it was in February.

ELK HERD WILL BE COUNTED BY AIR OBSERVERS

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 2.—(AP)—There's going to be a census of the big elk herd in the Jackson Hole country next month.

It will require the use of an airplane for a part of the count, in which the United States biological survey and the forest service will coöperate with the state game department.

When the tally is completed, the game department will have exact data on which to base its calculations for efficient management of the herd.

The last census in 1931 showed the herd numbered 20,000. Game checking stations report 4,000 animals killed during the open season and by special permission of the game department for relief purposes. The normal rate of increase is 25 per cent a year.

2 ARBITRATORS ARE NAMED FOR OLIVER STRIKE

South Bend, Ind., March 2.—[Special.]—With the appointment of G. A. Farabaugh, South Bend attorney, named as the representative of the Oliver Farm Equipment company and the Rev. John C. McGinn, C. S. C., of Notre Dame chosen by agreement of both the company and the employé representatives, the arbitration board for labor troubles at the Oliver plant in South Bend was complete.

These two will serve with L. P. McGirr, South Bend labor leader, who was chosen by the workers immediately after the recent strike at the plant. J. A. Fix, plant manager, announced the appointment of Farabaugh as company representative.

"To eliminate prejudices as much as possible the company had purposely refrained from selecting as its representative any person from its South Bend management or from its executive offices in Chicago," Mr. Fix said.

The board will investigate the issues which precipitated the walkout of 1,500 Oliver workers Jan. 9.

In Park Conservatory

Anticipating the season by several months, a summer garden show opened yesterday in the Garfield Park conservatory under the direction of August Koch, chief horticulturist. Tulips, cinerarias, primroses, begonias, hyacinths, and many other blooms are arranged in an informal garden pattern.

To assist the home gardener three free lectures related to gardening are scheduled for the coming week. Vernon Ashmore will talk on "Insect Pests, Diseases and How to Control Them," at 3 p. m. on Tuesday.

"The Use of Garden Accessories and Notes on Garden Maintenance" is to be the subject of William West at 8 o'clock on Thursday. Frank K. Balthis will speak on "House Plants, the Best Kinds, and How to Grow Them," at 8 o'clock Friday evening.

AWAIT RETURNS ON STRIKE VOTE IN AUTO PLANTS

Council Meets Again When Returns Are In.

Detroit, Mich., March 2.—(AP)—The national council of United Automobile Workers adjourned a week's session this afternoon without further comment on the "secret" strike vote it has ordered among the 176 American Federation of Labor locals in the motor car industry. At federation headquarters here it was said the council would not meet again until definite returns had been received from most of the locals.

The statement of Francis J. Dillon, A. F. of L. organizer, and other union officials that the call for the strike vote "did not necessarily mean a strike would be called" was as near as any authority would come to admitting the action was taken primarily as a test of federation strength in the industry. Figures tabulated by the national automobile labor board so far on collective bargaining committee elections in automotive plants showed the federation represented only a fraction of the 200,000 workers.

Brings Vote Action.

It was opposition to the labor board's procedure in these elections that precipitated the A. F. of L. strike vote action. The board has been criticized by President Green of the A. F. of L. and by Dillon as failing to accomplish any real benefit for the workers.

"The elections set up by Dr. Wolman [Dr. Leo T. Wolman, chairman of the labor board] represent nothing," said Dillon, "but the legalization of the company union."

In the notice to locals, the council members said:

"In order that your designated representatives may have in their hands the power necessary to enforce your demands, it is essential that you mobilize your economic power and place it at the disposal of the president of the A. F. of L. through the national council of automobile workers."

Green Acts Independently.

President Green was understood today to have initiated efforts authorized last week by the national council toward negotiations with the Automobile Manufacturers' association concerning wages and hours in the industry. His action was independent of the automobile labor board, which was appointed by President Roosevelt a year ago when a strike threatened the industry. There was no information here, however, concerning the progress, if any, which had been made.

The labor board announced today it expected to complete its election in the industry by about April 15. It has already canvassed 93,611 workers.

Tabulation Announced.

Unaffiliated	68,787
Employe associations	10,604
Assoc. Auto Workers of America	6,061
A. F. of L.	4,040
Mechanics' Educational society	507
Blank	1,526
Void	1,053

The remainder were scattered among half a dozen organizations.

SEVEN BANDITS LOOT MISSOURI BANK OF $18,000

Neosho, Mo., March 2.—[Special.]—Holding possession of the First National bank for nearly four hours early this morning, seven armed bandits bound and gagged eleven employés of the bank as they came to work and escaped with $18,000.

The outlaw gang in two automobiles entered the town and drove in front of the bank. Leslie Cooper, colored porter, was seized when he came to work and the bandits entered.

During the next three and a half hours, ten other employés were seized as they came to work and were placed on the floor beside the porter. When the vault time lock opened at 8:45, bags of currency were taken.

CHARGES FOREIGN POLICY PUTS U. S. ON BRINK OF WAR

Dr. Buell Cites Roosevelt Program's Failures.

The United States is closer to war than at any time since 1917, Dr. Raymond Leslie Buell of Princeton, N. J., president of the Foreign Policy association, told the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations in the Palmer house yesterday.

The reason, he explained, lies in the foreign policy of the Roosevelt administration, which "despite its good intentions, is today confronted with a series of impressive failures."

The Roosevelt foreign policy may boast of only one constructive aspect, said Dr. Buell, who is a noted author and student of foreign affairs. This is Secretary Hull's reciprocity program, which has produced two excellent agreements, one with Cuba, one with Brazil.

Cites Policy Failures.

Among the bleaker results of the administration's foreign policy, Dr. Buell cited failure to coöperate in the settlement of the Chaco war, failure of the United States policy in Cuba, creation of a delicate situation in the orient, and the impairment of the relations of the United States with all the greater powers of Europe.

Although Japan is far inferior to the United States in war power, it has the advantage of geographical position, Dr. Buell said, and, stimulated by the United States' naval expansion, may decide to strike at the Philippines, hoping to achieve a victory before America is prepared.

"If a war with Japan comes," he said, "it will not be because of any conflict of important economic interest—and it will be a highly unpopular war. It is bound to be mutually disastrous, and would lead to no decisive results."

Relations Impaired, He Says.

The Roosevelt policy has impaired the development of cordial relations with France, England, and Germany, Dr. Buell asserted, by failure to settle the question of war debt and differences over currency. It has brought about a collapse of negotiations with Russia by failing to separate the question of trade from that of repayment of the Russian debt.

"The immediate policy of the United States," Dr. Buell said, "should be to stop insensate increases in military, naval, and air appropriations, the only result of which is to increase the danger of war with Japan and to add to the financial burden of the American people. We should intensify the present effort to work out an orderly program of economic coöperation between nations in accordance with the principles of international planning.

VACATE JAIL IN ORDERLY TOWN FOR EDUCATION

Meyersdale, Pa., March 2.—(AP)—This town's jail has been removed to make way for a bigger and better enterprise—education.

Finding need for more room, the school authorities notified the borough officials to vacate the lockup which has housed Meyersdale prisoners for 20 years. It is school property.

Chief of Police Jim Campbell complied, but the job was not so difficult. He had no prisoners.

"In fact," said the chief, "we haven't arrested anybody for two months. The last one was a drunk raising a disturbance. Meyersdale is an orderly town."

Today, the rooms formerly reserved for recalcitrants hum with the activity of an agricultural class—sons and daughters of farmers in the community of 3,000 inhabitants.

What to do with a prisoner—if he has to make an arrest—is the only question bothering Campbell.

Moving Men Cut Rates; Foresee Business Upturn

The Movers' Association of Chicago announced yesterday a reduction in moving rates which went into effect last Friday. The rate for a van and two men is reduced from $5 an hour to $4 an hour. Daniel Healy, secretary of the association, said an increase in business is expected this spring because of the anticipated increase in rents of from 5 to 10 per cent.

ICKES CHARGES BOULDER DAM JOB VIOLATIONS

Glavis Ordered to Direct Pay Rolls Quiz.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[U. P.]—Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes tonight said "evidence of violation of law by the Six Companies, Inc., constructors of Boulder dam, has reached such proportions" that he has ordered his chief departmental investigator to take personal charge of the case.

The chief investigator, Louis Glavis, will leave next week for the site of the $47,025,000 power and irrigation project on the Colorado river.

Ickes asserted that "according to special agents who have examined pay rolls of the Six Companies, Inc., they show many thousands of violations of the law which prohibits contractors from permitting any one to work more than eight hours a day on government projects."

Seize Office Records.

The office records were seized early this week by the United States district attorney for Nevada, who alleged the firms had been maintaining two sets of pay rolls, one for examination of PWA auditors and one for their own use.

Ickes announced at the time that he and Glavis had turned the case over to the department of justice after former employés of Six Companies complained to him that federal labor laws were being violated.

Ickes decided tonight, however, to send Glavis to Boulder City to direct the investigation.

Glavis will leave for Las Vegas, Nev., early next week after going from here to Chattanooga, Tenn.

Study Texas Project.

The investigation into Boulder dam came just as a special federal grand jury was completing an inquiry into alleged irregularities on another PWA irrigation project in Willacy county, Texas.

Evidence was presented to the jury regarding an alleged unauthorized change of specifications so as to require use of some 500 miles of California wooden pipe on the project, which originally called for no pipe at all. Hearing of testimony has been completed and an early report is expected from the jury.

WALKOUT OF 30,000 BUILDING SERVICE MEN CALLED IN N. Y.

New York, March 2.—[Special.]—A strike of 30,000 building superintendents and janitors and other service employés in 1,800 buildings in Brooklyn and Queens was called for Monday unless Mayor La Guardia intervenes. Local 51 of the Building Service Employés' International union called the walkout.

William J. Flynn, president of local 51, announced the strike had been called after negotiations for an agreement on wages and hours with the Brooklyn realty committee on labor relations had been broken off.

Union spokesmen proposed to negotiate on the basis of the terms on which peace was established recently between employés and building owners, according to Flynn.

On the other hand, Frank M. Ledwith, chairman of the Brooklyn realty committee, asserted union leaders were interested only in recognition of the union and not in wages and working conditions.

Irate Relief Clients Lock Officials Up for 2 Hours

Glendale, Cal., March 2.—[U. P.]—One hundred angered relief recipients stormed relief headquarters here today and locked in eight officials for two hours in a demonstration of protest against low checks. They were released only after their spokesman had a reassuring telephone call from County Relief Administrator Roy W. Pilling.

HOUSE LEADERS PREPARE ACTION ON 'PINK SLIPS'

Deluge of Letters Protests Income Tax Publicity.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—(AP)—Although the deadline for filing income taxes is less than two weeks away, the swelling numbers of letter writers opposing publication of the telltale pink slips may still win out in congress.

Prompted by a subcommittee's approval of legislation to repeal this publicity provision in last year's revenue law, Chairman Doughton [Dem., N. C.] of the ways and means committee, prepared a measure to accomplish this.

May Act Wednesday.

The full committee, however, will be busy Monday and Tuesday with bonus hearings, so the plan is to act on Wednesday. The rules committee is all primed to send the action to the floor.

Action on the bonus has precedence under a pledge to bonus advocates made long before Representative Bacon [Rep., N. Y.] started agitation to abolish the pink slips.

Speaker Byrns today said that if the income tax bill can be reached this week it probably will be sent to the senate without delay.

Tells of House Sentiment.

"I think there is considerable sentiment in the house to modify the publicity program or repeal it," Byrns said.

Doughton's bill will provide for a return to the clause in the old 1926 law, merely authorizing the President and secretary of the treasury to make tax returns public under regulations they decide upon and when they deem publication necessary. The pink slips require publication of the information, including gross and net income and amount of income tax paid.

VILLAGE DOCTOR, 100 NEXT JUNE, HOPES TO CONTINUE PRACTICE

Batavia, O., March 2.—(AP)—A village doctor looked back over the 75 years of practice which he finished today and came to the conclusion he has prescribed enough medicine to "cure all the stomach aches in the world."

He is Dr. William E. Thompson of Bethel, and his current ambition is to remain in practice on his 100th birthday next June.

Dr. Thompson estimates that he has brought more than 1,800 babies into the world and is proud that he never lost a mother— "nor a father either."

He believes the success of Dr. Allen R. Dafoe in caring for the Dionne quintuplets "should make every country doctor proud."

Last week he fell and hurt his back, but that hasn't stopped him. Except for his students days, he has spent all his life in Bethel, his birthplace.

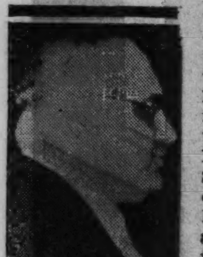
DATA DEMANDED BEFORE VOTE ON NEW TAX BILLS

Senator Searcy Objects to Capital Pressure.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



SENATOR SEARCY.

Springfield, Ill., March 2.—[Special.]—What went on back of the scenes in Washington when Illinois officials were told they must provide three millions monthly for relief is the question Senator Earl B. Searcy [Rep., Springfield] and other legislative leaders demand answered before they take a stand on the hatful of new tax bills pending in the assembly.

"To date," Senator Searcy said today, "all we have before us is Washington's blanket demand that we produce this money. It is unexplained, unanalyzed and with no facts or figures on which to predicate the conclusion. None of us will let any person go hungry; neither will we accept a dictum from one thousand miles away in view of the widely reported distress among Illinois taxpayers who have been called upon, arbitrarily, to pay this bill."

Others Share Attitude.

Searcy reported that his attitude is shared by many members of both parties who have been sitting in with Gov. Horner at recent conferences in the struggle to meet Washington's command. If he and the other Republicans in both houses stand pat they can be an effective block against enactment of tax increases on superficial information, for the bills must be passed with emergency clauses, which means that at least 15 Republicans will have to vote with the Democrats.

"What we are wondering," Searcy said today in contemplation of the past conferences and the coming hearings next week at which the tax bills will be examined, "is whether Illinois is to lose its identity as a state and be regarded, henceforth, as merely a fiscal suburb of Washington.

"I've made up my mind and I shall use what influence I have not to move an inch—either way—until we have some concrete facts on hand on which to base intelligent action. Why the secrecy? What's the mystery about this thing? What was said to our representation down there?

Commissioner Questioned.

"I asked a member of the relief commission after last Wednesday's conference if the state of Illinois was to be entirely subsidized by the federal government. 'Can't we make a move here that isn't dictated by the Washington burocracy?' I asked.

"In substance, this member replied it looked to him as if the federal government was going to insist on dictating the manner of spending of every cent we get.

"I asked who fixed these amounts. He didn't seem to know.

"This is the third largest industrial state in the Union. It has Chicago, the nation's second city. We pay 200 millions annually in federal income tax, to say nothing of the other governmental taxes. If this system of subsidizing states is to continue indefinitly—and I am not agreeing that it should, but I am fearful of the trend—then Illinois should have its rightful share.

"The western and many of the southern states have been treated with a lavish hand. At no time, so far as we know, has Illinois received more than an inconsequential percentage of what it has paid in."

Claudette Colbert, who with Clark Gable was named the outstanding motion picture star of 1934, arrived in Chicago yesterday on the Santa Fe Chief on her way to New York "to see all the shows and buy things for my new house in Beverly Hills." Miss Colbert said her next picture, "Private Worlds," is "all about insane asylums."

Bring Ohio Captive Here to Face Trial for Murder

Morris Rappaport was brought to Chicago from Mansfield, O., yesterday to face trial for the slaying of Harry Silverstein, 22 years old, 1208 South Millard avenue, on Jan. 4, 1931. Rappaport was arrested in Ohio on a larceny charge. Silverstein, a mechanic, was shot and killed at the rear of the Central Park theater, 3535 Roosevelt road.

kota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Vermont, and Washington.

Changes in the President's program were proposed by the committee on relief activities of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in a report submitted to the board of directors.

The committee held that the proposed appropriations should not be in excess of 2 billion dollars and probably should be even less.

Another proposal was that the responsibility for the initiation and execution of projects under the program should remain with the states and not turned over to the federal government as provided for in the pending legislation.

The committee contended that the federal government should confine its participation to emergency unemployment relief loans or grants-in-aid to the states.

On the other hand, the committee supported the principle that the wage rate for the relief work should be lower than the rate in private industry and that public works projects should not compete with private enterprise.

The primary consideration in any relief works project, the committee said, should be its utility and economic usefulness.

G. O. P. VETERAN OUT FIRST TIME FOR 26 YEARS

St. Louis, Mo., March 2.—[UP]—Edmond Koeln, white haired Nestor of St. Louis Republicanism and victim of the Democratic landslide of last November, stepped out of office today for the first time in 26 years—a term of public service far longer thah any municipal servant in the city's history.

City collector for many years and always a powerful factor in political affairs, Koeln said on gathering up his personal effects and turning over the office to William F. Baumann, collector elect:

"I am going out of office without a penny. The crash in '29 got me, just as it did a lot of others.

"You ask me what my plans are—if I'm going to put on the slippers and sit in front of the fireside. A man who is broke and has a family to support can't do that.

FISH PREDICTS G. O. P. WILL ELECT PRESIDENT IN '36

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—Charging that the Roosevelt administration's policies had "cracked up" and recovery has not been aided by its panaceas, Representative Hamilton Fish of New York predicted tonight that a Republican President would be elected in 1936.

The administration's "honeymoon" was over, he said, and the public was now weighing its "series of broken promises and pledges" and speculating as to the effect of its "unsound, unworkable, and socialistic experiments.

"The time has come to place the blame for the breakdown of the administration policies and pledges squarely where it actually belongs—upon the shoulders of President Roosevelt," he went on.

"It is mere evasion and cowardice to attempt to hold Prof. Tugwell, Miss Perkins, Donald Richberg, Honest Harold Ickes, and James Aloysius Farley responsible for the accumulation of ills and failures of the administration, when they are but appointed agents of the President."

SOUTH DAKOTA HOUSE REJECTS JOINT PLAN FOR POWER PROJECT

Pierre, S. D., March 2.—(AP)—The South Dakota house has turned thumbs down on a bill creating a Black Hills joint power commission to coöperate with Wyoming in operation of a proposed government financed electric power project at Gillette, Wyo.

Sponsors of the project reported Wyoming's legislature has approved an identical bill, and said $9,225,000 in federal funds had been promised for the enterprise.

After hearing arguments that the project would jeopardize hydroelectric development of the Missouri river, the house indefinitly postponed the Black Hills measure without a roll call vote.

Rep. R. A. Swanson of Montrose was the chief proponent of the plan. He said: "All the power companies are opposed to it, so it must be a good bill."

INDIANA WOMAN, 97, DIES.

Logansport, Ind., March 2.—[Special.]—Mrs. Maria Venard, 97, Pulaski county's oldest citizen, died today after two weeks' illness. She had resided at Winamac 90 years.

13 PER CENT ON RELIEF ROLLS IN COOK COUNTY

Chicago and Cook county proportionately have fewer persons on relief rolls than the balance of the state considered as a whole, the Illinois Emergency Relief commission announced yesterday. Nearly 17 per cent of the population of 101 Illinois counties outside of Cook county are receiving aid as compared to 13 per cent in Cook county.

This condition is the reverse of that prevailing up to the winter of 1933-34. In December, 1934, 60 Illinois counties had a greater portion of their population on relief than Cook county. Alexander county, which has the highest relief load in the state, attributes its condition to severe industrial unemployment. Alexander county, with 40.2 per cent of its population on relief rolls, and Williamson, Hardin, and Pulaski, with more than 34 per cent, are in the coal mining and industrial area of the extreme southern tip of the state. Agricultural Ford county had the smallest percentage of population on relief, 5.1 per cent.

NEW DEAL GIVING NATION SECURITY, HOPKINS INSISTS

Speaks in Highland Park; Confers with Olson.

The people of the United States must have security, and this is what the activities of the New Deal are assuring them, was the theme of the speech delivered in Highland Park last night by Harry L. Hopkins, director of the Federal Emergency Relief administration. He spoke at the Elm Place school, under the auspices of the League of Women Voters.

He told in some detail of the New Deal projects to put unemployed at work—making it possible for them to earn wages instead of being idle and accepting a direct dole.

Stresses Rural Rehabilitation.

He dwelt on the money expended for rural rehabilitation in loans for farm improvement, rebuilding rural homes, and stocking farms.

"And this money is merely loaned," he emphasized, "it is not thrown away. It is all coming back to the government, I am certain."

He also pointed out that, during the first few years of depression, the national income dropped from 90 billions to 40 billions of dollars, with a consequent drop in national revenue, then added:

"Last year the income returned to the upgrade, and jumped to 50 billion dollars. In another year, I am certain it will climb by another 10 billion dollars. In the face of that, why should there be wild alarm about spending a fraction of that on further constructive relief work?"

Confers with Olson.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Hopkins had conferred with Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota at the Stevens hotel on the immediate appropriation of $500,000 of FERA funds for drouth emergency needs in that state. Neither would comment at the close of the conference.

Gov. Olson came to Chicago Friday to present to Mr. Hopkins, visiting the city on a speaking tour, a program requiring $3,500,000 for relief projects in Minnesota. Although the entire program was discussed, the Minnesota Farm-Laborite pressed his request for drouth relief funds. The funds, Gov. Olson said, are needed to meet immediate requirements of farmers in his state.

Also Confers with Hunter.

Mr. Hopkins also conferred during the day with Howard O. Hunter, regional head of the FERA, and Robert J. Dunham, president of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. He was the guest of Gen. Robert E. Wood at dinner before speaking at Highland Park last night.

The presence of Mr. Hopkins, who addressed the Executives' club on Friday and conferred with local relief officials, is believed responsible for the Illinois Relief commission's sudden about face on rent policies. By reason of action taken Friday approving new and liberal policies on the payment of rent for unemployed persons and the treatment of nonfamily men on the relief rolls, an increase of $10,000,000 a year in relief expenditures in Illinois is expected.

Talks Today in Milwaukee.

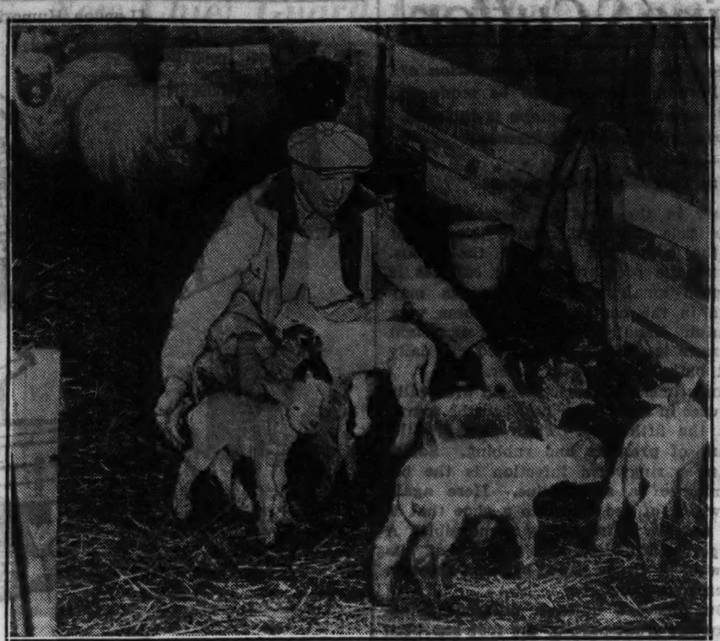
Continuing his speaking tour in the interests of the President's four billion dollar works program, Mr. Hopkins will lecture at noon today before the Milwaukee forum at the Ambassador club, Milwaukee, and in the evening will appear before the community council of Jewish charities at the Covenant club here.

Other speaking engagements of the New Deal emissary include Rosary college, River Forest, 11:30 a. m. Monday; Chicago Junior college, 1:30 p. m. Monday; Northwestern University forum, Thorne hall, Monday night; Bondmen's club, Union League club, Tuesday noon, and the Kankakee League of Women Voters, Kankakee armory, Tuesday night. For all these speeches, Mr. Hopkins has chosen the subject, "From Relief to Work."

AD MEN TO HEAR PROFESSOR.

Harry D. Gideonse, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, will be the speaker at the luncheon of the Advertising Men's post of the American Legion at the Hotel Sherman tomorrow.

46 Lambs Born on Tribune Farm



Some of the 46 lambs born since last Saturday on The Tribune auxiliary experimental farm near Wheaton are shown with John Rawlings, who is being kept on the jump from morning until night taking care of them.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

17 Lambs Born One Night

March 2, 1935.

THE arrival of spring lambs on the Tribune auxiliary farm near Wheaton is the main topic of conversation these days, because the little fellows require considerable attention at first and keep John Rawlings on the jump from morning until night.

So far 46 lambs have been born since last Saturday, not counting the Oxford twins, which arrived two weeks ago. There have been 18 pair of twins among the lambs. Their continuous "baaing," intermingled with the consoling calls of the ewes, are putting a lot of music into the sheepfold.

Rawlings had his busiest time in the sheepfold Wednesday night, when 17 lambs arrived between 8 o'clock in the evening and 11:40 the following morning. The cold weather that prevailed last week made it necessary for some one to be on hand to give attention to the wobbly-legged young ones as soon as they were born, but with the big lambing tent and the sheepfold available the new families are finding dry, protected places to spend their time.

The big pair of Oxford ewes and their two lambs are sort of high-hatting the rest of the sheep these days. They do not mix with the rest of the flock and the bleating lambs. Instead of staying inside the sheepfold or in the big lambing tent this group has moved out into the open space behind Rawlings' house.

Clarence Thurow, manager of the experimental farm near Yorkville, went on a spring shopping trip last week. He came back with 114 steer calves in tow. Except for one jet black Angus calf, all of the animals are white-faced Herefords. The boys have established all of the new calves in the big feed lot near the tall white silo—the space which has been vacant since the farm sold the finished Hereford steers a couple of weeks ago. These new Herefords will be invited to help eat up the silage that is stored in the silos here on the farm, but little do they know that when they have eaten a lot of feed and are nice and plump they will be headed toward their "last roundup" to produce beefsteaks and roasts via a Chicago packing plant.

Thursday was not only moving day for the young Herefords but also for Kenneth Miller of Big Rock. He moved into the home formerly occupied by Eddie Johnson on the south side of the Fox river, near Louis Thurow's home. Johnson has taken over the farmhouse on the north side of the river, which commands a view of broad fields sloping to the tree fringed river bank. Miller is the new addition to the staf of workers here on the farm.

The four turkeys here on the farm still consider a certain apple tree in the orchard their private property. Not even the cold snap last week could make them budge from their favorite roosting location. The other night, when the temperature was 27 degrees and it was anything but an ideal evening for sitting on a limb out in the open where the biting winds were blowing, I found the "turks" perched in the tree as contentedly as if it were midsummer. Only the position of their heads and the way they fluff their feathers tells you how chilly it is. The smart turkeys take no chances on getting their noses frostbitten. When they get settled for the night they bury their heads in their feathers.

PHYSICIAN'S AID RELATES STORY OF GIRL'S DEATH

Mrs. Mossie Crockett, 1157 Belmont avenue, office assistant to Dr. Frank R. Braune, 306 South Wabash avenue, appeared at the state's attorney's office yesterday with Attorney Francis Kennedy and told of being present when an alleged illegal operation was performed on Miss Marie Dwyer, who died last Tuesday. Dr. Braune and Dr. Maurice Dale, 3368 Harrison street, were charged with murder by abortion following Miss Dwyer's death, and are at liberty on $10,000 bail.

Mrs. Crockett, according to state's attorney's assistants, said the operation was "bungled" and that the two doctors quarreled, after which Dr. Dale hurried away and Dr. Braune arranged to have Miss Dwyer taken to a hospital. Later, Mrs. Crockett told Assistant States Attorneys Irwin Clorfene and Benjamin Nelson, she was first promised "to be well taken care of" if she told a certain story. She said she later received threats that she would be killed if she told the truth.

The prosecutors arranged to have police protection for Mrs. Crockett. They decided to wait till tomorrow to question the persons named by her. At that time a third doctor said to have been present at the time of the operation, also will be questioned. Miss Dwyer had told police, previous to the operation, that Dr. Dale was her sweetheart, the prosecutors declared.

STATE COLLECTS 3 MILLION SALES TAX IN FEBRUARY

Revenue totaling $3,173,080 was collected by the state from the sales tax for February, K. L. Ames Jr., director of finance, announced yesterday. The amount was $352,635 in excess of the sales tax revenue for the corresponding month of 1934. The number of returns for last month was 126,752, showing that 2,653 new taxpayers had been placed on the books.

FOOD AND DRUG INTERESTS WAR ON TUGWELL BILL

Control Over Industries Held Too Drastic.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—Representatives of baking, ice cream production, confectioners, and medicine appeared before a senate subcommittee today to protest against provisions of the proposed food, drugs, and cosmetic act.

The bill which was written last year by Rexford Guy Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture, and Walter G. Campbell, chief of the food and drug administration, has undergone five revisions, but the legislation still contains broad powers for the secretary of agriculture in holding drastic control over the sale and advertising of foods and drugs.

President Henry Stude of the American Bakers' association told the subcommittee that it was virtually impossible for the baking industry to meet some of the proposed regulations. He contended for example that sections of the bill dealing with "standard of quality" and artificial flavoring or coloring would be meaningless in the 20,000 units of his industry.

Bake for Different Tastes.

"There is a difference in ingredients put into cakes, breads and rolls, depending on the individual bakery and also the consumer taste of various parts of the country," said Stude.

There was no need, Stude maintained, to call a food misbranded under the terms of the bill when artificial flavors, colors or chemical preservatives were not listed on the label when these did no harm and only enhanced the product.

Another protest against the labeling of flavors and colors was lodged by Robert C. Hibben, executive secretary of the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers. He claimed that ice cream was a dairy product like butter and discrimination would work a hardship on the industry.

The drastic injunction and seizure provisions of the act were attacked by W. P. Jacobs, general manager of the Institute of Medicine Manufacturers. Jacobs declared that too much power would be placed in the hands of the secretary of agriculture.

Action Up to Committee.

Senator Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.], sponsor of the bill, interrupted to say that matters would be passed on by a committee appointed by the President.

Returning to his argument, Jacobs said that regulation of advertising should remain in the hands of the federal trade commission, that placing the control of food, drug, and cosmetic advertising under the secretary of agriculture would mean a duplication of functions.

Heated words were exchanged near the close of the hearing when Arthur Kallet, secretary of the Consumers Research Bureau, Inc., of New Jersey, was denied permission to criticize Senator Copeland for making a radio talk advertising a medical commodity.

As Kallet sought to speak he was cut off by Senator Bennett Champ Clark [Dem., Mo.] who informed him his testimony was finished. Kallet replied by terming Clark the "American Hitler" who was putting Americans in jeopardy. Clark, angered by the remark, threatened to have Kallet ejected from the committee room.

BOLD 'JACK RABBIT'S' NERVOUS UPSET WINS ONLY CENT DAMAGES

Dallas, Tex., March 2.—(AP)—A jury appraised at one cent today the jangling suffered by Marvel [Jack Rabbit] Moore's nerves when he was captured by a fake bandit trio.

Moore asked $995 damages of three young acquaintances who testified they merely had sought to check up on what Moore told them he would do if he ever met Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, Texas desperado couple slain by officers in Louisiana last year.

Attorneys for the defendants made a business during the trial of snapping the toy pistol flourished when the three picked Moore up on a highway. Moore said his nerves had never been the same since two of the youths identified themselves as Barrow and Bonnie, who at the time still were alive.

The defense brought out testimony that Moore acquired his nickname of "Jack Rabbit" by telling that when he went hunting he would chase one down on foot, feel of it to determine if it was fat enough, and if it were not, throw it aside and take out after another.

PREACHER POLITICIANS.

The appearance of a determined resistance to the influence of socialist clergymen in American churches is an encouraging sign of the times. This influence has been taking an organized form with public pronouncements upon economics, political and legal questions such as party platforms deal with. All of these pronouncements have attacked the American order and proposed socialistic theories and measures. In short, it was becoming evident that at least a minority of clergymen is bent upon bringing the churches into the political arena and directing their powerful moral influence toward transforming the American democratic republic into a socialist state.

This is a development of the gravest import, both to the nation and to its religious life. In some denominations it has been confined to individuals. In others it has reached the stage of an organized activity especially mischievous among youth. We have never believed it represented the conviction either of the majority of the clergy or the mass of the adult laity, even in the denomination in which it was most aggressive. But the church membership and clergy which though loyal to American principles were being committed ostensibly to socialist revolution have naturally hesitated to engage in controversy which does not belong in the church. The point has now apparently been reached when resistance is recognized as imperative. Dr. Evans, religious editor of THE TRIBUNE, reports the withdrawal of the Belden Avenue Baptist church, one of the largest in the city, from the Northern Baptist convention on the ground that that body is tending toward the cordial espousal of state socialism, if not communism, which is in fact the logical objective of all forms of socialism. Even more encouraging is his report of the organization of a new Baptist convention to oppose the influence of clerical socialism, an organization which in two years has gained a membership of about two hundred congregations of that denomination. Individual voices of protest in other communions are heard with increasing frequency, but it is essential that the loyal clergy and laity put forth their united influence to prevent the authoritative representation of their denominations from becoming political instrumentalities and in that new rôle propagandists and active agents of socialism in the United States.

There can be no shadow of doubt that when ministers of religion attempt to use their sacred office and influence to spread and effectuate political and economic ideas they are bringing division into their flocks and disparaging their own authority as religious guides. Church membership is founded on common religious beliefs and includes a diversity of political, economic and social opinions. The socialistic preachers who attempt to make their church organizations agencies of political action are usurping an authority for which they are not consecrated by the church nor even elected by their laity. By bringing political, economic and social problems within the doors of the church they are insuring discord where there should be harmony and justified revolt where there should be obedience. We think the preachers who are willing to accomplish this do not belong in the pulpit and should not be permitted to use its authority for political power.

No doubt these recruits of Marxism, like the members of "Christian Socialist" parties in Europe, expect to be able to control the socialist state when they have established it and thus save the extinction of religion which the chief philosophers of the socialist movement demanded. Where communism has won its way to rule the church has been drastically suppressed, and state socialism is the vestibule of communism. Atheism is taught youth as vital to the defense of the Red revolution, as in Russia and Mexico. The socialist preacher politicians are headed down that path toward their own certain extinction. Under the institutions they would have us abandon the church has lived with a freedom from extraneous interference it enjoys in few other countries and cannot preserve if it is thrust into politics by preacher politicians. If the churches enter this arena, conflict for power, as well as internal discord, is unavoidable and freedom of conscience will cease to be in this land.

TRANS-ATLANTIC AIRWAYS.

In the Graphic Section of today's CHICAGO TRIBUNE will be found full details of inaugural flights over the Pacific ocean scheduled for April that will be undertaken by Sikorsky's flying boat, the Clipper Pioneer, from San Francisco to Canton, China, via Hawaii, Midway Island, Wake Island, Guam, and Manila. It will be the momentous occasion of more than six years of effort by American airplane manufacturers and designers, and this indication of the advance of air transportation is nothing short of wonderful.

But why should we procrastinate on Atlantic ocean service? Within two weeks we editorially drew attention to the statements made in the British house of commons that flying boats for trans-Atlantic service had been ordered by the British Imperial Airways. Now comes news that there is nearing completion at Toulouse, France, a giant seaplane with accommodations for sixty-four passengers and a cruising range of twenty-eight hundred miles "for service between South and North America and France."

With our commanding lead in aviation design, manufacture and navigation, are we going to let this opportunity for air supremacy over the Atlantic slip through our fingers?

THE TVA RACKET.

With the perfection of electric power toward the end of the last century, hydro-electric plants sprang into great popularity. Pioneers in the science rapidly secured the most favorable sites and made profits commensurate to their enterprise. The public investor crowded to share in what appeared to be the processes of nature. In less than a generation all the sites which could be operated profitably in competition with the steam plants of the day came into the hands of operating companies. But long after great improvements in steam made power had been developed the rush to own and operate water power continued. It is safe to say that all power sites capable of profitable development had been developed twenty years ago.

By this time there were charlatans and confidence men, as well as real estate racketeers, promoting water power sites, but the investing public was becoming saturated. The only refuge which remained to those who wished to prey upon the public was to dress their wrongdoings in the clothes of public service and by political manipulation to extort from the taxpayers the sums that individuals would no longer grant of their own free will.

During the war spoils politicians and real estate swindlers secured an appropriation to build a dam and power plant at Muscle Shoals on the Tennessee river. The federal expenditure, as is so frequently the case in federal expenditures, was entirely wasted. It was a viciously impractical scheme and never could and never would begin to pay even the cost of the depreciation and maintenance of the work.

From this evil soil sprang the TVA. It is a plan to build water power plants in an inaccessible country where uses for power are small, where raw materials are almost nonexistent, where the entire country is underlaid with coal, and where the natural demands for power have been oversupplied.

The plan is successful in supplying high priced employment to unscrupulous demagogs unable and unwilling to earn an honest living, and in nothing else.

The controversy which is now in the courts arises from the fact that the entire market for power is being supplied by the existing companies and the TVA has sought to force them to turn their distributing facilities over to it so that it may replace the workmen employed in the going concerns with its political appointees and that the investors in the companies may be robbed of their investments.

The TVA is as much worse than any of the fraudulent power schemes that have been so copiously denounced as robbery with a gun is worse than fraud. In the latter case there is the chance to refuse to be fooled. In the former the taxpayer is deprived of property through legislative and administrative extortion to produce soft living for political desperadoes engaged in projects without even the color of economic usefulness.

AN IMMUTABLE LAW.

A bill has been introduced in the New York legislature to remove from illegitimate children the stigma of namelessness. If the bill is enacted every child must have a surname. If the unmarried mother cannot or will not supply one for the birth certificate, the attending doctor must invent one.

All of which may be taken as the text for a brief essay in biology. For a generation and more the effort has been made in this country to repeal biological law and its corollaries in sexual morality. In spite of these efforts the task of child bearing still devolves upon women. All that was said in favor of the so-called single standard seems not to have altered the customary biological rôles of men and women.

The propaganda for a single standard was put forward, nominally at least, with a view to elevating the morality of men. They were to be obliged to observe a rule of chastity as strict as that which law and custom had imposed upon women. In retrospect it can now be seen that the results of the campaign were not those which many good people had expected. If there has been any change in sexual morality—and many observers are convinced there has been a profound change—it has been in the direction of making man's traditional standard, rather than woman's, the commonly accepted one.

Certainly the problem of illegitimacy has not disappeared from the face of the earth, as some enthusiasts a generation ago expected. The proposed New York law may serve to mitigate some of the misery of the child born out of wedlock, but the fundamental cause of the child's unhappiness will remain. Law may give him a name and force his father, if paternity can be determined, to make provision for his upbringing, but it cannot make the mother, in countless instances, regard him as anything but a nuisance and an advertisment of her shame. A child brought up in such an atmosphere starts with a dreadful handicap which many will find wholly impossible to overcome.

The rule of chastity which women are called upon to obey is not an arbitrary tyranny, as many advocates of woman's political and economic rights have been confused into thinking. Chastity is imposed upon women as a consequence of unalterable biological fact. Experience over many generations has taught that the rule is necessary to assure the physical and mental welfare of the offspring.

CIVILIZATION AND THE MASS MIND

[Extracts from "The Revolt of the Masses," by José Ortega y Gasset, member of the Spanish parliament and one of the leaders of the republican movement in Spain. Authorized translation published by W. W. Norton & Co., New York.]

What appearance did life present to that multitudinous man who in ever-increasing abundance the nineteenth century kept producing? To start with, an appearance of universal material ease. Never had the average man been able to solve his economic problem with greater facility. Whilst there was a proportionate decrease of great fortunes and life became harder for the individual worker, the middle classes found their economic horizon widened every day. Every day added a new luxury to their standard of life. Every day their position was more secure and more independent of another's will. What before would have been considered one of fortune's gifts, inspiring humble gratitude toward destiny, was converted into a right not to be grateful for but to be insisted on.

From 1900 on the worker likewise begins to extend and assure his existence. Nevertheless he has to struggle to obtain his end. He does not, like the middle class, find the benefit attentively served up to him by a society and a state which are a marvel of organization. To this ease and security of economic conditions are to be added the physical ones, comfort and public order.

Life runs on smooth rails and there is no likelihood of anything violent or dangerous breaking in on it. Such a free, untrammeled situation was bound to instill into the depths of such souls an idea of existence which might be expressed in the witty and penetrating phrase of an old country like ours: "Wide is Castile." That is to say, in all its primary and decisive aspects life presented itself to the new man as exempt from restrictions. The realization of this fact and of its importance becomes immediate when we remember that such a freedom of existence was entirely lacking to the common men of the past. On the contrary, for them life was a burdensome destiny, economically and physically. From birth existence meant to them an accumulation of impediments which they were obliged to suffer, without possible solution other than to adapt themselves to them, to settle down in the narrow space they left available.

But still more evident is the contrast of situations, if we pass from the material to the civil and moral. The average man, from the second half of the nineteenth century on, finds no social barriers raised against him. That is to say, that as regards the forms of public life he no longer finds himself from birth confronted with obstacles and limitations. There is nothing to force him to limit his existence. Here again, "Wide is Castile." There are no "estates" or "castes." There are no civil privileges. The ordinary man learns that all men are equal before the law. . . . We are, in fact, confronted with a radical innovation in human destiny, implanted by the nineteenth century. A new stage has been mounted for human existence, new both in the physical and the social aspects. Three principles have made possible this new world: liberal democracy, scientific experiment, and industrialism. . . .

The world which surrounds the new man from his birth does not compel him to limit himself in any fashion, it sets up no veto in opposition to him; on the contrary, it incites his appetite, which in principle can increase indefinitly. Now it turns out—and this is most important—that this world of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries not only has the perfections and the completeness which it actually possesses but furthermore suggests to those who dwell in the radical assurance that tomorrow it will be still richer, ampler, more perfect, as if it enjoyed a spontaneous, inexhaustible power of increase. Even today, in spite of some signs which are making a tiny breach in that sturdy faith, even today there are few men who doubt that motor cars will in five years' time be more comfortable and cheaper than today. They believe in this as they believe that the sun will rise in the morning. The metaphor is an exact one. For in fact the common man, finding himself in a world so excellent, technically and socially, believes that it has been produced by nature, and never thinks of the personal efforts of highly endowed individuals which the creation of this new world presupposed. Still less will he admit the notion that all these facilities still require the support of certain difficult human virtues, the least failure of which would cause the rapid disappearance of the whole magnificent edifice.

This leads us to note down in our psychological chart of the mass-man of today two fundamental traits: the free expansion of his vital desires and therefore of his personality, and his radical ingratitude toward all that has made possible the ease of his existence. These traits together make up the well known psychology of the spoilt child. And in fact it would entail no error to use this psychology as a "sight" through which to observe the soul of the masses of today. Heir to an ample and generous past—generous both in ideals and in activities—the new commonalty has been spoiled by the world around it. To spoil means to put no limit on caprice, to give one the impression that everything is permitted to him and that he has no obligations. The young child exposed to this régime has no experience of its own limits. By reason of the removal of all external restraint, all clashing with other things, he comes actually to believe that he is the only one that exists and gets used to not considering others, especially not considering them as superior to himself. This feeling of another's superiority could only be instilled into him by some one who, being stronger than he is, should force him to give up some desire, to restrict himself, to restrain himself. He would then have learned this fundamental discipline: "Here I end and here begins another more powerful than I am. In the world apparently there are two people: I, myself, and another superior to me." The ordinary man of past times was daily taught this elemental wisdom by the world about him, because it was a world so rudely organized that catastrophes were frequent and there was nothing in it certain, abundant, stable. But the new masses find themselves in the presence of a prospect full of possibilities and furthermore quite secure, with everything ready to their hands, independent of any previous efforts on their part, just as we find the sun in the heavens without our hoisting it up on our shoulders. No human being thanks another for the air he breathes, for no one has produced the air for him; it belongs to the sum total of what "is there," of which we say "it is natural" because it never fails. And these spoiled masses are unintelligent enough to believe that the material and social organization, placed at their disposition like air, is of the same origin, since apparently it never fails them and is almost as perfect as the natural scheme of things.

My thesis therefore is this: the very perfection with which the nineteenth century gave an organization to certain orders of existence has caused the masses benefited thereby to consider it, not as an organized but as a natural system. Thus is explained and defined the absurd state of mind revealed by these masses; they are only concerned with their own well-being, and at the same time they remain alien to the cause of that well-being. As they do not see, behind the benefits of civilization, marvels of invention and construction which can only be maintained by great effort and foresight, they imagine that their rôle is limited to demanding these benefits peremptorily as if they were natural rights. In the disturbances caused by scarcity of food the mob goes in search of bread and the means it employs is generally to wreck the bakeries. This may serve as a symbol of the attitude adopted, on a greater and more complicated scale, by the masses of today toward the civilization by which they are supported.

SOME FOOT TROUBLES.

ALTHOUGH some persons regard corns with "pride of possession," most of us disdain their existence. It is related that a certain individual refused to have his corns removed because they functioned as a weather forecasting station. A change in humidity may bring about a swelling in the base of the corn, and hence an increase in pressure and pain. This accounts for their weather prophesying properties.

A corn is a thickening of the skin with a spikelike central extension of hard, horny substance [keratin] into the deeper skin layers. It is this projection pressing against a nerve that sometimes causes excruciating pain.

Both corns and calluses are formed because the skin attempts to protect the underlying structures from pressure and friction. Corns are not always caused by ill-fitting shoes, although tight footwear may be responsible for undue pressure on some bone or joint, or for a disturbed balance of the foot. Occasionally stockings that are too short compel the toes to curl, just as shoes that are too short may cramp them.

In order to avoid corns the pads of the toes must be free from restraint. Furthermore, unless the individual has the "feel of the ground" on all of his toes his shoes are probably ill fitting. In this respect women's shoes are often at fault. For example, in a high heeled shoe much of the pressure is likely to rest upon the ball of the foot, and the individual gives the impression of walking on a foot from which the toes have been removed. The guiding feel of the toes is lost, and the tendency to center the weight on the ball of the foot leads to the development of a jerky gait. If the toes are not used, a smooth, graceful stride is impossible. The footwear should be wide enough across the ball to permit the bones to rest firmly upon the sole and not upon an outward bulging portion of the upper part of the shoe.

Corns may be relieved by removing a portion of the hardened area and by preventing the rub and pressure through the use of small doughnut shaped pads. Applications of a weak solution of salicylic acid or of a paste containing salicylic acid will help to soften the hard, horny layer. Then, by prolonged soaking in hot water, the corn may loosen and be removed.

Calluses on the bottom of the foot are usually relieved by means of pads placed in the shoe or fastened to an inner sole that will receive the weight of the body just back of the callus. Unless the pressure causing calluses is relieved small areas of necrosis may form in the center which become very painful. Usually readjustment of weight pressure is all that is required. A daily foot bath is always in order.

Sometimes soft corns, which are really calluses in type, occur between the fourth and the fifth toes. They also are the result of pressure and rubbing. Sometimes a ringworm infection is the beginning of a soft callus. Here again crowding of the toes into a shoe that is too narrow is frequently responsible. A proper width shoe and the use of bits of wool or tissue paper between the toes often give relief.

Bunions are quite a different thing. Here the front part of the foot has been caused to spread because of undue strain, producing what is called splayfoot. In such cases the front part of the foot becomes very broad and there is an increasing amount of pressure over the base of the large toe. The joint structure may become inflamed and a bunion results, sometimes with an actual overgrowth of bone.

The other day at the Symphony I sat next a lady who no sooner had taken her seat than she slyly removed her slippers, uttering at the same time a profound sigh of relief. Of course I dared not look at her feet, but I will wager that she had not only corns but a bunion in the making.

DESTRUCTION OF JOINT.

Mrs. K. W. writes: Please write something about ankylosis of the bone, and if there is any treatment.

REPLY.

We never refer to ankylosis of the bone, but of the joint. This means that a disease has attacked a part of the body where two bones come together, and has destroyed the joint. The result is that the two bones grow together, making movement impossible. When the bones are firmly fixed together they are said to be ankylosed. When there is a little movement ankylosis is said to be partial. Treatment is possible in certain cases and requires the services of an expert bone surgeon.

MIGRAINE.

Mrs. F. W. writes: I suffer greatly with migraine and, being a very busy woman, I can only stay in bed long enough to be able to see again. I get numb all over, have only half vision, and I can't think or talk. Can any relief be obtained?

REPLY.

In a recent study sixty per cent of those afflicted with migraine were helped by chondroitin. Your physician may try this in your case.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Queen Mary's brother, the Earl of Athlone, it is understood, has been asked to be the next viceroy of India.

The earl has been one of the most successful governors general that South Africa has had in post-war years. It is pointed out that he had to tackle a big race question in Africa between the British and the Dutch; a color question between both these and the natives, and an immigration question regarding the right of British Indians to enter the South African union as settlers. He succeeded in retaining the allegiance of the British and the Dutch and was a personal friend of both Gen. Hertzog, the nationalist, and Mr. Sastri, the Indian leader.

The earl left for India recently. He will stay for a month with Lord Willingdon, the present viceroy. He will subsequently tour the country and meet prominent Indian princes and political leaders. He will then give his answer to the king as to whether he will take on the most onerous task he has yet attempted. He has already spent six years in India as a cavalry officer.

There is behind this appointment the shadow of a "new deal" for India, of which so far little has leaked out in the British press. Recently for the first time the ruler of the Gurkhas, the king of Nepal, was dubbed "his majesty" by the British government, removed from the orbit of the India office to the foreign office, and permitted to establish full diplomatic relations with the Court of St. James's and foreign countries as well, while sending only a consul general to the viceroy. By this step the ruler of the most martial race in India was placed outside the feudatories of India, who on matters of defense and armaments are bound by the engagements entered into by the British government.

The five major princes of India, who already receive a salute of twenty-one guns—the full salute for any chief of state—are to be promoted to full sovereignty in the same way, with the same motive.

The five princes are the nizam of Hyderabad, believed to be the richest man in the world and the ruler of 14,000,000 subjects; the maharajah of Kashmir, whose territory is larger than Italy and touches the Russian and Chinese frontiers; the maharajah of Mysore, the ruler of a state so far advanced industrially that it maintains trade commissioners in London and northern Europe; the gaekwar of Baroda, who has a large stretch of seaboard, and the youthful maharajah of Gwalior, named George Rao, after the British king. He holds the fortress of Gwalior in central India, universally acknowledged to be the strategic "key to India" on which all railroads, highways and telegraph wires converge.

These kings will automatically become allies of King George V., and be introduced by him to the league of nations. They will cease all further dealings, except financial and economic ones through consuls, with the viceroy and maintain ministers plenipotentiary in London and receive envoys, serving the foreign office, at their courts.

The rulers of Hyderabad and Mysore have both for years been asking for the restoration of territories which they claim. Instead of receiving these back they are to get territorial access to the sea. Thus the two greatest principalities of India will become maritime, while the third already is. They will have the right to maintain fleets commensurate with their responsibilities; which in practice, if not in theory, will be nothing but auxiliaries of the royal Indian navy, formed by act of parliament this year.

These new kings will not be bound by any engagements entered into by the British government. Their full sovereignty will be communicated to the powers.

Indians attach so much value to full kingship that it is considered desirable that in view of this change in the status of the "big five" of India, the next representative of the emperor should himself be of such rank that he cannot be overshadowed. Hence, the tryout visit of Lord Athlone before the next step.

Admiral Walwyn, who commanded the Indian station for five years, recently returned to Britain with a lugubrious report. He said the entire coast of India could be swept successfully by the Japanese fleet. It is largely due to him that the royal Indian navy has come into being. It is also due to him, it is affirmed, that the government of India has done a somersault in its policy, which up to now has been to keep the big princes away from the sea, and thereby to lessen their independence.

The position of the big princes changed the day Britain went off the gold standard. Their hoards are phenomenal. Not a week passes in which $12,500,000 of princely hoardings are not shipped from Bombay to London. Some weeks the shipments are double. In January shipments were over $53,000,000.

Their wealth is to provide the sinews of new naval strength to Great Britain. So far as federation goes, for these new kingdoms it will mean nothing more than a customs union, with full autonomy in every respect.

SETTLING ESTATE.

Hammond, Ind., Feb. 20. — [Legal Friend of the People.]—A, a widow, dies intestate in Indiana, survived by four children, all of age. She left a mortgaged home, but no debts except for the mortgage, and no cash. 1. Is it necessary to appoint an executor? 2. If so, is there a specified time for doing so? 3. If not necessary, what is the simplest form of a friendly settlement among the four children? N. M.

1. Ordinarily it is advisable to probate the estate where real estate is involved. Where the deceased did not leave a will, a personal representative appointed by the court is called an administrator.

2. No, in the sense that probate can be entirely dispensed with in some cases.

3. Before deciding not to probate, we suggest that you go over all the facts in a personal interview with an attorney. The advisability of your decision depends on how soon you may wish to sell.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MAKE NEW WILL.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Two months ago I signed bonds for $7,500 bail for my son. When the bonds were released the lawyer I employed had five forms for me to sign. My brother was present. He has not spoken to me for two years. I signed these papers, but did not read them. Now I am afraid that on account of the presence of my brother I signed papers turning my property or money over to him, and on this account I cannot trust the lawyer. Is there any way in case of my death that I could forestall any efforts my brother might make to collect anything from my estate, as I owe him nothing? He could not collect while I am alive so I would like to make out papers or a form to insure the proper administration of my estate. M. S.

If you are afraid that one of the instruments might have been a will you can cover this point by executing a new will expressly revoking all previous wills. It is difficult to advise what steps to take without having any clew as to the dangers to be guarded against. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

THE FUTURE OF THE G. O. P.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—If the Republican party expects to cut any figure in the 1936 national election, it's high time that Herbert Hoover, young Teddy, and the rest of the old guard beat a strategic retreat and fade out of the picture altogether.

Every interview, speech, and article they give, make, or write only adds to the prospects of the party's not getting anywhere.

If success is to be obtained, there must be a new, vigorous, intelligent, progressive leadership or else the organization is doomed to follow in the footsteps of the old Whig party, which rightly went into oblivion for the lack of it.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

Oak Park, Ill., Feb. 27.—On Monday night many a woman of near 70 heard over the radio Frances Perkins in her exposition of the bill for old age pensions as formulated by the accredited committee of which she is chairman.

Thousands, I am sure, were left sick at heart from disappointment, deprived of the last hope of a secure and measurably dignified old age. For in this bill only indigents, the destitute, are considered.

I am fortunately, or perhaps unfortunately, not in that class. I have a house where I have lived many years. There is a small mortgage with its attending interest adding to the ever intending interest adding to the ever inand the small savings are reduced to a sum adequate only for the last need.

But what of the interim? That's the question, and a more desperate one than that faced by the melancholy Dane.

This bill, however, is not passed. Until it is there still remains hope, hope which keeps our head unbowed, even a smile on our lips in the face of so tragic a situation.

To meet this pension problem two solutions have been presented, the seemingly fantastic one of $200 per month and the other of $30 per month. Is it possible the government can do no better in this emergency? The destitute are always with us and should be cared for. But many whose uncertainty of the future is the result of present deplorable conditions are disregarded. But there are miracles in this wonderful 20th century. Witness the radio. Might there not be another? The conception in some fertile brain of an Aristotelian happy mean.

PUBLISHING INCOME RETURNS.

Robinson, Ill., Feb. 26.—The civil war, Spanish war and world war veterans are getting a big kick out of the howl put up by a certain class of our people to congress against the law which provides for the publishing of the names of our income tax payers and the amount of the tax they pay. Strangely coincident is the fact that those who are doing this howling are the same identical persons who are howling equally as loud to publish the names of all war veterans who are drawing compensation and pensions and the amount they draw from the government.

Now these human beings claim if the income tax list is published it will encourage kidnaping, robberies and sluggings. Don't you think these feeble old civil war veterans and aged Spanish war veterans and sickly wrecks of the world war won't also be in great danger of being kidnaped, robbed, slugged, etc., when their names appear with their monthly "raids on the treasury" of $12 to $90 a month? WM. E BRADBURY,

THE LIQUOR INDUSTRY'S CODE.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Thanks to those senators who have taken steps toward protecting constitutional rights and freedom in the United States by starting an investigation of the NRA and code rackets!

However, they omitted one important code, that of the liquor industry, which is the biggest racket of them all. They collect 1 cent per gallon from distilleries, rectifiers, jobbers, and small wholesalers —three and four times on the same gallon. Should any one refuse to pay those assessments they have a system whereby that person's name appears in bulletins and he is boycotted from buying and selling. That isn't all. They use the FACA to help collect their unjust assessments!

If the state and the internal revenue bureau recognize you as a wholesaler and you keep government records and do business in accordance with the government requirements the code authorities still say you cannot do business as a wholesaler, threaten suit if you do, hire a lot of snoopers, grant a lot of favors to themselves including soft executive jobs—all this is done with the money they collect. And they call it a code of fair competition! They don't know the meaning of "fair." They don't even have a fair mind, let alone a fair policy. They merely interfere with a man's rights of doing business and try to force him out unless he pays them what they ask.

What becomes of these thousands upon thousands of dollars collected by the so-called code authorities?

If the government refuses to appropriate money for investigation purposes, every man engaged in the wholesale liquor industry should contribute for that cause, because if they keep on as they have been doing we will have to forget that there is such a thing as a constitution and constitutional rights existing in this country. P. R

WAR AND BUSINESS.

Fulton, Ill., Feb. 27.—The editorial, "The Legion Is Misled," which appeared in THE TRIBUNE of Feb. 26, is itself misleading. For the sake of argument, let us grant that Big Business does not cause war; does that alter the fact that it does profit from war? Do the cold pages of history show that Big Business is in the habit of standing in the way of its profits? Plainly, has Big Business ever preferred peace to profits?

Even if Big Business does not cause war, what of it? Do the 20 year olds who are conscripted in wartime cause the conflicts? If it is, or leads to, communism for Big Business to be conscripted, what is it, or what does it lead to for the citizen soldiers? The soldiers lose all individuality; they go through hell for no personal profit. The ex-laborer receives the same compensation [thirty dollars per month] as the highly trained, well educated private who marches by his side. If this is not communism, what is it? And is communism more horrible for a few thousand stay at home millionaires than it is for the millions of men who fill the trenches?

While this writer is as unanxious to see the coming of socialism or communism as is THE TRIBUNE, he does not hold capitalism to be sacred. PASQUINO.

THEFTS OF CLOTHING.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—What about the constant thefts of clothing going on in the high schools? No real effort is made to stamp this out. My son's new coat, cap, and gloves were stolen from his locker at the Hyde Park High school.

HITLER EXTENDS HIGH HONOR TO BRITISH CHIEFS

Offers "White House" to Simon for Residence.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 2.—The Anglo-German conference which will open here Thursday will have an important but hidden angle involving American and world prosperity. England and Germany will seek ways and means of achieving international stabilization of currencies, without which, they say, there can be no revival of world trade.

Both England, which went through a mild inflation, and Germany, which suffered greatly from inflation, seem to be heading back toward prosperity. They believe that if the United States could be induced to join in a stabilization move the worst part of the world crisis would be ended and business men would be able to plan the future without fearing tricks by money jugglers.

Seek Bloc Against Japan.

The British and Germans also believe stabilization of currencies would make it possible for the powers to outline a joint program for division of the world market to counteract Japanese dumping.

To stress the importance of the English visit, Germany's foreign minister, Baron Konstantin von Neurath, today offered Germany's white house, former home of the late President Paul von Hindenburg, as a residence for Sir John Simon, the British foreign secretary, and his aids during their stay in Berlin. Reichsfuehrer Hitler lives almost next door in the chancellery.

Sir John and Capt. Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal, will remain in Berlin from Thursday to Sunday. Although their stay will be short, diplomatic circles believe the ground has been so well prepared that they will be able to come to an understanding with the Germans on the question uppermost in their minds besides stabilization — the proposed European air pact, under which the signatories would go to the aid of any one of them attacked by air.

Guarantees an Obstacle.

The main difficulty centers around guarantees for an air convention. Great Britain favors strict international control of air forces. France does not like the idea of international mutual control, nor does Germany. If Germany accepts, then, diplomats believe, France will be compelled to abandon its resistance. It would strengthen Prime Minister MacDonald's hand in negotiations with France.

As a reward for coöperation in an air pact Germany has been told by the men preparing the conference that England will pay with big concessions in the question of an eastern security pact. Germany objects strenuously to an eastern pact, saying it is so involved it would represent a danger to Europe. Germany has found a friendly echo in Britain. The plan now is to avoid the question as much as possible.

French, Lithuanian, and Czechoslovakian diplomats here assert that the German objection to the eastern pact proves that Germany is working for expansion along the eastern borders. They point to the German campaign against Lithuania and Czechoslovakia as proof of the German desire for eastern expansion.

Austria a Touchy Subject.

The question of Austrian independence is also a touchy subject, and diplomats plan to treat it like an "uncooked egg." The German Nazis insist they are not agitating in Austria. Well informed persons say Austria is seething with Nazi fever, which is increasing steadily as the date for Austria's presidential election draws nearer.

The proposed arms convention plays a secondary rôle to the air pact in the diplomatic preparation for the Anglo-German conference. Statesmen assume that, once the air pact is settled, it will be easier to come to terms on a general arms convention.

WOMAN, 2 MEN BEATEN AS NAZI SHIP VISITS U. S.

San Francisco, Cal., March 2.—(AP)—Two men and a woman were beaten severely today in a disturbance as the German training cruiser Karlsruhe docked on a visit to San Francisco.

Police arrested James Labetaro, who was identified as a longshoreman. The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kerstan and the latter's brother, N. Brown.

A crowd gathered as officers and men from the cruiser landed. All men in uniform were booed. One was a United States naval officer, whose name was not learned.

"You don't know a United States officer from a German," said Mrs. Kerstan.

A woman leaped from the crowd and slapped her. Kerstan came to his wife's rescue. Three men then leaped on him, one knocking him down. Brown tried to help his brother-in-law, but in turn was felled. The attackers then mixed with the crowd as police intervened.

SAAR CONTINUES TO CELEBRATE ITS RETURN TO REICH

Dazzling Fireworks Flare Into Sky.

SAARBRUECKEN, Germany, March 2.—(AP)—Rudolf Hess, Adolf Hitler's closest friend, rode about the still-celebrating Saar today to the accompaniment of ovations scarcely less enthusiastic than those der fuehrer received yesterday.

All roads along his 120-mile circuit were lined with thousands of country folk, jubilant like their city cousins over the Saar's return to Germany, who were anxious to get glimpses of Hess.

At all important points honor committees awaited the minister without portfolio, who is Hitler's personal representative in Nazi party matters. He replied to their addresses of welcome.

Fireworks Flare into Sky.

The holiday spirit that pervaded the Saar for yesterday's formal transfer of the territory to Germany lasted throughout today. Giant fireworks, postponed when it rained yesterday, flared in the sky tonight in celebration.

No one showed any anxiety to get back to work. Children, their holiday continuing, were treated with pretzels, while souvenir books were presented the older ones.

An estimated 20,000 persons tramped through inches of mud in Saarbruecken streets all last night vainly seeking places to sleep. Visitors estimated at more than 300,000 had far overtaxed the little city's accommodations.

Picks Aid to Governor.

Hitler, who came unexpectedly to the Saar yesterday to head the celebration and link an appeal for peace in Europe with his welcome to the homecoming Saarlanders, today appointed Philip Wilhelm Jung, deputy general to Joseph Buerckel, the Saar's new governor.

A war veteran, Jung is 50 years old. Since 1933 he has been premier of Hesse where he had served the Nazi cause during nine previous years in various capacities, including the presidency of the Hesse diet.

HITLER PLANS TO HAVE 'EVANGELICS MINISTRY' TO GOVERN CHURCH

BERLIN, March 2.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler was reliably reported tonight to be considering creation of the post of "minister in evangelics" to put punch in his two year old effort to make the Protestant church toe the Nazi mark. Bernard Rust, now minister of culture, was said to be under consideration for the position.

Hitler in recent talks with Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller is reported to have discussed this plan. Mueller explained one reason for his failure as "dictator" of the church to unify it was the fact that he had no temporal executive power.

Should the plan for Rust's appointment materialize the German Evangelical church would become a state church, which is exactly to what the opposition organized in the confessional synod objects. Church circles see grave trouble ahead, especially since Rust is an opponent of confessional schools.

The Roman Catholic church, too, is watching the situation with anxiety. The appointment of a minister for Protestant affairs would give the Protestant church a preferred position, different from the one of equality with Catholics, such as has prevailed.

Edith Atkin Named Head of State Teachers' Division

Normal, Ill., March 2.—(AP)—The central division of the Illinois State Teachers' association elected Miss Edith Atkin, associate professor of mathematics of Normal university, president yesterday at its 52d annual meeting. Other officers named were J. Paul Gardner, Forrest, vice president; Harry Admire, Normal university, secretary-treasurer; H. W. McGouloch, Pontiac, chairman of the executive committee; Miss Clara Schum, Lincoln, member of the executive committee, and F. G. Edwards, Farmer City, chairman of the appropriations committee.

JERVIS RESIGNS AS PRESIDENT'S CHIEF BODYGUARD

Asks to Be Transferred to Field Office.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—Richard Jervis, known as "the major" by six Presidents he had guarded in 25 years with the White House secret service, today resigned as chief of the detail. He is succeeded by Col. Edward F. Starling, his assistant for 15 years.

Maj. Jervis was ordered transferred at his own request to a field office of the secret service. He plans to devote his leisure to completion of his memoirs, upon which he has been working for several years.

Began with Taft.

Jervis has been at the elbow of every President since the late William Howard Taft on tours of the country and other official appearances in and out of the White House. He was an intimate friend of several chief executives. From his vantage points the soft spoken, unobtrusive chief of the protective unit gathered a mass of notes of an intimate nature.

The major became a member of the White House detail in 1910. Five years later he was made head of the detail and held the post continuously until today.

Col. Starling, a six foot Kentuckian, was a railroad detective in the south and entered the secret service to be assigned to general duties. Early in the administration of President Wilson he was assigned to the White House. He has served 22 years on the detail.

Was "Advance Man."

As assistant chief one of his principal duties has been that of "advance man" for presidential tours, making arrangements for the reception and protection of the chief executive all along the route of the tour.

Col. Sterling was an intimate of President Coolidge. It was he who interested the quiet Vermonter in hunting and fishing. After the death of the former President, his widow sent his favorite gun to the colonel.

PLANE CRASHES IN BUSY STREET; TWO ARE KILLED

Lamar, Mo., March 2.—[U. P.]—An advertising stunt for a coming motion picture attraction ended in death here late today for two men, passengers in a plane advertising the picture. The pilot was injured.

Maurice Bassett, 20, son of Sherif James Bassett of Barton county, was dead when pulled from the wreckage. Harold Thomas of the Lamar Democrat died later in a hospital. Ward Millard, pilot, walked from the wreck, but later was taken to a hospital.

The plane fell at a corner of the town square while the streets were crowded with Saturday shoppers.

U. OF C. UNFOLDS STORY OF FIRST LIFE IN AMERICA

Fix Time of the Earliest Civilization.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

After ten years of intensive research into Illinois mounds and the buried evidence of human cultures there, and three years spent in coördinating this with similar work in other states of this region, the department of anthropology of the University of Chicago now is preparing to present the first comprehensive, scientific pictorial survey of pre-historic life in the Mississippi valley.

Slowly the curtain rises, revealing a great movement of the human race, a rhythmic rise and fall of civilizations, as though a master hand somewhere played upon the keyboard of destiny.

It comes on this continent out of the dying magnificence and autocracy of the Incas, out of the doomed Mayan jungles, the clash of Toltec and Aztec among the pyramids of Mexico, filtering up the North American rivers to conquer the hunting tribes here and forming the base for the civilization which now mingles with our own in many inherited ways.

World Pauses for Plunge.

An andante movement, extending over thousands of years, lies back of our point in time, a period, it might seem, in which mankind paused for this plunge. We deal with the middle ages and back to the beginning of the Christian era, perhaps farther. Great Caesar was dead; Babylon had fallen, the pillars of Persepolis were crumbling, palms were growing amid the ruins of Egyptian Memphis, once a city of two million; the Mongols had overrun China and ruled over the plain of Delhi, all the learning at Alexandria had been destroyed, and Jesus of Nazareth had been born, when the human pulse stirred again on this continent toward a new flowering.

"Central America, Yucatan, Honduras, Guatamala, the highlands of Mexico and South America, played the same part in pre-historic North America that the near east played in the development of cold north Europe," said Fay-Cooper Cole, chairman of the department of anthropology.

Prof. Cole and his research associate, Thorne Deuel, West Pointer and former major in the United States army, are preparing the pictorial survey for publication.

Tentatively Classify Findings.

A tentative classification of various cultures in the Mississippi drainage district began in 1932, at a conference at the university in which Michigan and Wisconsin experts participated. Since that time Mr. Deuel has been coördinating material from eight states, gathered into 23 volumes of evidence on maps, burial customs, pottery, flint, shell, bone, pipes, stone implements, and ornaments, cultivated plants and head forms.

More than 50 volumes have been gathered on the ten year work in Illinois, which has been in direct charge of Dr. Cole. Galena and Quincy areas and Fulton county have furnished the bulk of this material, with work on the rich Kincaid mounds near Metropolis just beginning. Years of work lie ahead before the picture is completed, but the rough outlines may be indicated here.

Two basic cultures have been uncovered, the Woodland group, in which the earliest known Illinois man, the "Black Sand" man, existed, and the Mississippi culture group, which filtered up from the south and reached the highest development in pre-historic times.

Ancestry of the Indian.

These two unite in the ancestry of the American Indian. There are many variants of these basic cultures, and it is their intermingling by invasion and by trade that forms this story of America for two thousand years at least.

A great advance has been made in the time element, the dating of these cultures. This is due largely to the tree ring calendar method, developed by Dr. Florence Hawley of the University of New Mexico, who works with the Chicago staf during the summer.

Through master charts based on the width of the tree rings and the evidence of dry and wet periods, indicated by these rings, she has already dated the Illinois cultures as far back as 1365. Tree rings traced in charcoal remains by the camp fires of the hunters and the ceremonial fires of the dead, the story of the log tombs thus open their ancient pages. The story is being pushed back farther and farther.

Place Various Cultures.

"We now know," said Dr. Cole, "just what cultures we are studying, how it lies in time, and if there are changes in the physical type. The Black Sand man is probably about 2,000 years old. He keeps cropping up in later cultures, a long, narrow head, with projecting face, beetling eyebrows. Other groups become progressively more Mongoloid."

Through coördinating the evidences in Georgia, Alabama, Arkansas, and Mississippi with that in the north the anthropologists are able to state that the highest development was in the south, where the ancient population had corn, pottery, larger communities, richer and more intensive agriculture, and a ceremonial life connected with the truncated pyramids on which temples were built.

The migrations or invasions by the Mississippi group into the Woodland group came by the main river and branches into Nebraska, Ohio, Illinois, and Wisconsin. There are evidences of early wars, such as a scalped head and an arrow head still clinging to a vertebra.

Three Classes of Society.

Houses rectangular, semi-permanent, made of sticks interlaced with cane and covered with a sort of clay stucco; mounds pyramidal with substructures, temples, and houses for the great on top of the mounds. Had three classes of society, with "honored men" first, middle class second, and commoners or "stinkards" at the bottom. They were sun worshipers, and their highest class of nobles were supposed to have descended from gods that came from the sun.

Their burial customs were simple. Relics from graves are abundant and include pottery with food, weapons, and ornaments. This people's work with bones, shell, and copper was highly developed. They had stone projectile points, grooved axes, whetstones, fish hooks, awls made from ulnae of deer or wapiti. There is evidence of woven material. Their pipes had stems the same length as the bowl, and they had tobacco. They used bowls, plates, water bottles, beakers, colored wares, and effigy pottery with handles.

The Woodland Culture.

Houses round, temporary, burial mounds with no substructures, bodies predominately flexed, buried in or under mounds, grave goods few or lacking, pottery rare but stone work elaborated. Notched projectile points, grooved axes, problematical stone objects, fish hooks lacking, split bone awls. Evidence of cord and netting, pipes varied, pottery elongated and globular, with uneven coloring and coarse granular structure, effigy pottery not used, handles lacking.

These people had the dog but no horse. The turkey may have been domesticated.

The so-called Hopewell variant of the Woodland group is the highest found in Illinois. They were a poor people, wandering hunters in a cold, damp forest. Log tombs have been found, with river pearls, copper, and artistic work, obsidian, ocean shells, and beads. They had trade relations with the south. Their heads had been flattened in back and front. The early Woodland group was not agricultural, while in the Mississippi group the old [illegible] corn, [illegible], squash, and beans.

These two groups, friendly in nature, [illegible] made in [illegible]. The Mississippi group extended from Georgia to east Texas and as far north as Aztalan, Wis. The department has 850 skeletons and other "loot" from these pre-historic graves which will be presented one day to museums.

EXPECT ILLINOIS WATERWAY WILL DOUBLE TONNAGE

Engineers Predict Boom in 1935 River Trafic.

With the movement of shipping trafic expected to be resumed on the Illinois waterway by the middle of March or the first of April, officials of the federal barge lines and United States army engineers made the prediction yesterday that tonnage on the waterway this year probably will be twice as heavy as the tonnage in 1934.

The waterway, linking Chicago and St. Louis, makes possible the movement of freight by water to and from New Orleans and gives the city a direct water route to the Gulf of Mexico by way of the Mississippi river.

Engineers Optimistic.

"We expect that trafic this year will be far in excess of that of last year," one of the army engineers said. "It may be double the tonnage of 1934. And the waterway is ready to handle the trafic."

Two major factors are given as plausible reasons for the expected increase in trafic. Many new facilities have been added to the waterway. These include terminal improvements and expansion and other improvements and facilities constructed by private corporations. The inertia which caused many corporations to fail to avail themselves of the waterway facilities has to a certain extent been overcome, according to the engineers. In addition, they said, some increase is expected due to the general improvement in business conditions.

Full Service Ready Soon.

Officials of the federal barge line in St. Louis announced yesterday that connections would be made between St. Louis and Chicago next week, and that full service is anticipated in a short time. No attempt at service to the upper reaches of the Mississippi will be made before the first of April.

Federal boats have been in continuous operation through stretches of the waterway all winter except for a short period in December, when heavy ice made trafic impossible.

The army engineers believe that there will be increased trafic this year in coal, oil, sulphur, and grain. Also adding to the tonnage this year will be the increased trafic due to extended use of the Calumet Sag channel. It is expected that the use of smaller barges will make this branch more important than last year. The widening improvements now under way in the Sag Calumet waterway are part of a two year program and will have but little effect on trafic, engineers said.

CATHOLIC SCHOOL PRESS WRITERS HEAR ABOUT TASK

Three hundred young Catholic writers and their advisers were told how to write for newspapers and other publications yesterday at Loyola university at the first regional conference of the Catholic School Press association.

The Rev. Samuel Knox Wilson, S. J., president of the university, welcomed the delegates, who heard talks during the day by writers from newspapers and magazines of the middle west.

Kathleen McLaughlin, woman's editor of THE TRIBUNE, declared that newspaper women have lifted the standard of their profession above the old classification of "sobsisters." Citing the records of several nationally known newspaper women, Miss McLaughlin told the youthful journalists that many women are covering news assignments as efficiently as men.

The association is composed of high school and college press writers in the greater Chicago area. Several speakers discussed Catholic news and editorial writing as it is presented in the metropolitan press and in Catholic publications.

RUSSIA LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN TO END RAILWAY MUDDLE

RIGA, Latvia, March 2.—Lazarous Kaganovitch, new soviet Russian commissar of communications, has opened a campaign to introduce efficiency in the management of the Russian railroads, haphazard operation of which has resulted in numerous wrecks with many fatalities.

Kaganovitch's first order is aimed to control the congestion on trains, many of the passengers of which embark on long journeys without tickets. The Moscow Izvestia reports that the first check made on trains in the Don district resulted in the arrest of 673 "deadheads" on the first three trains leaving Rostov yesterday.

The appointment of Kaganovitch to one of the most difficult posts in the soviet cabinet has attracted wide attention. The Baltic press says he is Dictator Stalin's right hand man, with an enormous capacity for work and exceptional organizing ability. Although he was removed as secretary of the Moscow district of the communist party, Kaganovitch retains his most important position, that as a member of the politbureau, which decides the policies of the communist party. Diplomatic observers in Moscow report that he is responsible for the greatly changed policy of the Kremlin toward the peasants.

MILLIONS TAKEN FROM GAMBLERS BY RACKETEERS

N. Y. Graft Quiz Bares Tremendous Vice.

New York, March 2.—(AP)—Municipal graft hunters who had set out after relatively small game tonight found themselves in a vast and sinister wilderness of commercialized vice, gambling, and narcotic charges.

Prosecutors were studying evidence already adduced—indicating that policy racketeers dominated by the city's public enemy No. 1, Arthur [Dutch Schultz] Flegenheimer, had milked petty gamblers of millions in nickels, dimes, and pennies. They prepared to lay it before the grand jury beginning Monday.

In what started out to be a prosaic investigation of the bail bond business, Commissioner of Accounts Paul Blanshard suddenly encountered testimony that "The Dutchman" had muscled in on the "numbers" racket, merged it with a bail bond ring, and that the combination had taken in upwards of 100 million dollars a year before it crumbled in 1934.

High Figures Discounted.

Although the 100 million dollar figure was discounted as excessive by Blanshard's counsel, Irving Ben Cooper, the testimony that Schultz was directing the racket from a "golden throne" while federal agents and detectives were seeking him on income tax charges provided something of a sensation.

Schultz since has surrendered and is at liberty in bail pending trial.

A story of individual profits in the "numbers" game, a lottery based on combinations of figures such as racing mutuel prices, was related by Wilfred Adolphus Brunder, who said that before the Seabury investigation his average gross intake as Harlem "bankers" was $2,000,000 a year. His profits varied sharply, but they reached $200,000 in 1928.

Brunder agreed with other witnesses that the racket had boomed during the next few years.

Plan Investigation Bureau.

Developments arising from the "bail bond inquiry" included:

The statement by District Attorney William C. Dodge that he would seek to organize a bureau of investigation "similar to that of the United States department of justice."

The announcement that departmental charges would be preferred against a police captain in connection with the destruction of evidence against a Schultz aid.

The announcement that the bar association's grievance committee would look into the activities of lawyers who have figured in the bailing out of racketeers.

PARENTS WARNED OF MEASLES AND SCARLET FEVER

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, yesterday warned parents that there is a seasonal prevalence of scarlet fever and measles in the city. He urged a series of precautions to protect children as follows:

1. Keep children from indoor public gathering places and from mingling too closely in automobiles, street cars, or buses on their way to and from school.

2. Keep children from school when they exhibit any sign of illness, and call your doctor, particularly if an eruption or rash develops.

3. Keep well children of the family away from the child showing signs of illness.

The scarlet fever and measles now in the community are of a mild type and the number of cases reported is not unusual for this time of the year, Dr. Bundesen said.

ROME, March 2.—(AP)—Royal jewels and a royal wedding gown were prepared today for Mlle. Emanuela di Dampierre, American-French girl who will be married here Monday to Don Jaime, son of former King Alfonso of Spain, head of the house of Bourbon.

One-fifth of the famous royal jewels of his mother was Alfonso's wedding present to the vivacious, dark eyed bride-to-be, a granddaughter of the former Josephine Curtis of Boston. She will wear part of these heirlooms with her wedding ensemble. One especially famous piece, the fleur-de-lis diamonds, will be used to clasp her white lace wedding veil.

Threatens to Place Orders in Other Countries.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 2.—Premier Mussolini's government told American trade officials here today that the United States government must enter into a clearing house or barter arrangement with Italy to deal with imports and exports if it wants to preserve for 1935 the 800 million lire business which America did with Italy last year. [The lira was quoted at 8.48 cents yesterday.]

Unless such a barter arrangement is made whereby the United States will agree to balance the exchange of goods, that is, buy as much as it sells to Italy above an allowed quota of between 25 and 30 per cent of last year's figures, it was indicated that Italian importers would be forced to place their orders in other countries which agreed to such a barter arrangement.

Gold Coverage Menaced.

Italy's difficulties which led to the erection of new trade barriers arise out of last year's unfavorable trade balance, which is menacing the gold coverage of the lira.

It was said here that Italy's demand would delay negotiations between the United States and Italy for a bilateral trade treaty. The conference was to have been held in May.

On the other hand it was indicated that the new Italian import restrictions, which are drastic if not prohibitive, in some cases may be relaxed in practical application. It is pointed out that Italy, in addition to envisaging stringent measures to back the lira, also wants to maneuver into a good position to bargain with countries which have a favorable trade balance over her. The United States is one of these countries.

All exports and imports are to be governed by a newly created body known as the National Institute for Foreign Trade. This body has complete power to control all exchanges of goods between Italy and other countries over and above the new quotas. Furthermore, it also will control payment transfers. In other words, no goods may be paid for through ordinary bank credit, but only through this institute.

Sliding Scale Is Fixed.

A decree restricting imports by 10 to 80 per cent on nearly everything except umbrellas and fans was promulgated Feb. 16. First of all it was to have been an absolute restriction based on last year's unfavorable trade figures. Secondly it was designed to guarantee that Italy would not lose gold and thus let the lira drop through buying more than it sells.

However, it was announced that these restrictions now will be subjected to sliding arrangements and adjustments through the barter or clearing house plan. The adjustments will be based on barter treaties which Italy has with Germany, Turkey, Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria, Uruguay, Hungary, and Rumania. The weapon is particularly aimed at such countries as the United States, Great Britain, France, Brazil, and Argentina, which have favorable trade balances.

What Italy Wants.

Economists here figure that the United States would have to agree to buy about 200 million Italian lire worth of goods more this year than last if it wants to sell Italy as much in 1935 as it did in 1934.

American exports to Italy last year were around 800 million lire. Italy's exports to the United States exceeded 300 million lire, giving America an advantage of 500 million lire. Most of the American exports were raw materials, 70 per cent being cotton.

FORTUNE DONOR CALLS ECONOMY POOR BUSINESS

Baltimore, Md., March 2.—(AP)—A. E. O. Munsell, credited with giving away a million dollar fortune so he could know life as "it really is," was a little disturbed today, he said, that his reduced expenditures might help "make the depression worse."

He came back here, where he once maintained a business office, to address the City-Wide Young People's Forum of the African Methodist Episcopal church. He expected to return tonight to his $2.50 a week boarding house in New York.

He said he has to struggle to "make ends meet," he was "beginning to know what life really is," but he was a little disturbed about having to economize too much.

"I've spent many hours figuring how to cut down the living cost," he said. "In general, it's the wrong thing to do, because all reduction in expenditure makes the depression worse."

Munsell said he gave away his inherited wealth because "it didn't seem to be mine." He said he was looking for a job and felt he could help business men.

"They are," he said, "frightened and pugnacious."

PASTOR AND HIS WIFE REPORTED SLAIN BY CHINESE KIDNAPERS

SHANGHAI, March 2.—(AP)—The death of another missionary at the hands of kidnapers was reported from Sian, Shensi province, today. The China inland mission at Changsha, Hunan province, sent word that it could not confirm the rumored death of two others seized last October.

The Sian report, ascribed to soldiers, said the Rev. S. C. Frenchan, Australian, had been slain and hope had been abondaned for his young British wife who was seized with him not far from Nankiang last week. Mrs. Frechan was an expectant mother.

Advices from Changsha said the China inland mission headquarters there and other sources had received no reports of the death of R. A. Bosshardt and A. Hyman, captured by communists in Kweichow province last October. A dispatch from Changteh, in Hunan province, yesterday quoted a Chinese as saying he had seen the two men, both British, brutally hacked to death in Fengchiangkang, in northwestern Hunan province.

Two American missionaries, Miss R. V. Thompson of Nevada, Ia., and Miss Alma Artibey of Chicago, who had been missing for several days, arrived safely today at Fensiang, the mission at that city reported.

ASKS INQUIRY ON COURTNEY POLICY IN COAL STRIKE

A petition asking the appointment of special state's attorney was presented yesterday to Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court by Attorney Joseph Harrington in behalf of the Chicago Teamsters' union. The attorney prepared the petition in his own name as a taxpayer and he asked that a special prosecutor investigate the methods by which State's Attorney Courtney and others are alleged to be trying to force members of the Chicago Teamsters' union, an "outlaw" organization, into the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

Judge Sullivan will rule Thursday on the matter of permitting the attorney to file the petition.

The petition alleges that Courtney and his chief investigator, Capt. Daniel Gilbert, broke up meetings of this union. Harrington asked to have them adjudged in contempt of court because they freed twenty-eight members of the union for whom writs of habeas corpus had been asked, instead of bringing them into court. This motion was denied.

The men arrested were strikers led by Milton Booth Jr., head of the union, who called a strike more than a week ago.

BLAME WIVES OF TWO MARINES IN RUSSELL ATTACK

Promotion Coming Up in Senate Tomorrow.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—The fight led by Senator Hugo Black [Dem., Ala.], supported by Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah], to prevent the confirmation of Maj. Gen. John H. Russell, commandant of the marine corps, as a permanent major general, revolves around the contention of the opposition that the selection board of the marine corps, of which Gen. Russell was the head, was unfair in its decisions.

Although charges reflecting upon Gen. Russell's services were made before the senate naval affairs committee, and refuted, Senator Black persists in his struggle to prevent the nomination.

It is charged by officers of the marine corps and some senators that inspiration for the continued attack rises largely from the action of the marine corps' selection board, which was approved generally by marine officers, but excited hostility of two wives of marine officers, one of whom registered her protest with President Roosevelt and the other of whom carried her grievance to senators.

These two incidents are cited by marine corps officials as probably underlying the controversy which will come to a head in the senate Monday. Then Senator Hiram W. Johnson [Rep., Cal.], is expected to defend Gen. Russell.

Fellow officers said charges that Gen. Russell had influenced the selective board's action were "too silly to comment upon."

LONG MISSING SCIENTIST SAFE; FOUND IN CAMP

Salt Lake City, Utah, March 2.—(AP)—Fears for the safety of Daniel L. Thrapp, young scientist swallowed in the black silence of the Utah canyons nearly two months ago, were dispelled today when the Deseret News in a copyright story said he is in camp 100 miles west of Bluff.

Thrapp, 22, of the American Museum of Natural History had not been heard from since Jan. 4.

The whereabouts of the explorer, searching for prehistoric cliff dwellings in the Dark canyon of the Colorado river, were made known by Alfred Reck, a member of the newspaper's staf. He flew to Bluff today in search of the youth, son of Frank H. Thrapp of Chicago.

At the town of Bluff, Reck encountered Robert Wise, a rancher who had come to buy supplies for Thrapp, with whom he had visited during the last month.

Thrapp had never imagined any anxiety would be felt for him, Wise said. The explorer's horses are in poor condition, the rancher explained. For that reason he did not go to Bluff himself.

SEARCH IN VAIN FOR WOMAN LOST IN AFRICAN WILDS

MAZUBUKA, Northern Rhodesia Africa, March 2.—(AP)—Intensive search of northern Rhodesia's bush country failed today to uncover any trace of Lady Young, wife of the governor general, and her physician, Dr. J. Kerby, whose airplane was forced down Thursday. Lady Young was piloting the plane.

As anxiety for their safety increased, Sir Hubert Young, the governor general, moved the base of the search from Choma to Mazubuka and summoned leaders of all searching parties to confer.

Five royal air force planes are expected here from Pretoria tomorrow to join four other planes already sweeping the lion infested jungles. Hundreds of natives prepared to renew the search at daybreak.

VERDUN HORROR TOLD BY GERMAN VETERAN OF WAR

Calls Slaughter Worst of Entire Conflict.

"I was in the Champagne at Reims, Flanders. I was in the air. Verdun still is the high spot."

The speaker was Ernst A. ten Eicken, Tall, slim Teutonic, he sat last evening in his home at 1547 Ardmore avenue holding his war diary. His brown eyes skimmed the lines. He peered back 19 years and recalled how he spent March 2, 1916, waging his own small part of the most terrible and destructive battle the world has known. . . .

Ernst, then a youth of 19 years, was a sergeant in the 8th Lorraine infantry regiment of the Imperial German army, and already a veteran of two years of fierce warfare. He saw the "hell of Verdun" from the lowest depths, those of the slogging infantrymen of one of the crack storm troops first to advance against the French.

Defense Stubborn, Bitter.

"The battle, of course, really opened on the 21st of February," he said in his hesitant, yet precise English. "We had started out of the trenches at 5 p. m. sharp that day. We kept going against a murderous fire, a stubborn and bitter defense.

"On the 28th, after once having been pulled out of the battle to rest and then being pushed in again, our regiment stormed a mountain, Cote du Poivre. We could look down into the valley beyond and see the roofs of Bras and Belleville, suburbs of Verdun. We even could see the cathedral of Verdun but we never got any further."

His own regiment stopped there, and the "ring of steel" round Verdun never closed any further, he said, "because the weather gods struck us."

Slowed by Soft Ground.

One warm day—the 28th—softened the ground enough to slow all movement, to separate the advancing infantry from all artillery, provisions, and supplies. Then the infantry had to stop.

"I don't say this to detract from the honor or valor of the French. They fought like heroes. All I would say of that battle is—'Brave men, French and German, fought it,'" Ten Eicken said.

First wind of the approaching conflict came to him in October, 1915, when the regiment after having spent months in a quiet sector in Champagne, was pulled into a training camp 60 miles behind Verdun. For two months the hardest kind of drill followed, the problems always being those of advancing to attack over broken country.

Pictures Conflict Ahead.

In January, 1916, they went to Brandeville, 15 miles from Verdun. Active imaginations had pictured what was to come, he said. Then when the supplies, shells, tremendous numbers of big guns began to crowd into the sector they knew what was ahead.

"Just to look at those big guns going into position gave you the shivers, and I'd had war from 1914, and was tough," he said.

The training continued until Feb. 8, when the regiment went into the third line trenches at Flabas, near Verdun proper, and on the north side of the salient. They were told their objective would be Bois du Haumont, site of a strong point. Zero hour was set for Feb. 11, 5 p. m.

Wait Through Days of Rain.

"Then we began to wait. It was raining and we couldn't advance in the rain. The big guns we counted on to wipe out the fortifications would get bogged down. From day to day the order was postponed 24 hours. On the 18th a hard frost struck. We began to get nervous.

"It was a relief when the order came on the 21st at 6 o'clock in the morning. Then the cannonading began. It was the most awful thing I'd ever heard. Tons and tons of stuff went over us. We knew what the poor French were getting.

"Time passed slowly. It's bad to have to sit and wait, knowing you are going to die. Then we heard the bugles even above the guns and out we went," Ten Eicken recounted.

They found the fortifications in the wood almost undamaged and suffered severe losses before taking them. It was "face to face" fighting from that time until Dec. 21, when the regiment was relieved.

From 3,000 Men to 72.

Between Dec. 11 and the 21st, Ten Eicken said, the regiment which had been brought up to a full strength of 3,000 men, dwindled to 72.

In 1917 he went into the air corps. He continued to fly, he said, until 1928, when he came to the United States. Now he is settled with his wife and small son in Chicago. He will become a citizen next month. At the World's Fair last summer he was head waiter at Old Heidelburg. Now he is "working at his real job." He is a designing engineer and draftsman employed by the Mills Novelty company.

CITY'S BIRTHDAY TOMORROW; PLAN NO CELEBRATION

The city of Chicago will be ninety-eight years old tomorrow, but it does not appear that there will be any birthday festivities to celebrate the occasion.

Chicago was incorporated as a city on March 4, 1837, about four years after it had been incorporated as a village. The charter gave the new city an area of more than ten square miles, bounded by North avenue, Wood street, 22d street, and the lake, with a tract on the lake just north of North avenue, used as a cemetery, included. The Fort Dearborn reservation, within the limits, was not a part of the city, however.

The first census after the incorporation showed a total population of 4,170, including 77 colored persons and 513 children. There were 398 dwellings in the city. The first city election was held on May 2, 1837, and William B. Ogden, running on the Democratic ticket, was named mayor. Times were difficult, and one of the first acts of the administration was to issue scrip.

URGES CREATION OF JOB RESERVES BY CORPORATIONS

Trades Group Fights State Schemes.

The establishment of "unemployment reserves" by individual corporations in behalf of individual employés is recommended in a report issued by the committee on industrial relations of the National Metal Trades association. The report opposes any scheme for government controled unemployment insurance, claiming that such social legislation has proved unsuccessful in other nations.

The report, prepared by A. R. Peirce, research director for the association which has its executive offices in the Peoples Gas building, is based upon studies of English and German unemployment and other social insurance schemes and of plans for unemployment reserves operated successfully in several American corporations. The job insurance proposals pending in congress are viewed in the report as dangerous and visionary plans which would mark the first steps toward a costly program of highly socialized panaceas.

Called Unjust to Majority.

"In some countries state unemployment insurance has been a failure financially, an insidious menace politically and demoralizing to the workers individually," the report states. "It has retarded necessary economic readjustments, increased unemployment and lowered the standard of living. It has built up an army of chronically out of work dole receivers, contributed to social unrest, and has been grossly unjust to the steady and hard working majority.

"Once an unemployment compensation plan is launched by a state or federal government, it becomes the nucleus of a general social legislative program. Since social security programs in other countries have started with unemployment compensation, followed immediately by health, old age and other services, the costs of some of these other services have exceeded that of unemployment insurance."

Flaws in Plan Pointed Out.

Aside from the social and moral "deadening" effect of such legislation upon the individual workers, the report points out, any such scheme would require the establishment of a vast and costly administrative machinery which would be subject to political tampering.

In preference to other schemes, the association report recommends that individual corporations establish unemployment reserves for employés, contributions to these funds coming equally from employer and employé, according to type of work and length of employment of each worker.

Incentive to Thrift Urged.

Such a plan, the report declares, would encourage stabilization of employment by causing employers to continue their efforts to spread employment and create jobs for the unemployed, provide the maximum of financial benefit at minimum cost, and encourage workmen to be thrifty and help meet the hazards incident to their unemployment.

Unemployment insurance funds operating in England for 20 years, it was pointed out, started with a loan of $36,000,000 and by 1932 had grown to a deficit of $559,000,000, despite huge contributions by employers. In Germany a similar situation exists, with the deficit increasing despite a drastic curtailment in benefits paid out and an increase in direct relief payments, the report said.

PLAN EPISCOPAL FUND OF MILLION FOR REFINANCING

On the call of Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, 100 civic and business leaders will meet Tuesday at the Union League club to develop a Centennial organization which will raise and disburse at least $1,000,000 during the next five years, according to an announcement made public yesterday at diocensan headquarters, 65 E. Huron street.

The fund will be used to retire funded debts which have accumulated against diocesan properties and not only to refinance St. Timothy's Church apartments in Garfield Park, but also the church's Rush street holdings which once were considered for cathedral purposes, the announcement stated. It was added that indebtedness on St. Alban's school for boys at Sycamore will be retired. Plans announced also include the raising of an additional fund of $500,000 for retiring obligations of parishes.

The announcement stated that John D. Allen of Glencoe, president of the Episcopal Church club, probably will head the Centennial organization, with Wirt Wright, former Evanston banker and treasurer of the diocese, taking a leading part in the money raising campaign. George Ward Stone of New York has been employed as active director of the drive, the announcement added.

Dr. Shannon to Conduct Davenport Church Services

Davenport, Ia., March 2.—[Special.]—Dr. Frederick Shannon, pastor of the Central church, Chicago, will conduct a series of services here from April 8 to 12 in St. John's Episcopal church, it was announced today.

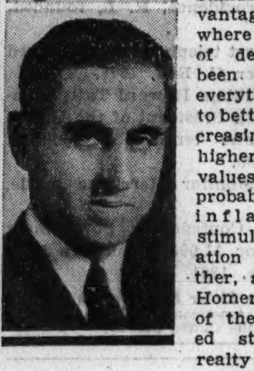
HOYT PREDICTS HIGHER RENTS AND LAND VALUES

Believes Inflation Will Boost Realty.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Comparison of present real estate conditions with past cycles shows that Chicago today stands at the advantageous point where the forces of decline have been stayed and everything points to betterment—increasing rents, higher realty values, and the probability that inflation will stimulate the situation still further, according to Homer Hoyt, one of the best posted students of realty and economic matters in the middle west.



HOMER HOYT.

Mr. Hoyt, who is author of "One Hundred Years of Land Values in Chicago," is assisting in the land use survey and real property inventory of Chicago being sponsored by the metropolitan housing council of this city.

Calls 1932 Worst Year.

In commenting on the present situation Mr. Hoyt yesterday pointed out the various factors that have brought about the turn from 1932—the black year of the present depression. With rents slowly rising, owners who have operated at a loss at last are beginning to break even.

Vacancies, he said, have decreased to such an extent that with the indicated increase in pay rolls a further rise in rents seems certain, which in turn will result in an advance in realty values. Mr. Hoyt predicted the further rise in rents will then reach the point where it will pay to build again.

"Looking backward we now know that the basic factors in the Chicago real estate situation have been improving for nearly two years," he said. "The year 1932 marked the low point. It was 1841, 1861, 1877, and 1897 all over again. In those previous cycles, about four years after the culmination of the real estate boom, there was a black year of extreme despondency.

Recovery Cycle Started.

"So it was in 1932. Foreclosures were at their peak; rents had drastically declined, manufacturing pay rolls had dropped nearly 75 per cent below 1929 levels. This extreme depression carried over to the spring of 1933.

"Then the forces of recovery began to work under the surface, just as they did in 1843, 1863, 1878, and 1898. Rents stopped falling, foreclosures ceased to increase, vacant apartments began to be absorbed, and pay rolls slowly mounted. At first the effect upon real estate was not noticeable and the air of pessimism had not changed to one of optimism.

"But now the effect of the constructive forces has become apparent. Apartment rents are beginning to rise slowly and owners who have operated at a deficit are beginning to break even.

"The percentage of vacant dwelling units has declined, according to the surveys of the commercial engineers of the Illinois Bell Telephone company from 86,000 in 1933 to 45,000 in 1935, or from 9.7 to 5.1 per cent of the total number of dwelling units.

Foreclosures Show Decline.

"Foreclosures have declined from $537,185,163 in 1932 to $147,641,361 in 1934. Sales of real estate are increasing and a more hopeful tone is in the air.

"Still, we are not as we were in 1844, 1864, 1879, and 1899. We have not yet entered the period of marked improvement for which the groundwork has been laid. That is still ahead of us.

"Today we stand at the most advantageous stage of the cycle, where the forces of decline have been stayed but where we have not started a swift ascent. It is not to be readily assumed that the real estate cycle will repeat itself in precisely its old pattern, remarkable as this coincidence has been to date.

"The Chicago population will not increase as rapidly in the next few years as in the periods from 1845 to 1854, or from 1863 to 1873, or from 1880 to 1890, or from 1919 to 1927.

"Nevertheless, vacancies have been so largely absorbed and pay rolls have shown such a tendency to increase that there undoubtedly will be a further rise in rents. This increase in gross rents will mean an even greater gain in net rents because operating expenses will not rise as fast.

Comments on Inflation.

"As a result the prices of existing houses and apartment buildings will tend to advance. In time rents will rise to a point where it will pay to build again. This improvement in real estate will tend to occur, not because history necessarily repeats itself but because it is the logical sequence of events that could be expected from an analysis of the present situation."

Mr. Hoyt predicted that the possibility of inflation will speed forward the encouraging factors he has mentioned.

"In addition to the working of these normal forces," he said, "there is the possibility of inflation. Inflation will operate on real estate in a number of ways. First, there will be the purchase of real estate because of the fear of inflation. Second, there will be the effect of inflation in producing rising prices, then rising wages, then rising gross rents, and then rising net rents. In other words, inflation may accelerate the course of events already described."

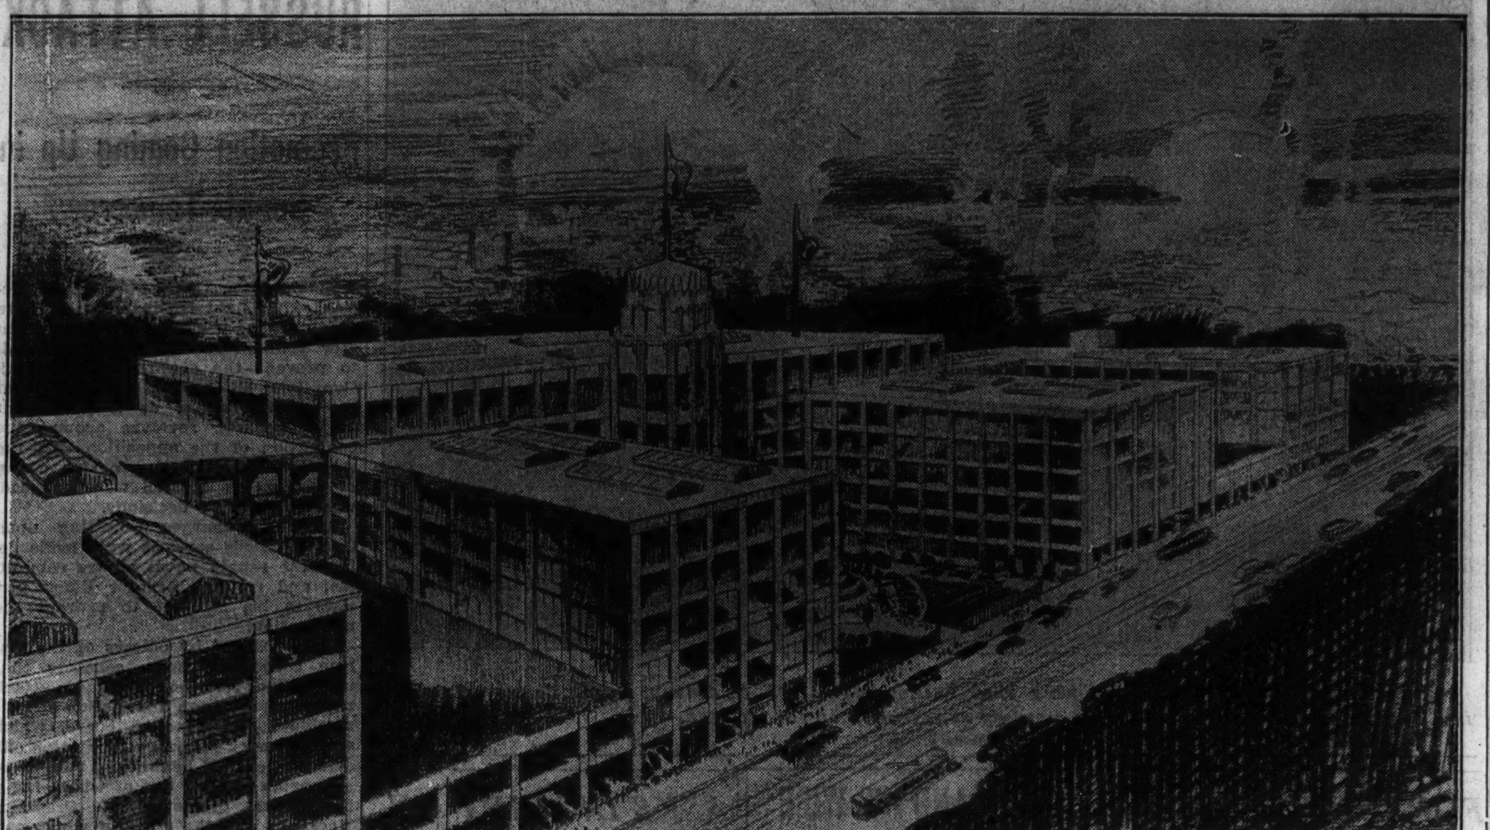
ADDING TO CHICAGO'S PRESTIGE AS RUG MAKING CENTER



The above picture shows the carpet and rug mill of the Olson Rug company at the northwest corner of Crawford and Diversey as it will appear when completed. The project, which eventually will cover a ten acre tract, was begun in 1926 when the unit on the extreme right was erected. Two years later, in 1928, the second unit from the right was built. The latest addition, told about in this department on Sunday, Feb. 17, will be part of the unit in the center with the tower facing the court. It will cost a reported $415,000. An elaborately landscaped formal garden, with a spectacular fountain display, colorfully illuminated, is contemplated for this open space. The two units on the left are practically duplicates of the two present units and will be added as soon as conditions warant.

According to Walter E. Olson, president of the company, this will be one of the largest rug and carpet mills in the United States when completed, housing the latest textile machinery, and by reason of improved and advanced manufacturing methods, it will enable the company to produce floor coverings at lower cost than heretofore. Weiss & Neistadt are the architects and John S. Small consulting engineer. Charles Morgan made this perspective.

FRANK DE LUGACH CELEBRATES 15TH YEAR IN BUSINESS

Celebrating the fifteenth anniversary of his entrance into the real estate business, Frank De Lugach, head of the Frank De Lugach Real Estate company, yesterday stated that he had never before received so many calls from prospective clients so early in the season. On this interest shown in local realty he based his opinion that the worst of the depression is over as far as Chicago real estate is concerned.

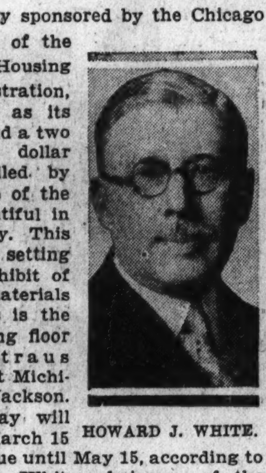
Mr. De Lugach started work with the Frederick H. Bartlett Realty company. Percy Wilson, now FHA regional director, helped him close his first deal. Later he went with William E. Harmon & Co. He then went into business for himself, buying ten acres at 90th and South Park.

Mr. De Lugach stated that he has now completed the successful sale of thirty-five subdivisions, most of them west of Beverly Hills in the 95th and Western region. He has built many homes and seen his customers erect hundreds of homes in these subdivisions.

"We have recently consolidated all our branch offices into one large main office at 95th and Western," he said. "We find conditions getting better to such a degree that we're now in the market for additional property and expect to organize a good sized sales force this spring."

Modern Homes Exhibit to Be Shown in a $2,000,000 Room

Chicago's Better Homes exhibit, a free display sponsored by the Chicago committee of the Federal Housing administration, will have as its background a two million dollar room, called by critics one of the most beautiful in the country. This unusual setting for an exhibit of building materials for homes is the big banking floor of the Straus building at Michigan and Jackson. The display will open on March 15 and continue until May 15, according to Howard J. White, chairman of the Chicago committee, better housing program of the FHA.



HOWARD J. WHITE.

$50,000 Bronze Doors.

In constructing the imposing quarters of the Straus National Bank and Trust company and S. W. Straus & Co., several years ago, the builders called on internationally famous architects, sculptors, painters, and metal craftsmen, according to Joseph F. Strub, manager of the Straus building.

The massive bronze doors opening from Michigan avenue to the home exposition cost in the neighborhood of $50,000 for design and casting, it was stated. These doors and entrance sculpture were the work of Leo Lentelli, noted in America and abroad. The doors are remarkable in that they include full figures in bronze instead of bas-relief. Lentelli, born in Italy in 1879, is best known for his work in America.

The metal work in the Straus exhibit room is considered by experts as among the finest examples of handicraft in the country. Of special interest are the hand wrought and cast medallions, lighting fixtures, and a globular clock, the central feature of the room, which cost $25,000.

The lamp hanging over the wide, sweeping marble stairway from Michigan avenue is another masterpiece, being an exact copy of one found in an ancient Venetian palace.

Color Work by Ezra Winter.

Marbles were assembled from famous quarries of the world. The impressive columns rising from floor to ceiling are of Hautville marble from France, the block marble is from Belgium, walls are of Travertine, and the floor is of finest Tennessee pink marble.

All around the room are murals, smaller canvases and medallions, all of the color work being that of Ezra Winter, American artist.

"We believe home builders will appreciate the endeavors of the Chicago committee in assembling this comprehensive exhibition of the building industry in such dignified and artistic surroundings," said Mr. White. "The exhibit itself will live up to its setting. The latest, most interesting and artistic achievements in home building craft will be shown."

MRS. J. O. ARMOUR'S SECRETARY OPENS MICHIGAN AVE. SHOP

Nellie Matheny, secretary to Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, has leased space on the second floor of the 700 North Michigan Avenue building, and has opened the "700 Knit shop," where instruction in knitting and crocheting is given and yarns are sold.

According to Robert Booth, manager of the building, which is owned and operated by the estate of Marshall Field, other recent leases are: Eloise D. Pepple, operator of the "Why Bother?" shop, formerly at 100 East Walton place, and Broberg & Scovil, clock shop, for many years in the McCormick building.

NEGOTIATE 80 HOUSING LOANS IN ENGLEWOOD

Six thousand property owners have been interviewed and approximately 300 have indicated a desire to have their property improved through the use of national housing act loans, according to Harry A. Peters, general chairman for the FHA better housing program of Englewood, Auburn Park and Gresham committee.

Judson L. Parker, general counsel for the advisory board of that district, reported that although only 3 per cent of the area has been canvassed, $85,000 worth of work already has been stimulated by FHA activities. The banks in the district have made a total of eighty loans amounting to $35,000, he stated.

Permanent headquarters have been secured at 818 West 63d street, where the second and third floors are now being remodeled. Here property owners may secure information regarding the negotiation of FHA loans for modernization, construction or refinancing an existing mortgage.

Lee Powell Opens a Gown Shop in Michigan Square

Lee Powell, for many years buyer for Mandel Brothers, has formed her own firm and opened a gown shop in the Diana court section of the Michigan Square building according to Hogan & Farwell, Inc., renting agents. Other new leases in that building include: Whitelaw & Grant, Associated Artists, Kelly-Smidt-Chalberg, and Burt Eix & Associates.

At the Realty Board

James D. Henderson of Boston, an authority on real estate appraising, will be the principal speaker at the monthly meeting of the Chicago Real Estate board next Wednesday evening, March 6. He will arrive in Chicago Wednesday morning to make the appraisal about which he will speak that evening. In the meantime Chicago realtors will be furnished all data on the same appraisal in order that they may appraise the property and compare results with the Bostonian at the evening meeting.

REALTY BOARD PLANS BUILDING COSTS SURVEY

Will Cover Many Types of Structures.

What is designed to be the first comprehensive study on building costs in Chicago was announced yesterday by John C. Bowers, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, for launching by that organization this week. This breakdown of costs of construction will include fifty different types of commercial, residential, and industrial structures. Results are to be published in book form within ninety days, for use of realtors, Bowers stated.

JOHN C. BOWERS.

"The complete survey, which is being financed by the Chicago Real Estate board, is considered of great importance to the local real estate profession, as considerable confusion exists today as to the actual costs of all types of construction in this area because of the lack of building activity in the last five years," said Bowers.

Appropriation Set Aside.

"Builders, real estate men, architects, and others have lost an accurate picture of actual construction costs. This is the natural result of practically no building. It is for that reason, therefore, that the Chicago Real Estate board has launched this elaborate survey to determine how much it really costs to build, modernize, and repair structures today.

"An appropriation has been set aside by the board for this purpose. The best architects and engineers and contractors will be asked to collaborate in the undertaking. Actual plans will be drawn up and figured as to costs. Such a survey would cost any one person $10,000 to $12,000.

Will Show All Costs.

"The results will show a complete breakdown of data, providing, for example, the actual cost of construction down to the cubic foot expense in each case. It also will reveal the actual cost of the use of building materials and equipment of all kinds, so that it will be possible accurately to figure the expense of plastering a room, repairing a roof or installing a heating plant.

"In short, the survey will be the first extensive and comprehensive research on building costs ever undertaken in Chicago. The findings of this research probably will be available only to members."

SYNDICATE BUYS EVANSTON SIX FLAT BUILDING

A syndicate yesterday purchased for investment the six apartment building at 1629-31 Hinman avenue, Evanston, through Robert S. Crane of the Evanston office of Quinlan & Tyson, Inc. The price was not disclosed. The new owners are planning to modernize the property, the management of which will remain with Quinlan & Tyson. The building is on the east side of Hinman, between Davis and Church streets, and occupies a 66x185 lot. It has seven room suites.

Chicago Dental Society to Move to Michigan Ave.

The Chicago Dental Society and Study club, now in the Medical Arts building, have leased 2,000 square feet on the fourteenth floor of the Michigan Boulevard building, Michigan avenue and Washington street, according to Monro MacCloskey, manager of the building for Clark & Trainer, renting agents. The lessees will move about the middle of March.

Walter R. Kuehnle Opens Office in Marquette Bldg.

Walter R. Kuehnle, former assistant chief deputy assessor of Cook county, has opened offices in the Marquette building and will specialize in appraisals and tax consultation work. He was identified with the assessor's office from the start of the reassessment until Jan. 1 of this year.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of Feb. 22-28, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 26, with a combined cost of $802,931. For the corresponding week last year there were 16 contracts, totaling $124,500.

BOY SLATED AS SIAM'S NEW KING STICKS TO BOOKS

Prince Ananda Studies in Swiss School.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, March 2.—Prince Ananda, schoolboy heir presumptive to the Siamese throne, is going to classes here unaware that he may be the king of 11,000,000 subjects before his next birthday.

Nobody has told him his uncle, Prajadhipok, has decided to abdicate unless he has his own way with the government.

A slender, sloe eyed, sober faced youngster of 11 who wears knickers and pullover sweater as casually as any American boy, Ananda has barely started his western education which his family considers essential for any modern day prince of the east. He has been at an exclusive school in Lausanne for two years.

Do Not Discuss Kingship.

The prince's mother is the widow of the late Prince Mahidol, King Prajadhipok's brother. Politics and kingship have never been discussed with the prince.

If King Prajadhipok finally abdicates, young Ananda is expected to stay in school until he completes his education, like little King Peter II. of Jugo-Slavia. A regency would rule Siam until Ananda's majority, when he probably would have an elaborate coronation.

His grandfather, old King Chula Long Korn, had numerous wives. When his eldest son by the first queen died, Chula Long Korn made another wife, Sowabha Pongsi, mother of Prajadhipok, queen. Her eldest son, Rama VI., came to the throne, and Prajadhipok succeeded his brother on his death in 1926.

Since the present ruler has no son, the succession reverted to the descendants of the first queen. Ananda's father, Prince Mahidol, who died in 1929, was her son.

Prisoners' Fate in Palace.

BANGKOK, Siam, March 2.—(AP)—The fate of political prisoners facing death sentences in Siam hung in the balance tonight as the formalities of King Prajadhipok's abdication were awaited.

The king, from his residence in England, had demanded restoration of his royal powers of pardon. He also insisted that prisoners be tried by ordinary courts in public, instead of by committees in private as is being done.

Parliament is ready to receive and debate the king's abdication. It has refused to accept the terms the tiny king laid down as the price of withdrawal of his threat to abdicate.

In addition to political prisoners already held, ten arrests have been made in connection with the recent attempt to assassinate Defense Minister Luang Bipul Songram, who was shot and wounded Feb. 23.

Take Customary Stroll.

CRANLEIGH, Surrey, England, March 2.—(AP)—Siam's enigmatic little king, unruffled at the realization that his golden throne fast is slipping from under him, enjoyed his customary stroll over the broad acres of his estate today. Queen Rambaibarni strolled with him.

Returning to Knowle house, King Prajadhipok and the queen had tea, and afterward he went back to the task of drafting his formal abdication.

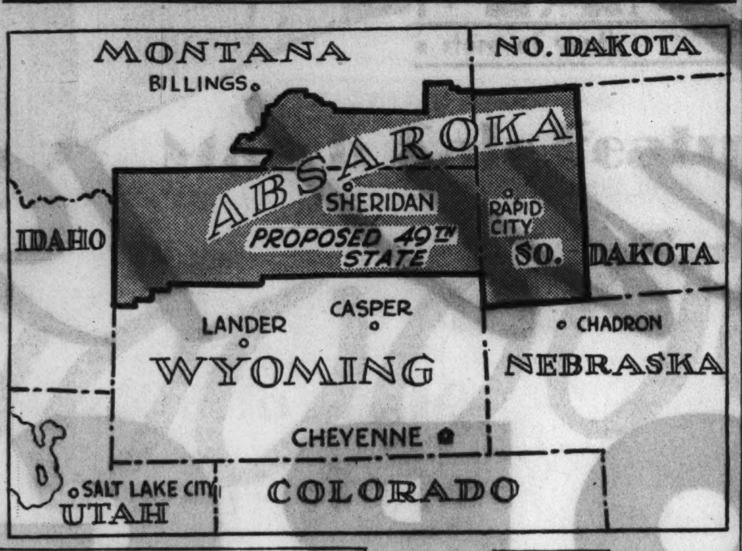
NEW WESTERN STATE URGED



TWO LOSE LIVES AS STORM RAKES CALIFORNIA AREA

Many Flee from Homes as Waters Rise.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 2.—[Special.]—Two persons were killed and many were driven from their homes today as a rain and snow storm lashed southern California.

Ralph Spence of Victor Valley, rodeo champion rider, fell and was killed when his horse lost its footing in the snow. He had been riding the Godshall range looking for snow trapped cattle.

Lieut. William Beverly Jr. of Santa Monica was killed when his car went out of control and struck a pole on Foot Hill boulevard near Fontana, Cal. Two companions were slightly hurt.

More Rain Forecast.

Thunder and lightning, common to rainstorms in other sections of the country but rare phenomena in southern California, characterized the storm. More rain is forecast for tonight and tomorrow.

At San Pedro wind which had stirred up a waterspout struck the harbor district, unroofed a church, overturned a garage, damaged several buildings, and uprooted many trees.

In Long Beach police ordered out life boats to carry residents out of inundated lowlands, but the storm abated slightly and no calls for boats were received. Many persons vacated their premises, however, in fear of the rising water.

Water Overruns Gutters.

In Los Angeles metropolitan areas storm drains failed under the heavy downpour and water overran the gutters. Water pressure in drains blew off manholes in many sections of the city. Pedestrians hopped perilously across the streams flooding the gutters in the downtown areas.

Snow fell heavily in the mountains, Mount Lowe reporting three inches and Mount Wilson six inches.

Concern was felt for the area of Montrose La Crescenta where Jan. 1, 1933. 35 persons were drown by floods from a heavy rain and cloudburst.

WOMEN'S PARLEY HEARS PLEA FOR JUDICIAL REFORM

Enactment of a standard housing law and the selection of judges by some means other than through "political bosses" were set forth to Cook county club women yesterday as two outstanding needs of Chicago and Cook county.

Speaking at the Chicago Women's club before the conference on local problems sponsored by the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs and the City club, Mitchell Dawson, editor of the Chicago Bar Association Record, decried the present method of selecting judges.

"As it is now, the people as a whole have little voice in the choice of judges," he said. "They are chosen by political bosses. One judge even went so far as to acknowledge his debt to the political committee for having designated him judge."

The afternoon session was devoted to a discussion of housing problems. Enactment of a law to set up minimum standards for housing was cited by all the speakers as one of the most essential needs for modern housing in Illinois.

John Barrymore Resting at Hospital in New York

New York, March 2.—[Special.]—John Barrymore, stage and screen actor, is in a hospital here for a rest, it was learned tonight. He is expected to leave the institution in about a week.

Name It "Absaroka"

Sheridan, Wyo., March 2.—(AP)—And now there's talk in these parts of a 49th state, which some would name Absaroka. It would embrace western South Dakota, the northern third of Wyoming, and a tier of counties along the southern boundary of Montana.

Absaroka is the tribal name of the Crow Indian nation. It is said to be the most suited to this land of hills and valleys, where the red man made his last stand before encroaching civilization. Here is how the state would be formed:

From Wyoming—The northern third of the state, including Yellowstone park and the counties of Teton, Park, Hot Springs, Washakie, Big Horn, Sheridan, Johnson, Campbell, Weston, Crook, and a portion of Fremont.

From South Dakota—The western, or Black Hills portion of the state, including the counties of Harding, Perkins, Butte, Mead, Lawrence, Pennington, Custer, Washington, Shannon, Fall River, and portions of Washabaugh and Bennett.

FRANCE SEIZES ARMS AT BORDER; JAILS SMUGGLER

LILLE, France, March 2.—(AP)—French police wondered tonight whether they were dealing with international terrorists or smugglers supplying guns for French political groups, after customs officials seized a quantity of contraband arms at the Belgian frontier.

The seizure included nine sub-machine guns, a large automatic pistol, a repeating carbine and 4,300 cartridges.

All the arms, found hidden under the gasoline tank of an automobile, came from the Belgian national gun factory at Herstal. The driver, who was arrested, said unidentified persons paid him 300 francs at Tournai where the arms were put in the car.

The Tissue with a Multitude of Uses

—As a Handkerchief

The soft texture of Poujol tissues will not irritate the nose—and usually irritation will result during the course of a cold if handkerchiefs are used continually. No germs can be carried because the tissues are disposed of immediately instead of joining the family laundry in dangerous contamination.

—Removing Cold Cream

Poujol tissues are the modern way to remove grime and soil and cold cream from the face. Their softness will not scratch or irritate the skin . . . their highly absorbent qualities make it unnecessary to stretch the pores in digging up the cold cream.

—A Puff Protector, Lipstick Tissue

Poujol tissues will keep your powder puff immaculate and fresh in a crowded purse. And always carry a folded sheet in your purse to remove surplus lipstick and save your handkerchiefs.

—Cleaning Eye Glasses, Even China

Poujol tissues will polish the lenses of eyeglasses to a new clarity. They will give your china and glassware a new, lustrous sheen that a towel can never supply. A single sheet will clean many glasses.

MARCH 3, 1935. A *

N. U. ROUTS INDIANA, 40-22; WISCONSIN WINS

21,000 TO SEE FINAL GOLDEN GLOVES BOUTS FRIDAY

32 FIGHTERS TO BATTLE FOR CHAMPIONSHIPS

Seats Going Fast for Stadium Card.

Warning

It has been reported that counterfeit tickets are in circulation for the Golden Gloves finals Friday. For your protection purchase tickets only at the Tribune public service offices, Tribune Tower or 1 South Dearborn street.

BY FRENCH LANE.

They're not all sold yet, mind you, but all of the 21,000 seats in the huge Chicago Stadium will be occupied next Friday night when the lads from all over Chicagoland put on their final battles for THE TRIBUNE's diamond studded Golden Gloves.

The 32 boys who so gallantly fought their way into these championship matches in the great Tournament of Champions last week must have made a tremendous hit with the boxing public.

For here's the situation this morning, five days before the first warriors climb through the ropes:

All the ringside seats priced at $3.30 and $2.20 have been sold. So have all the $1.10 seats.

Get Yours Now!

Remaining are plenty of good seats priced at $1.65 and the gallery ducats at 55 cents. All are reserved. They were going so fast yesterday that a sell-out was certain.

There's something about the wicked punches which such boys as Otis Thomas, Patsy Urso, Johnny Brown, Pat Kelly, George Dungey, and Jimmy Fontana toss out that has "caught on." When they clash in their own little head-on collisions everybody, it seems, wants to be there.

Twelve of the forty cities which sent their champions to the Tournament of Champions still have a chance to cut in on a slice of the spoils.

Chicago	10	Davenport	1
Cleveland	5	Fort Wayne	1
Detroit	4	South Bend	1
Bloomington	3	Green Bay	1
Omaha	2	Dayton	1
Gary	2	Centralia	1

Team championship trophies are awarded to the Chicago club winding up with the most winners and also to the out of town newspapers which provide the most champions.

C. Y. O. Leads for Trophy.

The Chicago trophy appears to be safely in the hands of the Catholic Youth organization. Seven hard scrapping C. Y. O. boys, including some of the great stars of the tournament, worked out yesterday for their engagements Friday night.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer team holds an advantage for out of town honors. Yet anything can happen in these furious struggles, so the Detroit Free Press, Bloomington Pantagraph, the Omaha World-Herald, or the Gary Post-Tribune might win.

The eight champions who go on to capture the titles Friday night will make up the Chicago team that fights the champions from New York, recruited by the New York News, in the intercity matches also to be at the Stadium on the night of March 29.

Regardless of who wins or loses in the Tournament of Champions finals Chicagoland will send its greatest team against the invading New York forces this year. Even the mysterious New York scouts admitted as much.

It Is in the Family.

Around Chicago for three days much talk has been heard about Jerry Mulcahy, the Chicago Irish kid who, unheralded and unsung, punched his way to the top ranks and a chance at the Golden Gloves title.

For a time it was believed that Jerry, who knocked out all his opponents in the Tournament of Champions, hailed from the west side.

Instead Jerry is a south sider and his father, Mike Mulcahy, was a former well known boxer and semi-pro baseball player on the south side some years back. Mike Mulcahy now is an engineer on the Chicago Belt Line railroad, yet has found enough spare time on his hands to teach Jerry how to deliver a wicked punch either with his right or left.

Chicago 118, 126 Pounders Greatest Ever

BY WILFRID SMITH.

When Chicago's intercity team, which will meet New York's champions at the Stadium on March 29 goes into training, it may be that the coaches will have many worries. Coaches of all sports generally find something to distract them. Right now, however, practically on the eve of the finals of Chicago's greatest Golden Gloves tournament, it would seem that there is more than sufficient ability in all eight weight classes to whip any team in the world.

The boys remaining in the 1935 battle for a diamond studded golden glove—32 in eight weights—include four of last year's champions, Jesse Levels and Troy Bellini of Cleveland, Al Nettlow of Detroit, and Otis Thomas, of Chicago. These boys still must prove their right to retain the title of best amateur boxer in the central and southern states.

Eight Great Fighters.

The bantamweight and featherweight contenders in the finals Friday night at the Stadium comprise a group of fast, clever, hard hitting boxers whose like never has been seen in the eight years of Golden Gloves history. In each class is the defending champion. The semi-finalists are:

118 POUNDS.

Troy Bellini, Cleveland [champion].
John Brown, C. Y. O., Chicago.
Edgar Waling, Detroit.
William Joyce, Gary, Ind.

126 POUNDS.

Al Nettlow, Detroit [champion].
Andy Scrivani, C. Y. O., Chicago.
Pat Kelly, Cleveland.
Jerry Mulcahy, Chicago.

Johnny Brown and William Joyce reached the semi-finals of the flyweight Golden Gloves tournament last year. Brown whipped Patsy Urso [a flyweight semi-finalist this year] to advance to the championship where he lost to Jesse Levels. Levels last year defeated Joyce in the semi-finals.

Pairings Made by Lot.

The schedule of bouts in the semi-finals is a matter of luck. The contestants will report at the Chicago Stadium on Friday afternoon between 2 and 3 o'clock. They will weigh in and be examined. At 3 o'clock the pairings will be made for the semi-finals by drawing numbers from 1 to 4. Those drawing numbers 1 and 2 meet in the first semi-final in each weight class while those drawing numbers 3 and 4 meet in the second semi-final.

The tournament opens at 8 o'clock with the flyweights and finishes with the heavyweight class.

Andy Scrivani of the C. Y. O. is another veteran in the featherweight class. Scrivani won a decisive victory over Irving Goldstein in the 126 pound semi-finals last year and then lost to Nettlow for the championship. This decision also was unanimous.

Bellini International Champ.

Troiano [Troy] Bellini, 19 year old Italian, attends Lincoln High school, Cleveland. He's a protégé of Jimmy Avon and in 1933 he began his Golden Gloves career as runner-up for the 112 pound Cleveland championship. In 1934 he won the Cleveland and Chicago titles in the 118 pound division and last May whipped the champion of Poland at the Chicago Stadium. Bellini was beaten in the National A. A. U. tournament at St. Louis, which ended his record of 22 consecutive victories. He plays baseball and basketball and hopes to become an auto and radio mechanic.

Johnny Brown, of the C. Y. O., who sells newspapers, began his boxing with a Novice C. Y. O. championship in 1933. Last December he won the class A title in the C. Y. O. tournament. Johnny was a member of the Chicago Intercity Golden Gloves team and lost to the New York flyweight champion in a close three round decision. Johnny's 20 years of age, and while he has been boxing only a few months more than a year, he's regarded as one of the outstanding amateurs in this territory.

Walings Are Good.

Edgar Waling, Detroit's entry in this class, is a brother of Edwin Waling, one of Detroit's best boxers. Edgar has won three Detroit Golden Gloves titles and a National A. A. U. championship. Waling is 18 and attends the Ford Trade school. His ambition is to become an electrical engineer.

William Joyce, 17 year old colored lad from Gary, Ind., attends Roosevelt High school in that city. He was born in Toledo, O., and since he began his amateur boxing in the Steel city

[Copyright: 1935: By United Press.]

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 2.—[U. P.]—Sir Malcolm Campbell's efforts to lift the world's land speed record to an even 300 miles an hour nearly ended in his death today when, with his huge Bluebird roaring along the beach at 250, the cowling of the car succumbed to the terrific wind pressure and heat and broke from its moorings.

The British driver still was nearly two miles short of the measured mile and still picking up speed when he was suddenly enveloped in deadly, white hot tetra-ethyl fumes as the bonnet ripped loose and slipped across the mouths of the monstrous exhaust pipe, partially choking them. At the same time the far end of the bonnet, red with heat, rose wildly in the air, cutting off his vision.

Jams On Brakes.

Without hesitation Campbell, probably with a thought for Lady Campbell and his 11 year old daughter Jean, who were watching from the timing tower, lifted his foot from the throttle, switched off the motor, and threw on both the hand and foot brakes.

As he swept through the measured mile, in front of the timers, reporters, and a solid mass of the some 50,000 spectators who lined the dunes, Bluebird and Campbell still were traveling so fast no one was aware of his danger. And when his time for the measured mile was announced as 188.186 m. p. h. the crowd voiced its disapproval.

Undaunted, Campbell, immediately upon reaching the southern tip of the course, ordered his mechanics to hammer down the cowling and make ready for a return run. Fifteen minutes later the job had been done, and he swung Bluebird around and headed back. This time the left side of the cowling gave way, to send him through the same harrowing experience. And again he was forced to throttle down just when the 2,500 horsepower motor was preparing to issue its final challenge to time.

Averages 205 M. P. H.

Campbell's best two miles [the International Racing federation requires him to strike an average from the same stretch of the track] gave him an average time of 205.362. The fifth mile was used in striking the average. Going south, Campbell was in and out of the traps guarding this mile in 15.82 seconds for a speed of 227.560. Coming home, against the wind, he covered it in 19.24 seconds for a speed of 187.110.

Were it not for the rules requiring him to use the same mile on both runs, his average speed would have been higher, for going down he sped through the fourth mile at 233.462, and running north negotiated the measured mile, the fifth mile, in 208.212 m. h. p.

Campbell probably would have substantially boosted his present record of 272.108 if it had not been for the accident to the cowling, for he was doing 250 when forced to cut off the motor, with still nearly two miles in which to gather speed before entering the measured mile, and Bluebird needs a full five miles to do her fastest.

Miserable Beach Conditions.

The crowd, which was strung out on the dunes for the entire 11 miles of the course, was completely ignorant of Campbell's distress. Reports from the loudspeakers made no mention of his trouble, and in addition, quoted Campbell as expressing satisfaction with the beach.

Such was far from true. He found the beach miserable.

"It was the worst ride of my life," he said later in his hotel room. "The beach was bumpy to the extreme, and it was soft and wet. To make matters worse I was forced to make a right hand turn shortly after coming through the pier pilings on my run south, and swinging seven tons of steel at 125 miles an hour, is deucedly uncomfortable."

Campbell is expected to try again tomorrow.

MANHATTAN WINS TITLE AGAIN IN I. C. 4-A TRACK

New York, March 2.—(AP)—In a spectacular meet marked by one world's record performance and the shattering of three meet records, Manhattan's strong track and field team tonight captured the Intercollegiate A. A. A. indoor for the second successive year. Manhattan staged a brilliant finish to retain the title in a five cornered battle for points.

Manhattan, making a sweep of the relay races, pulled away from rival teams in the last few events to post the winning total of 26½ points. Harvard finished second with 16, Columbia third with 15 2-3, Cornell fourth with 15½, and Yale fifth with 14.

Dreyer Breaks Weight Record.

Double triumphs for two of the record smashers, Keith Brown of Yale and Ben Johnson of Columbia, featured the struggle for individual honors while Rhode Island's Henry Dreyer contributed the only world record performance by tossing the 35 pound weight a distance of 57 feet 9 inches.

Brown won the high jump outright for the first time in his college career and then soared to a new meet mark of 14 feet 3¼ inches in his specialty, the pole vault, subsequently failing in three attempts to negotiate the world record height of 14 feet 5½ inches.

Johnson Wins 50 Meter Dash.

110 Star 3-Year Olds Are Named for Kentucky Derby

Louisville, Ky., March 2.—(AP)—The annual quest for the glory and cash that go with winning a Kentucky Derby was under way today following the announcement by Col. Matt J. Winn of a list of 110 eligible thoroughbreds.

Of this class of fleet and sturdy 3 year olds, including Chance Sun, leading 2 year old money winner of 1934, probably less than a score will go to the post at Churchill Downs Saturday afternoon, May 4, when the bugle sounds for the sixty-first running of America's turf classic.

Those who fall by the wayside from either injuries or lack of class during the next two months' training, may include some of the most highly favored today.

Wright Names Nellie Flag.

The list of eligibles includes virtually every thoroughbred that stood out in 2 year old racing last year. In addition to Joseph E. Widener's Chance Sun there are Warren Wright's Nellie Flag, Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan's Psychic Bid, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Plat Eye, and Col. E. R. Bradley's Boxthorn.

Col. Bradley, who is the only winner of four Kentucky Derbies, was unable to nominate his likeliest colt, Balladier. He had announced early that ailing legs would prevent Balladier from getting ready.

Easterners far outnumbered the west in the list of 71 owners subscribing to the event, and they appeared to have the best chance of winning the $40,000 added prize. The 110 nominations were the smallest number since 1922, when Morvich won. The list includes 73 colts, 28 geldings, and 9 fillies. Four of the colts are imported.

Chance Sun at 6 to 1.

Chance Sun, months ago installed as the winter book choice by virtue of his winnings of $83,985 last year, goes into training as a 6 to 1 favorite.

Although fillies have never fared well in Kentucky Derbies, Calumet farm's Nellie Flag, winner of the Kentucky Jocky club stakes at Churchill Downs last fall, stands out as a dangerous contender with a chance of duplicating Regret's performance of nearly two decades ago.

Other leading stake contenders of 1934 which will train for the Derby are Try Sympathy, St. Bernard, Wise Prince, Sailor Beware, Brannon, Blackbirder, Vicaress, Morpluck, Esposa, Commonwealth, Polish Beau, Special Agent, Sound Advice, Roman Soldier, Omaha, Today, Pitter Pat, Billy Bee, Weston, Gallant Prince, and Good Flavor.

William Woodward's Belair stud, whose Gallant Fox won the 1930 Derby, heads the list of nominators with seven candidates. Warren Wright's Calumet farm of Lexington is second with six nominees. Four each were named by Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who tried for the prize last year with Discovery; Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, a liberal nominator in the past; Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan's Brookmeade stable, winner last year with Cavalcade; Willis Sharpe Kilmer and the Milky Way stable of Mrs. F. C. Mars.

Two Sons of Reigh Count.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable, always a strong contender, named three candidates headed by Plat Eye. Something of a stir was caused in Los Angeles turf circles because Mrs. Whitney did not nominate Gillie, winner of the Santa Anita Derby Feb. 16. When Gillie was scratched from the Santa Anita handicap it was believed he was being saved for the Kentucky Derby. Gillie, however, was not considered a topnotcher as a 2 year old.

Mrs. John D. Hertz, whose Reigh Count won the 1928 Derby, returns as a contender this year, nominating two sons of Reigh Count.

Ten offspring of three other Derby winners will attempt to duplicate the feat of their sires. The candidates include six sired by Gallant Fox, three by Morvich and one by Flying Ebony.

Filled Leg May Keep Azucar Out of Coast Stake

Los Angeles, Cal., March 2.—[Special.]—Azucar, F. M. Alger's winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, may be out of next Saturday's $10,000 closing day feature, the San Juan handicap, it was stated at Santa Anita race track today.

Azucar is said to be suffering from a filled leg, injured slightly when he stepped on a stone. The horse has not breezed since the big race a week ago.

While the injury is not serious, it may hamper Alger's plans to race the horse in California in the near future. Azucar probably will run in the $25,000 Bay Meadows handicap late this month.

WILDCATS RUIN HOOSIER HOPES IN BIG TEN RACE

Badgers Grab Share of Title.

Northwestern blasted Indiana's hopes for a share of the Big Ten basketball title at Patten gym last night with a burst of their pre-conference shooting that buried the Hoosiers, 40 to 22.

In a brilliant reversal of form that astonished their own followers, the Wildcats sped to an early lead, piled up a 21 to 10 margin at the half and repeated this performance in the second period. Indiana never was in the running after the first few plays.

Four sophomores and the veteran Lyle Fisher all figured in the scoring rampage, with the latter's seven field goals and one free throw giving him 15 points and individual scoring honors. Typical of Fisher's speedy play was his interception of a Hoosier pass and a dribble half the length of the floor for a basket.

With five minutes to play and the count at 35 to 19, Coach Dutch Lonborg sent in Co-Capt. Kawal and Rosenfeld for Bender and Blume and the Wildcats were content to stall. Fisher scored his seventh basket and retired in favor of Mercer with two minutes left to play. Lineup:

WISCONSIN, 48; CHICAGO, 25

Wisconsin's polished basketball team, rolling up its biggest score of the season, assured itself of a share, at least, in the 1934 Big Ten championship by sweeping through Chicago 48 to 25 at the Midway fieldhouse last night.

The Badgers can take undisputed possession of the title by defeating Purdue at Lafayette Monday night, but a Purdue victory would give Illinois and the Boilermakers a chance for a slice of the top honors.

It was a thorough pasting that Wisconsin gave the Maroons last night, and it was crowned by the fact that Bill Haarlow, leading scorer of the conference, was held without a field goal by two Badger guards, Gil MacDonald for the first 33 minutes and Ray Hamann for the last seven. Haarlow, however, made ten free throws in ten chances, bringing his season total up to 156 points.

Haarlow's feat in capitalizing on all his free throw chances last night was remarkable, because he had scored nine in nine chances in his previous game against Illinois last Monday for a consecutive total of 19.

ILLINOIS, 41; MINNESOTA, 29

Champaign, Ill., March 2.—[Special.] Inspired by the possibility of a share in the Big Ten championship, Illinois swept over Minnesota in the first half tonight and although the Gophers rallied somewhat in the second period they never were able to threaten the Illini, who triumphed 41 to 29. Illinois led 25 to 8 at the half.

Bob Riegel, sophomore center; Roy Guttschow, veteran forward, playing his last home game, and Wib Henry, sophomore guard, led the Illini scoring, but Capt. Frank Froschauer was an all-around factor in repulsing the Gophers.

George Roscoe, using his one handed push shot, topped the Gopher point getters with 10 points. The Gophers came back strong in the second half to outscore the Illini, but the home team kept a comfortable margin all the way. Minnesota made five of eight free throws and Illinois nine of 17. The Illini will play their last game against Michigan Monday.

Columbus, O., March 2.—[Special.]—Ohio State closed its Big Ten basketball season here tonight by beating Michigan, 30 to 28. The Buckeyes, after taking a big lead in the first half, were hard pressed to stave off a last minute rally by Michigan substitutes. Ohio finished with 8 victories and 4 defeats.

Meyers, Oliver, and Plummer, three Wolverines who entered the game late, accounted for most of the team's points. Meyers scored nine on four baskets and a free throw.

HARVARD WHIPS FORT SHERIDAN POLOISTS, 6-5½

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Three veteran United States army polo players learned a few pointers from some college boys last night when the Harvard university team defeated Fort Sheridan, 6 to 5½. The event, sponsored by the Harvard Club of Chicago, drew an overflow crowd to the 124th Field Artillery armory.

The eastern boys, who had arrived only a few hours before the game, had considerable difficulty with their borrowed ponies in the first period, and for a time it seemed that the Army would have much the best of it. But as the game progressed Harvard became more and more effective and rapidly cut down the soldiers' advantage. Maj. C. A. Wilkinson, who learned to play polo about the time the Harvard boys were outgrowing their rompers, dominated the first period.

Army Takes Early Lead.

In quick succession, he knocked in three goals, but he also committed two fouls. A goal by Lieut. Greiner and a foul by Lieut. Col. Chamberlain brought the score to 3½ to 0 at the end of the first chukker, the Army having received one point by handicap.

Winmill made Harvard's first goal from nearly half the length of the field shortly after the start of the second period. The trend of the game shifted from that point, for Davis and Winmill again scored in rapid fire order to make it 4½ to 3 at half time, Wilkinson having rapped in another goal for the Army in the second period.

Pony Kicks in a Goal.

Davis of Harvard was the only man to score in the third chukker. Early in the last period, the same player's pony kicked in a goal to give the Crimson the lead for the first time in the evening. Immediately thereafter, the Army went to the front on a shot by Chamberlain, but Davis came right back to score the last point of the game with a clever near side stroke from about 30 yards out.

Soldiers Clinch Second Place Tie.

The 124th Field Artillery clinched a tie for second place in the final Metropolitan league standings by beating the Detroit Eagles, 12 to 6½, in the opening game of the evening. Lieut. Don Rice of the winners gave an outstanding performance, making seven points to tie the league record for individual scoring. His four goals in the first period gave the Artillerymen a sufficiently long lead to withstand the determined comeback of the Detroit team.

The Artillery held a 7 to 6 advantage at half time and continued vigorously in the last two chukkers, making five more goals while restricting the Eagles to one.

122D BEATS TROOP

The 122d field artillery took first place in the Black Horse Troop Polo league by defeating the Troopers, 16½ to 7, at the Chicago Riding club last night.

In the first game the Riding Club Seniors moved into a two way tie for second place by beating the Bees, 16½ to 5. The Centaurs won from the Tiger Lilies girls, 5½ to 2, in the third match of the evening.

Influenza Puts Stoefen Out of Tilden Net Troupe

Tacoma, Wash., March 2.—[U. P.]—Lester Stoefen, seriously ill of influenza, was forced today to drop out of the Tilden professional tennis troupe. Stoefen has been kept in bed since Thursday night when, against doctors' orders, he played in a tennis exhibition.

Alumni Give Harvard Team Big Welcome

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Harvard alumni of Chicago may have been denied the privilege of entertaining for their varsity polo team during its six hour visit yesterday, but they gave the team members a rousing welcome last night at the 124th Field Artillery armory, where they played a Fort Sheridan trio.

With their fairest ladies, formally clad, they filled the box circle around the big tanbark arena and cheered lustily the hard riding and lightning plays that brought victory by a 6 to 5½ score for the young men from Cambridge.

There was more than polo skill, however, to attract the fashionable gallery. By their attendance and enthusiasm the Crimson followers also recognized the fact that this was the first time that a Harvard athletic team has played in Chicago and that the proceeds from the evening's entertainment were going to swell the scholarship fund of the Harvard club of Chicago.

Recent Graduates Entertain.

Mrs. Joseph Medill Patterson was hostess to one of the parties at dinner and the polo game. Entertaining for Mr. and Mrs. Roy McWilliams of Biarritz, France, she had among her 16 guests, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson. Others were Russell Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harris Brewer and Morris Leidy Johnston.

Strong Harvard Rooters.

There was no couple in the armory that applauded the Harvard boys more heartily than Mr. and Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr. Mr. Douglas was graduated from Harvard in 1924 and Mrs. Douglas is a cousin of Nancy Whitman of Boston to whom Thomas J. Davis Jr., of Cincinnati, captain of the Crimson's polo team, is engaged. Miss Whitman's mother is the former Adelaide Chatfield Taylor of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas were guests of Col. and Mrs. Charles C. Haffner, who entertained 40 friends at dinner and the game for Gen. Frank R. McCoy, new commandant of the Sixth corps area, and Mrs. McCoy. The dinner was served in the Officers' club in the armory and afterwards the party occupied the huge stone front box at the north end of the arena.

Work Hard on Game.

Although Harlow N. Higinbotham and John W. Valentine had worked harder than most any one to plan the polo benefit, they were not too weary to enjoy the evening's entertainment. Mr. Valentine with Mrs. Valentine entertained the Herbert McLaughlins, Gardner Brown, Miss Jean O'Brien, Miss Helen Dawes and Huntington Eldridge.

Miss Jean Schweppe, who returned from New York yesterday, was hostess in the box of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe. Still others who entertained box parties included Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cable, Edward I. Cudahy, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee, and the Ingram brothers, Carl and Dwight.

DE PAUL DEFEATS ST. LOUIS, 36 TO 23, FOR 14TH VICTORY

De Paul's basketball team beat St. Louis university last night, 36 to 23, for its fourteenth victory in 15 games this season.

Led by Capt. Frank Linskey and Nick Yost, the Demons set the pace all the way, leading by three points at the half. A long basket by Dirksen at the opening of the second period cut De Paul's margin to one point, but another spurt again put the Chicagoans well out in front. The victory was De Paul's second of the season over St. Louis. Lineup:

he has dominated the bantamweight and flyweight divisions. He played on Roosevelt's basketball team.

Nettlow Eyes New York.

The featherweight champion of 1934 is Al Nettlow, well known to Chicagoans not only as Golden Gloves winner, but as winner in the international bouts with Poland. Nettlow also won the National A. A. U. tournament at St. Louis last April. He's employed at a Detroit automobile factory, is 19 years of age, and won't be satisfied until he has whipped a New York Golden Glove boxer.

Andy Scrivani, another pupil of Paddy Kane and Dick Fitzpatrick of the C. Y. O., attends St. Philip High school. Andy is 18 and has been boxing two years. He is Nettlow's greatest rival on the basis of last year's records. Scrivani lost in the 1934 intercity fights with New York to Sedgwick Harvey.

Jerry Hammers 'Em.

Jerry Mulcahy, a 19 year old Irish fighter from Chicago's south side, is tutored by Joe Heniff, who believes he is the best of the featherweights in Friday's tournament. Mulcahy pounded his way through the Tournament of Champions in impressive fashion. Last year he was a semi-finalist in THE TRIBUNE's Novice tournament. His father was a professional boxer.

Pat Kelly, Cleveland's entry, is Italian and Irish and the "Kelly" is tribute to his mother. But his flaming red hair fits the Kelly part of his ancestry. It also fits his coach's name, Joe Kelly. Pat is 19 years of age and his only tournament experience before winning the 1935 Plain Dealer tournament was in the 1934 novice meet in which he was runner-up.

YOUNG PITCHERS TO GET CHANCE TO WIN FOR SOX

Tietje, Stine to Be Named as Starters.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 2.—If any one thinks Jim Dykes, who manages the White Sox, is in for a summer of ease, the belief can be corrected without much trouble. All that is necessary is to run down the list of the eight teams in the scramble, make a few comparisons, and then come to a conclusion. The conclusion, after a paper comparison, which sometimes proves inaccurate, is that the outlook for the Pale Hose is not what you could term pleasing. In fact, right now there is no reason to predict that the Sox can do anything more than seek consolation in seventh place, the St. Louis Browns being the one team they might nose out.

The above will be highly disconcerting for those responsible for assembling a 1935 machine and those who are hoping that the machine will amount to something. The statement is made without allowance for the possibility that one or two athletes of worth might be uncovered either during spring training or at some time in the first half of the regular season. Two such fellows might boost the Sox toward the top of the second division. About four are needed for a shot at the first bracket.

Will Give Rookies a Chance.

It is Dykes' hope and ambition that he'll be able to go along for at least part of the season, if not all of it, without regard for the sorry aspects of the percentage column. In other words, the Sox manager, knowing how much reupholstering must be done, wants to do it in a logical way. That is, he wants to build up by letting his hopefuls learn under fire, whether they win or lose. That's a sure way to get a line on them, but it might be displeasing to the owner because a team that can't win can't draw customers.

However, in the case of the Sox there is not much to lose. They haven't drawn to any extent in recent years. Neither have they showed any improvement by sticking to old men and not taking a gamble on youngsters who can't be fully judged by a short stay in a training camp.

Will Start New Pitchers.

He might change his mind before going far, but the idea now in Dykes' head is to go through the season, for better or worse, with new pitchers doing about 75 per cent of the starting. He got this idea from what Connie Mack did with the Athletics last season.

It is a bit early to pick a pitching staf, but Dykes believes the four young fellows on whom he'll pin his faith until they get their ears knocked off are Les Tietje, John Whitehead, Lee Stine, and Vernon Kennedy. There is a chance, of course, that after a couple of months of this he might get at least two able to continue to the finish. That wouldn't be bad because he still has, George Earnshaw, who can pitch; Sam Jones, who can pitch if properly rested; Edward Durham, who may do a comeback, and a couple of others.

Tietje Coming Star.

Tietje, after a season and a half with the Sox, has proved that he has great possibilities. He lost a lot of well pitched games last year through no fault of his own. Kennedy is a former Mackman who recovered after Mack had turned him adrift because of a bum arm. Whitehead is from the Texas league, where he was looked upon a better pitcher than his predecessor, Tietje. Whitehead won 19 while losing 10 last year. Stine was recalled after a prosperous season at Milwaukee.

Whether Ted Lyons can come back is doubtful. It is mainly a matter of confidence in himself. Whitlow Wyatt has a world of speed, but never has had control. He may show improvement as the result of an operation on his right elbow last summer. Durham was an excellent pitcher in 1933, but arm trouble removed him from action all of last season. Behind this assortment of pitchers is Babe Phelps, once banished from the Brooklyn team, where life was easy because of indifference. Babe is reported to have changed his attitude.

Sox and Pirates to Return.

Today's workout was curtailed because of wet grounds and finally a rain which drove the boys indoors. News reel camera men also took up considerable of the time. The squad was enlarged this morning by the arrival of Infielders Luke Appling and Marshall Mauldin. Both hail from Atlanta, Ga.

Lou Comiskey, Sox president, had a talk today with President William Benswanger of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who are training at San Bernardino, Cal. They agreed to return to California for training next year even if the Coast league does make good its threat to close its parks to big league exhibitions. Tomorrow will be an off day.

GOMEZ SIGNS 2 YEAR CONTRACT WITH YANKEES

New York, March 2.—[Special.]—After being a holdout for less than 24 hours, Vernon [Lefty] Gomez, star of the New York Yankee's pitching staf, came to terms today, thus leaving Col. Jacob Ruppert with only one player, Pitcher Charlie Ruffing, to be signed.

The tall southpaw agreed to accept a contract for two years calling for a salary of $20,000 a year, making him the highest paid pitcher in baseball today. This figure tops slightly the salary for which Dizzy Dean agreed last month to accept from the Cardinals. Dean's salary was announced as between $17,500 and $19,000. Carl Hubbell of the Giants is understood to receive about $19,000.

Gomez immediately made preparations to start for the Yankee's training camp at St. Petersburg tomorrow.

Marian Miley Captures South Atlantic Golf Title

Ormond Beach, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—Miss Marian Miley of Lexington, Ky., today won the South Atlantic women's golf championship, defeating Miss Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., 5 and 4.

SOX AND CUBS START A NEW YEAR WITH NEW HOPES

Frank Demaree, who set the Pacific Coast league on fire last year, is back for a second whirl with the Cubs. He says one outfield berth belongs to him.

Cubs Discover it Rains in California; Drill Spoiled

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 2.—Old mother nature's California department, which hadn't upset the Cubs since the jolly earthquake on March 10, 1933, turned on a heavy rain last night and another downpour at noon today. As a consequence such drilling as there was proved to be strictly catch as catch can.

There was no hitting or fielding practice. The battery men did some work indoors and the other athletes sprinted hither and yon wherever they could find semi-dry tracks. It was the first time in three years that rain had blotted out a routine drill on Catalina Island.

Despite the arduous character of yesterday's workout few aches and pains were reported. This was accounted for by the fact that there are more kids hereabouts than have attended a Cub training camp in recent years and because such old gents as are present no longer kid themselves about their sprightliness and have spent the winter conditioning themselves.

Vaicek Has Tooth Yanked.

The nearest to becoming a sick bay inmate today was Carl Vaicek, 20 year old pitcher, a Chicago boy who waited till he got out here to have a tooth yanked. The tooth was extracted this morning without much misery and he is expected to be himself again, come Monday.

Chuck Klein, who has been sick and depressed ever since he signed his 1935 contract, seemed to be suffering less as he lounged about the recreation room today. Everybody has been so busy worrying about the congestion in Chuck's chest that many have forgotten to inquire about the state of his sick leg, given as the reason for his unfortunate showing last season. The leg is said to be all right.

Manager Grimm continued to read reports that the Pittsburgh Pirates, in training at San Bernardino, Cal., are negotiating for exhibition contests with the Cubs on March 8 and 9, but still hasn't heard a word from Manager Pie Traynor on that or any other subject. And whether he does or not, the Cubs will not play the Pirates in California except on March 14 and 15, the two dates on which they are scheduled to open their exhibition season at Wrigley field, Los Angeles.

No Denials on New Camp.

The weather today did not bring any new talk about the probability that the Cubs will train in Florida next spring. While there has been no confirmation of the plan, there also have been no denials. If any Florida or other southern city has invited the Cubs to pitch camp a year hence, the fact has not been made known. But, of course, there is plenty of time for the inviters, if any, to take pen in hand when and if they are seized with surges of cordiality.

Southern specialists in hospitality can feel assured, however, that the snootiness that has developed out here toward the Cubs is in no way due to any overt act by Cub officials or players. The Coast league simply has taken the view that the showing of major league clubs takes the edge off the Coast league show.

If major league stars quit coming out here the well known Pacific psychology is such that the fans hereabouts soon can be built to the notion that the Pacific Coast league is the major league and that the National and American leagues are minors. It is difficult now to handle even the California credo with major stars showing out here every spring.

Catholic Prep Fives Reach Semi-Finals

Decatur, Ill., March 2.—[Special.]—Fenwick of Oak Park will meet St. Bede's of Peru and Marmion of Aurora will meet Spalding of Peoria in the semi-finals of the state Catholic high school basketball tournament tomorrow afternoon. The winners will play for the title which Corpus Christi of Galesburg held last year. Corpus Christi lost in the first round to Spalding.

Fenwick employed its height to advantage to eliminate Trinity of Bloomington, 25 to 14, tonight. Trinity resorted to long shots which were seldom successful. St. Bede's eliminated Quincy Academy, 26 to 20, by a spurt in the third quarter in which the victors ran the score to 24 to 10 at one time. The half score was 10 all.

St. Teresa Wins Consolation Game.

In a consolation semi-final St. Teresa of Decatur won, 27 to 9, from Routt of Jacksonville. St. Teresa will play Corpus Christi for the consolation award in an afternoon game. St. Teresa was consolation winner last year. Corpus Christi won the afternoon consolation semi-final from Cathedral of Springfield, 23 to 14.

Spalding defeated St. Patrick of Kankakee, 23 to 19, in an afternoon game.

St. Patrick, however, seldom was more than 2 or 3 points behind. Once, in the second quarter, the game was tied at 8 all, and again, in the third quarter, it was deadlocked at 15. Spalding, however, led by its center, Kelch, and Rodgers, always managed to pull ahead.

Marmion Wins, 22 to 17.

Marmion of Aurora played a much improved game in its second round contest to defeat Central of East St. Louis, 22 to 17. Partheiser of Aurora made all three of his baskets in the first half to help Marmion to a 15 to 8 lead. His mates increased the score to a 22 to 11 margin in the final quarter.

Charley Gelbert Drills with Cards, Seeks Durocher's Job

Bradenton, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—"I'm confident I'm fit for full time major league duty," Charley Gelbert said today as he announced his drive to wrest away the shortstop position on the world champion Cardinals from Leo Durocher. Gelbert showed unexpected stamina and agility in the workout.

Gelbert, whose baseball days seemed over two years ago when he accidentally shot himself in the leg, has made a determined fight to come back.

BROWNS MISS NEWSOM.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—The Browns' most effective 1934 battery—Buck Newsom and Rollie Hemsley—will be missing from the firing line when the team plays its first practice game tomorrow.

Newsom, troubled with a stubborn arm infection, still is at home under a doctor's care, while Hemsley, who had a heavy automobile jack fall on his foot, was limping badly today.

DRESSEN LIKES INFIELD.

Tampa, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—Manager Chuck Dressen of the Cincinnati Reds expressed belief today concerning his youngsters that soon "there will be no infield in the league that will outclass them to any great extent."

With nearly all regulars in camp, it was the rookies who dominated practice today, with Ival Goodman, Johnny Mize, and Gil Campbell banging the ball out of the field.

RUTH LEAVES TODAY.

New York, March 2.—[U. P.]—Babe Ruth is ready to depart tomorrow for an old familiar camping ground—St. Petersburg, Fla. For years Babe has made similar preparations, but this year he is going to the camp of the Boston Braves, of which club he is the newest member. The New York Yankees, Ruth's former club, also train at St. Petersburg.

DODGER PITCHER MUST REST.

Orlando, Fla., March 2.—[U. P.]—Leslie Munns, right-handed pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, today was ordered to take an extended rest as a precaution against complications resulting from a groin injury.

TIGER HURLERS FULL OF PEP.

Lakeland, Fla., March 2.—[U. P.]—Seven members of the Detroit Tigers' pitching staf were seized by ambition today and held practice, although the training season does not start officially until tomorrow. Mickey Cochrane, manager and catcher, chanced by the park and, without changing into uniform, joined in the informal drill.

Cochrane said that Pitchers Alvin Crowder and Firpo Marberry had been ordered to remain at Hot Springs, Ark., for further conditioning.

INDIANS TO START HITTING.

New Orleans, La., March 2.—(AP)—Pitchers and catchers finished the first phase of the Cleveland Indians' training season today and awaited the arrival of the main squad over the week-end.

Beginning Monday, batting practice will be the most important feature of the daily workouts. There are no contests in prospect for positions in the infield or outfield. The Indians are expected to carry six infielders through the season and of the six outfielders only Walter Carson is expected to be farmed out.

CRITZ JOINS GIANTS.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—Hughey Critz, second baseman, joined the New York Giants' squad for the afternoon workout, and Joe Moore, who hasn't reached a contract agreement with the club, was out this morning. Manager Bill Terry devoted considerable attention to his first base understudy, Joe Malay.

RED SOX SLOW DOWN.

Sarasota, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—An epidemic of sore muscles and blistered feet today slowed down the Boston Red Sox workout and forced Manager Joe Cronin to proclaim Sunday a day of rest for his hardworking batterymen.

Cronin held his first infield practice and after teaming up with third baseman Bill Werber, described the American league's leading base-stealer as "even faster than Ozzie Bluege."

TEXAS LEAGUE CARD.

Dallas, Tex., March 2.—(AP)—The 1935 baseball schedule of the Texas league was announced today. The season will open April 10 and close Sept. 18.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

They may be listed on the corporation rolls of the Dominion of Canada under the high sounding title of "Le Hocky Club de Canadien, Inc., but to ice fans everywhere they are the Montreal Canadiens, the Flying Frenchmen of hocky. And they'll still be that tonight when they invade the Chicago Stadium for their fifth battle of the season with the world champion Blackhawks.

It will be a member of "Le Hocky Club," etc., however, who will guide them at the Stadium, one of the corporation's principal stockholders. It isn't often that one of the boys from the business office steps down into the manager's seat, but such will be the case tonight when Leo Dandurand will do the thumping on the boards of the Canadiens' box. In addition to being a large shareholder in the property, Leo is secretary of the club.

Sale Called Off.

Less than two months ago Mr. Dandurand figured in several stories having to do with the likely sale of the Canadiens. Several people were interested in the franchise, even though the Frenchmen were doing none too well and were almost a cinch to be left out of the playoffs. Mr. Dandurand gave ear to a couple of potential American buyers in a New York hotel, one of whom offered $250,000.

Then, suddenly and mysteriously, Mr. Dandurand checked out of his hotel. Presently he turned up in Montreal and took over the managerial wheel from Newsy Lalonde, allowing he would take a whirl at running the club. How well he has done is attested by the late success of the Frenchmen in practically assuring themselves of a place in the playoffs. Last night they played in St. Louis with a three and a half game hold on third place over the New York Americans, who were going through the throes of visiting Toronto.

Has Old Dependables.

Of course, Mr. Dandurand is no miracle worker. He did not wave any wands to elevate the Canadiens from the cellar to a spot in the playoffs. He had to have a few hocky players, and found himself with more than some when he stepped in.

He found for one, little Aurel Joliat, present holder of the Hart trophy for being the most valuable player in the league. Aurel weighs only 135 pounds, but he's been one of the fastest in hocky for a dozen years, and if you care to start something, just knock that baseball cap he wears off his head. With Joliat are such other old dependables as Pit Lepine, the poke checker; the Mantha brothers, George and Sylvio; Armand Mondou and Johnny Gagnon. The Canadiens are not lacking in youthful talent, either, for they have Jack Riley, the only Irish born player in hocky; Wildor Larochelle, Roger [Broadway] Jenkins, late of the Hawks; Nels Crutchfield and Jack McGill.

MONTREAL, March 2.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins took undisputed possession of first place in the National Hocky league's American division tonight as they struggled to a 2-2 overtime tie with the Montreal Maroons before a crowd of 9,000. Yale Fencers Defeat Naval Academy, 16 to 11

Annapolis, Md., March 2.—(AP)—Displaying superior skill with the foil and saber, the fencing team of Yale university today defeated the Naval academy, 16 to 11.

HOWARD BREAKS TRACK RECORD IN HIALEAH FEATURE

Comes from Behind to Beat Felicity.

Miami, Fla., March 2.—[Special.]—The Araho stable's Howard raced to a new mile and a quarter track record before 12,000 at Hialeah Park today when he came from behind a fast pace to win by a neck in 2:02 1-5, time which lopped three-fifths of a second off the old mark, made by Blessed Event. Howard ran coupled in the betting with New Deal, which finished third, two lengths back to Fidelis.

Howard and New Deal recently were purchased by Walter O'Hara of Narragansett Park for Mrs. O'Hara, who conducts the Araho stable. The victory today was the first for Howard in the new colors. The victory was worth $2,360, with an additional $300 being gained by New Deal. In fourth place, beaten by a head for third, was the favorite, Stand Pat.

Sparta Wins Nursery Event.

The Jocky Club handicap divided interest with the Nursery stakes No. 2, $2,000 added for juvenile fillies. The victory here went to Hal Price Headley's Sparta, one of three which were coupled in the mutuel field. Glory Greenock was second, a head back of the winner and a length and a half before Seven Pines. The winner was clocked in :34 2-5 for the three furlongs down the Nursery course.

Entry Returns $7.

Egiht went to the post for the Jocky Club handicap, with Stand Pat being heavily backed despite his impost of 124 pounds. The entry was second choice, large wagers being made to place and show particularly. The return across the board on the entry was $7, $2.90, and $2.90.

Wayne Wright had the leg up and completed a double, as he previously had ridden Ægis to victory.

HEAVYWEIGHTS START FIGHT FOR BOUT WITH BAER

Joe Louis Meets Barry at San Francisco.

Boxing in the heavyweight division will reach a high peak this month with matches involving the champion and leading contenders throughout America and in Germany. As a result, before March expires fans no doubt will have a good idea against whom Max Baer will make his first championship defense this summer or fall.

Whereas previously the contenders, would-be and otherwise, repeatedly refused to meet for fear of being eliminated from further consideration, their recent actions have taken on a more aggressive tempo. Realization that Champion Baer will not accept any but the outstanding contender as his title opponent is said to be the reason for their switch from one extreme to the other.

Here are a few of the matches:

FRIDAY.

At San Francisco, Cal.—Joe Louis, Detroit, vs. Donald [Red] Barry, Washington, D. C. [10].

SUNDAY.

At Hamburg, Germany—Steve Hamas, Passaic, N. J., vs. Max Schmeling, Berlin [12].

MARCH 15.

MARCH 29.

At Detroit—Joe Louis vs. Charley Retzlaff [10], tentative.

In the event all of these bouts are held the current standings compiled monthly by The Ring, a New York magazine of international authority, probably will have to be changed. All of the aforementioned boxers except Barry and Impellittiere are listed among the first ten. It is obvious then that if Barry beats Louis and Impellittiere defeats Carnera their positions will be reversed.

Carnera is listed second in the ratings, only Hamas being ahead of him, and Louis is No. 5. Schmeling is in the No. 4 position. Retzlaff is named tenth, due to his knockout conquest of Al Ettore of Philadelphia a few weeks ago.

The fight with Red Barry at San Francisco will be Joe Louis' sixteenth professional start, in all of which he was victorious, twelve by knockouts. Barry, 24 years old, has been knocked out only once in seventy-five encounters, his conqueror being Tony Galento. Included among his victims are Tiger Jack Fox, Tony Cancela, Buck Everett, and Charlie Massare. He held Patsy Perroni to a ten round draw at Washington last June.

HAMMOND HIGH WRESTLERS WIN INDIANA TITLE

Bloomington, Ind., March 2.—[Special.]—Hammond High school wrestlers won their first team championship in the fourteenth annual Indiana high school wrestling tournament, concluded at Indiana university tonight. The Hammond team scored 43 points.

Roosevelt High school of East Chicago, defending champion, finished second and Bloomington third with 40 and 23 points, respectively. Hammond's four first place winners were Etienne, Zick, Adams, and Haak. Roosevelt had three winners and Bloomington two.

INDIANA BEATS PURDUE, 57-27, IN SWIM MEET

Bloomington, Ind., March 2.—[Special.]—Victory in both relays and in six other events enabled Indiana university's swimming team to defeat Purdue, 57 to 27, here today. Kerber won Purdue's only first place, capturing the 150 yard back stroke. Schneiderman won both free style dashes to lead Indiana. It was Indiana's second victory of the season over Purdue.

All-Star Team to Play Sparta Leaders Today

The main attraction for soccer fans today is the benefit match at Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, between an all-star team and the Sparta Leaders. The Stars will have the pick of local amateurs and professionals, with the exception of the Wieboldt Wonderbolts. The game starts at 2:45 o'clock with the Sparta Old Boys playing a preliminary against the Vikings at 1 o'clock.

Another important game today is the fourth round amateur cup match between the Slobodas and the Olympias. The winner will represent the west in the finals. The game will be played at 59th and Wood streets, starting at 2:30.

The Wieboldt Wonderbolts, who won from the Maccabees last week in the national cup series, now await the winner of the game between the Curries of Pittsburgh and the Marres of St. Louis. The Wonderbolts have arranged an exhibition match against the Italian A. C. at De Paul stadium, Sheffield and Webster avenues, at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Another indoor tournament will take place at the armory, 2652 West Madison street, with twelve teams lined up. The first game starts at 12:45 o'clock.

COMPANIES CAN BOOST EARNINGS BY REFINANCING

StrongBondDemand Offers Low Rates.

BY REUBEN CAHN.

One of the most remarkable facts in the present financial situation is the failure of corporations to take advantage of the prevailing strong demand for bonds of the highest grade. Old outstanding liens of financially impregnable corporations are selling at the highest prices since the issues were floated. This means that such companies can borrow at lower rates than they are now paying. They are in a position to avail themselves of these lower rates because there is usually a provision in the bonds providing for their retirement at the option of the company, upon the payment of a small premium.

At the end of last week, 142 bonds on the New York Stock Exchange and 110 issues on the New York Curb Exchange were selling above the call price. The failure of corporation directors to exercise the call privilege means that they are failing to get money for their corporations on as attractive terms as possible. In other words, directors, who have it within their power to increase in some cases rather substantially the earnings available for stockholders, are not doing so.

Gold Cases Cause of Delay.

While the gold clause cases were before the Supreme court, directors were justified in delaying the calls. For in most cases, the call price was defined in terms of money in circulation at the time the bonds were issued. Had the recent court decisions sustained the gold clause in private contracts, call prices would have been increased materially.

The Kansas City Power and Light company, which called some of its bonds for payment at 104½, would have had to pay 179 if the call had remained out and the Supreme court had held that bonds had to be paid in currency of the present equivalent of the old gold dollars. The company realized its hazard and rescinded the call while the cases were pending.

With the court refusing to sustain the gold clause, it might have been expected that a great number of corporations would call their bonds. There was the further reason for this expectation in the fact that the gold clause was knocked out by a 5 to 4 vote of the Supreme court justices.

Decision Might Be Changed.

In the legal tender cases involving a somewhat similar subject just after the civil war, there was also a split decision which was subsequently reversed with a change in the personnel of the court. And it must be considered a possibility that with a change of a few members of the court some years hence the gold clause decision might likewise be reversed. Corporation managements and stockholders would certainly feel more comfortable if the gold clause bonds were out of the way.

So far few calls have been issued since the Supreme court handed down its decisions. It is easy to understand what is now deterring corporation directors from taking advantage of the opportunity to get lower money rates for their corporations. So long as old issues are outstanding, the directors have no personal liability to bond owners.

But the sale of new issues would be under the security act, which makes directors personally liable for damages to bondholders for any untrue statement of a material fact or a failure to state material facts in connection with the registration or sale of new bond issues. Directors may be excused from such liability if it be shown that they conducted a reasonable investigation to inform themselves about the facts and had not learned of them or had not learned that they were false.

Directors Won't Assume Liability.

In a number of cases directors have ceased to serve on the boards of companies because of the possible liability for damages. In many other cases, directors have continued to accept election to the boards of companies, but have declined to assume the risk imposed upon directors by refusing to vote for the calling of bonds when to call them would save companies substantial sums. Thus, some directors are placing their own fortunes above those of the stockholders by whom they have been elected.

What seems likely is that we shall soon have a record flood of bond conversions and retirements, or directors of corporations will hear vigorously from their stockholders.

The point previously could be made that the cost of the preparation of the data required by the security commission in connection with the flotation of new issues, made the cost of financing prohibitive. A month and a half ago, the security commission substantially modified its requirements, reducing the information required so that any well managed corporation could supply the required data without great expense. At about the same time it was estimated that it was now profitable to refinance three billion dollars of callable issues outstanding.

Central Power Profits Higher During Last Year

The Central Power company, which serves 46 Nebraska communities, yesterday announced 1934 total gross earnings of $1,299,647, an increase of $170,071, or 15.1 per cent over 1933. Net income available for preferred stock dividends was placed at $38,610, as compared with $9,517 in 1933. The company said 1934 taxes of $75,227 represented an increase of $14,276 or almost 25 per cent over 1933, due primarily to additional payments to the federal government.

SEC Field Men Operate Like Crime Hunters

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Chicago in the last two weeks has had its first experience with the field agents of the Securities and Exchange commission—a New Deal agency set up last year to control the nation's security business.

The methods and makeup of the SEC agents in their brief stay here disclosed a striking similarity with the tactics and personnel of the division of investigation of the department of justice in the latter's drive against crime.

SEC agents are youthful, as are federal criminal hunters. The agents of both federal departments operate secretly. Speed is one of the chief weapons of both.

Subpenas Replace Pistols.

Instead of using pistols and gas, the SEC men use subpenas and "hearings" in their operations against persons whom they believe have violated the provisions of the securities and exchange act.

At the conclusion of the SEC mission here one difference was noted—the department of investigation agents—continue to maintain silence; the SEC agents are willing to talk. One of the chief reasons for this difference is that a great deal of the success of the SEC efforts rests on the widespread publicity given the disposition of cases. Public knowledge of fraudulent operations helps to stop such activities.

At the headquarters of the SEC in Washington the work is divided into two sections. John J. Burns has entire jurisdiction over the legal section and David Saperstein directs the trading and exchange division.

Has Free Lance Crews.

While the country has been divided up into districts for the enforcement of the act, with district headquarters in New York, Chicago, Boston, Atlanta, Houston, San Francisco, and Washington, it is said to be likely that the main office will always have free lance crews at its disposal to clean up difficult situations.

The group operating in Chicago recently included John L. Flynn, 27 year old attorney; Francis Currie, an examiner, about 27 years old, and Mark A. Dunham, an accountant, in his late thirties.

It is explained that no operation is undertaken unless the agents are reasonably sure that there has been a violation of the SEC provisions. In the case of a bucket shop operation, the agents move into a city and arm themselves with subpenas. They strike against the offices and homes of alleged SEC violators simultaneously so as to prevent them from skipping town with cash taken from victims.

Suspects Examined Sharply.

The persons under suspicion are then brought before an ex parte hearing in which they are presented with information possessed by the agents and cross-examined vigorously. One of the agents takes a quasi judicial position in presiding at the hearing.

Every statement made by anyone charged with a SEC violation is investigated immediately. In one Chicago case, the SEC agents sent a representative by airplane to New York one evening to check a story, and another to Cleveland for the same purpose. Both were back with statements that belied the witness within 48 hours. All testimony is given under oath, with prosecution for perjury overhanging those making false statements.

In recent weeks the SEC agents have largely concentrated their efforts in the east against tipster sheets and bucket shops. One of the agents told of raiding a bucket shop in Springfield, Mass. Here he found a secret room in which was a battery of twenty telephones over which employés sought to dispose of stock to victims, principally to investors in Chicago and the middle west.

CHIEF INDICES SHOW MODERATE TRADE DECLINE

New York, March 2.—Statistics appearing during last week indicated a moderately declining business tendency, according to Moody's index figures for freight car loadings, electric power production, and steel ingot output.

These index figures are adjusted for seasonal variation — that is, if the change from the previous week should coincide with the normal seasonal change the index figure would be unchanged.

'GLARING NIGHT SKIES' LOSE SIGNIFICANCE IN STEEL MILL ACTIVITY

New York, March 2.—[Special.]—Bessemer Converters, which in 1875 accounted for 86 per cent of the nation's output of steel, were responsible for only 8 per cent of the total last year, a survey made by the American Iron and Steel institute indicates.

"Glaring night skies above steel plants," the institute said today, "once sure signs of activity in the mills, have lost much of their former significance with the shift in importance from the Bessemer to the open hearth method of making steel."

The institute stated that last year 90 per cent of the steel produced came from open hearths. The steady drop in the consumption of Bessemer steel is attributed largely to the increasing demands for "tailor made" steels which are produced by more flexible and more easily controled methods. Bessemer steel is still a staple and valued product of the steel industry, however.

Pork Boycott Results from AAA Program

Boycott of pork by the public in retail markets is resulting from the high prices forced by shortage of supplies, resulting from the AAA slaughter of hogs last year, aided by the drouth.

Buoyed by some of the smallest hog receipts in the history of the packing industry both pork and hog prices soared to new high levels last week. Never before have the receipts been so light in late February and early March. Importations of pork from foreign countries were of small volume in comparison to the abridgment made in American supplies.

Supplies Under Smaller Buying.

Evidence of a public boycott of pork in retail channels has failed, however, to offset the alarming rate of decrease in available pork supplies. Packing houses have cut their hog killing forces down to the minimum at all points, some houses closing their hog departments because of the supply situation. Receipts of hogs coming to market are not sufficiently large to keep all packing plants working.

The AAA has raised hog and pork prices over the prewar goal but at the same time has deprived thousands of men of jobs and reduced consumer buying power, which is a threat to the purpose of the program. During February Chicago packers slaughtered only 277,991 hogs, compared with a five year average of 520,000 for that month.

Pork Production Meager.

Less than 10,000,000 pounds of pork and lard were obtained from hogs slaughtered here last week. In a normal year it is not unusual for one day's receipts to exceed this tonnage. While hogs on farms were reduced in numbers more than other meat animals, all kinds show reductions, as indicated in the following compilation.

RECEIPTS AT 20 MARKETS.

	Cattle.	Hogs.	Sheep.
1935 to date	1,651,000	3,058,000	2,275,000

Five year average	1,639,000	6,116,000	3,036,000

Hog prices last week rose 40 to 50 cents, the week's general average at $11.45, processing tax included, standing highest since July, 1929. A year ago packers paid an average of $6.80 and two years ago the week's price was $3.50. Not enough hogs arrived on the week-end session to establish a fair list of quotations.

Changes in Meat Prices.

The following quotations show the rise in meats in wholesale channels for last week and for the last two years as reported by the department of agriculture:

WHOLESALE MEAT PRICES PER 100 POUNDS.

Now	$11½@19½	$17 @21	$14 @18

Yr. ago..	6 @11	11 @13½	14 @16
2 yrs. ago.	6 @10½	7½@ 9½	8 @12½

Whole beef carcasses at Chicago advanced $1 to $2.50 and sold $5.50 to $8.50 over a year ago. Live steers averaged $10.55 for the week, equaling the highest price since December, 1930. Top grades reached $13.90, against $13.75 for the previous week. Calves jumped 50 cents to $1.25 in value.

Lambs, relatively the lowest priced live stock, averaged $8.60 during the week, 55 cents over the preceding week and highest since Jan. 26.

ARGENTINA O. K.'S BILLS TO REVAMP MONEY, BANKING

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, March 2. — The chamber of deputies passed the government's financial projects, establishing a central bank of issue and reorganizing the country's banking and monetary systems.

As the bills passed the senate before going to the chamber, they will become law as soon as the senate approves minor amendments introduced by the deputies. The government has accepted these amendments, and they are expected to be pushed through the senate to President Agustin P. Justo for signature within a few days.

One law creates a central bank of the republic. The second provides government control of private banks. A third creates a rediscount institute for liquidation of frozen bank credits. A fourth modifies the laws governing operation of the Bank of the Argentine Nation and the National Mortgage bank. A fifth is a general organization law for the operation of the central bank and rediscount institute.

The bills permit the central bank to increase currency until gold backing is reduced to 25 per cent. Revaluation of the gold stock gives the government a profit of 500,000,000 pesos.

COMMODITY PRICES IRREGULAR; BUTTER WEAKENS ON IMPORTS

Commodities followed an irregular course last week. Sugar and lard rose to new high marks for the season at 2.10 cents and 13.8 cents a pound, respectively while clear bellies equaled their previous top of 16.87 cents a pound.

Changes elsewhere were small. Wheat, corn, and rye worked fractionally higher, oats eased slightly and barley was unchanged.

November butter dropped to a new low of 27 1-3 cents a pound because of heavier imports, some of which are underselling the American product, and larger receipts from the country.

Coffee also fell to a fresh minimum, touching 5.4 cents a pound. Range for the week of principal commodities, and highs and lows for the season, follow:

COCA-COLA CO. LIFTS DIVIDEND TO $8 ANNUALLY

The Coca-Cola company yesterday increased the dividend rate on the common stock by declaring a quarterly payment of $2 a share. The previous rate was $6 annually, exclusive of extras. The disbursement is to be made on April 1 to stock of record March 12.

The company's preliminary report for 1934 shows net profit of $12,312,176 after charges, federal taxes and preferred dividends, compared with net of $8,819,753 in 1933.

Godchaux Sugars, Inc., resumed payments on the preferred stock with the declaration of $1.75, the first payment since March 4, 1932.

Abraham & Straus, Inc., declared an extra dividend of 15 cents in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 30 cents a share on the common.

Directors of the Maryland Fund, Inc., declared the regular payment of 10 cents and an extra of 5 cents.

The Alabama Vicksburg Railway company declared a dividend of $2.75 a share on the capital stock. Previous the company paid $3 semi-annually. The road is leased to the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley Railroad company, which is controled by the Illinois Central.

NEW YORK LIFE HAS 98½ MILLION GAIN IN ASSETS

Assets of the New York Life Insurance company totaled $2,109,505,224 on Dec. 31, 1934, an increase of $98,562,112 for the year, according to Thomas A. Buckner, president, in his annual statement.

Holdings of government, state and municipal bonds increased $146,918,786 during the year. Total governments held on Dec. 31 aggregated $208,726,056, state and municipals totaled $191,270,360, cash was $36,449,562, utility bonds $159,151,938, city property first mortgages $459,805,821 and policy loans $396,467,101.

New insurance written during the year amounted to $440,000,000, while total insurance in force was $6,661,514,072. Living policy holders were paid $157,000,000 in 1934, while beneficiaries received $70,000,000.

Furniture Manufacturers Report Further Gains

Furniture manufacturers with sales offices in the American Furniture Mart report continued improvement in the industry, Lawrence H. Whiting, president of mart corporation, said yesterday. The Kroehler Manufacturing company, the country's largest maker of upholstered furniture, reports that its plants working full time he said.

Suspend Ten from Chicago Stock Market

Ten members of the Chicago Stock exchange were suspended yesterday for nonpayment of dues and assessments. It was a graphic illustration of the state of affairs into which the securities business has dropped since its gay, giddy heights of 1929.

Michael J. O'Brien, president of the exchange, explained that the board of governors has held to a lenient policy toward its members, but that nonpayments had become such a serious problem by last fall that action was necessary. Of slightly more than 400 members, 78 at one time were delinquent in their payments, and the movement was threatening to spread because paying members were growing dissatisfied.

Deadline Is Extended.

Last Dec. 1 was set originally as the deadline for payments, but this was extended to March 1 on a petition of members. Ordinarily suspension is automatic after payments have been due for 30 days. Members have the right to reinstatement without any prejudice of standing within one year of suspension.

Those suspended yesterday are Robert B. Anderson, Lee M. Creitz, Harvey C. Fleming, Harold C. Gifford, Luman H. Gray, David H. Quinn, Albert Seckel, Frank Solomon, Charles H. Taylor, and Thomas G. Wheelock.

In 1932 dues were $200. They were omitted the following year, out of consideration for the sharp decline in business, and were set at $100 in 1934. The figure remains unchanged this year.

Trading Shrinks Sharply.

Volume of sales, upon which brokers depend for their commissions, last year had shrunk to one-eighth of the 1929 peak and had completed a "cycle" from 1927. Figures for the eight years follow:

1934	10,178,000	shares
1933	18,288,000	shares
1932	15,642,000	shares
1931	34,404,000	shares
1930	69,747,000	shares
1929	82,216,000	shares
1928	38,941,000	shares
1927	10,712,000	shares

The slump since 1929 also is reflected in the prices which exchange seats command. Recent sales have been in the neighborhood of $2,500, compared with a high of $55,000. The latter figure is based on the $110,000 top before members were given two new seats in exchange for one old one.

ELGIN WATCH CO. REPORTS FIRST PROFIT SINCE '29

As a result of the improvement in the retail jewelry trade, the Elgin National Watch company made a profit in 1934 for the first time since 1929. The net profit after charges was $763,258, as compared with a loss of $263,372 in the preceding year, according to the annual report issued yesterday. The 1934 profit was equal to $1.91 a share.

The company also benefited last year for the first time from the tarif act of 1930, T. Albert Potter, president, told stockholders. The large importations of watches preceding the passage of the act were being slowly liquidated in 1932 and 1933, and the full benefits of the protection afforded by the act was not felt until last year.

Potter said business so far in 1935 is running well ahead of a year ago and the company is expanding its advertising. The company put aside $440,000 in general reserves during the year. This was appropriated from earned surplus.

BUSINESS MEN PROTEST NEW DEAL PROGRAM

Attack Relief Plan, Warn on Bank Bill.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—(AP)—Business, as represented by committees of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, today registered strong opposition to a big batch of the administration's major legislative proposals.

The committee reports, made public by the chamber's board of directors at an executive meeting, included attacks on the work relief program, a warning about the pending omnibus banking bill, and the suggestion that the security program be developed more slowly.

The President, however, was supported on one major point in the work relief program—that the government must withdraw from major relief work.

Ask State Rule of Relief.

The chamber's relief committee opposed the McCarran wage amendments, but at the same time recommended that initiation and execution of relief projects be left with states and localities. The present bill gives the government full authority.

The committee resolutions comprised the most comprehensive statement by representatives of the nation's business since the White Sulphur Springs conference which was attended by about 100 major business executives. That conference originally was described as the beginning of business-government coöperation, but the conference platform, like the statements today, varied in many particulars from the President's program.

The relief committee proposed a cut in the $4,880,000,000 fund to $2,000,000,000. The committee contended the primary consideration in selecting projects should be their utility and economic usefulness and that the emphasis should be shifted from relief.

Conflicts with Roosevelt Aim.

"Centralization of financing and administrative responsibility for unemployment relief in the form of a relief-public works program seems to run counter to the President's statement that 'the federal government must and shall quit this business of relief,'" said the committee.

A special committee on cotton said that although the situation surrounding the staple had been helped in the past, there should be a reduction in loan values set on cotton to protect cotton exports.

The board of directors itself issued the warning on the pending banking bill. It made no specific criticisms, but said that business and industry "must insist" on a thorough consideration, and stressed the necessity of safeguards to prevent "political domination." The measure would further centralize authority over the banking system.

LA SALLE-WACKER REORGANIZATION PLANS APPROVED

Judge Prystalski of the Cook county Circuit court yesterday approved trust indentures and agreements that make possible the completion of the La Salle-Wacker building reorganization plan. About 4,800 bondholders are interested in the reorganization.

The new securities will consist of first [closed] mortgage bonds due August 1, 1957, and debentures due August 1, 1962, neither of which will bear a fixed interest rate at the beginning, but a rate commensurate with the earnings of the property.

The building is now approximately 60 per cent occupied and net earnings are estimated at about $125,000 annually, which is approximately 4 per cent on the full amount of $3,250,000 bonds issuable under the plan.

JUDGE WON'T SIGN TVA DECREE BEFORE MONDAY

Birmingham, Ala., March 2.—(AP)—Judge W. I. Grubb announced tonight he would not sign before Monday a final decree in the suit of preferred shareholders of the Alabama Power company to restrain the Tennessee Valley authority from purchasing the utility's holdings in north Alabama.

A week ago in an oral opinion Judge Grubb, at the conclusion of a lengthy hearing, held the TVA was without authority to dispose of surplus power generated in the Tennessee valley.

An immediate appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans was contemplated, with final decision expected to be handed down by the United State Supreme court.

English Find Sterling's Sag Disconcerting

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 2.—The fall in the exchange value of the pound is disconcerting to the City. The financial editor of the Daily Telegraph, casting around for some one on whom the blame can be thrown, complains that the American equalization account is not doing its stuff—a curious view since from all accounts the American control has been selling dollars heavily day in and day out.

Even Canadian banks have been conspicuously selling both Canadian and United States dollars in an effort to steady things. The best opinion seems to be that the trouble is not so much between Great Britain and the North American continent as it is between Britain and the continent of Europe.

Puts Finger on Trouble.

The MacMillan commission in 1930 put its finger on the trouble—that Britain nowadays is doing an international deposit banking business instead of an international self-liquidating acceptance business and we are now witnessing a run on bank proceeds which will go partly into francs and partly into hoards of gold.

On Monday the Labor opposition will raise in the house of commons the question of the national government's alleged supineness in defense of the pound and this airing of the question will probably not help sterling much.

About 7 o'clock in the evening, when cheaper telephone rates to the continent are effective, London correspondents of continental papers will telephone their editors all the juicy bits from the debate. This occurs in all cases and yet London is curiously unaware of it and is always taken by surprise when the next day it gets a blow in the form of continental selling.

English Are "Unaware."

The Englishman reads the Times or some other London paper in which the harsh points in the debate are either discreetly omitted or suitably toned down and he assumes this is all the foreigner sees. This is one of the most curious aspects of this great international center—its unawareness of the rest of the world.

However, there is this to be said for the Englishman's unawareness: He has thus far escaped all domestic shocks since the departure from gold in 1931 and thinks this domestic serenity should be visible to all men.

Internal British prices have not fluctuated violently; there has been no run on any British bank, no default on any British government or municipal security; no rioting in the streets; no colored shirts; no kultur propaganda.

Why nervous foreigners should withdraw their money on wild rumors seems to him incomprehensible.

And it is this which brought about some revival of the gilt edged market this week on purchases almost certainly entirely British, on the convincing argument that there is no safer place for the Englishman's money than among the proved institutions at home.

REPORTS STATE BANKS SOUNDEST IN THEIR HISTORY

The second anniversary tomorrow of the banking moratorium will find Illinois state banks in a condition "as sound or sounder than at any other time in their history," Edward J. Barrett, state auditor, said yesterday.

Although the banks currently operating are 93 fewer than on March 3, 1933, total deposits are more than $38,000,000 larger, he said.

Records of the auditor's office revealed that 704 state banks doing business that day in March in two years ago carried deposits of $672,431,187, while on Jan. 1, 1935, the last reporting day, 611 state banks had $801,075,733 on deposit. Barrett said current figures vary little from those at the start of the year.

"Nearly all the 611 banks are members of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, and more than 98 per cent of all moneys on deposit in Illinois state banks are in banks which are members of the FDIC," Barrett said.

MUNICIPAL TAX COLLECTIONS IMPROVE IN 1934

New York, March 2.—[Special.]—Every section of the United States showed an improvement in municipal tax collections in 1934 over 1933, according to a nationwide survey completed by Frank H. Morse of Lehman Brothers. Questionaires were sent to the finance officers of the principal cities and the 106 replies showed that 82 cities, or 77.3 per cent, had gains in 1934, while 24, or 22.7 per cent, reported decreases.

No section of the country, however, failed to show improvement in 1934 collections. The Rocky mountain and Pacific coast districts included the largest number of cities reporting an improvement, fourteen against one.

Among the reasons given for improvement in collections were Home Owners Loan corporation activities, improvement in general business, and strict enforcement of tax collections.

FALL OF POUND HINTS AT WORLD MONETARY SHIFT

U.S., Britain May Let Moneys Find Level.

New York, March 2.—[Special.]—In what appeared to observers to be a major monetary adjustment the British pound sterling and the currencies joined to it in the "sterling group" fell farther today to record levels of depreciation.

The stabilization funds of both Great Britain and the United States made no attempt to check the decline. Their inactivity gave rise to the opinion in financial circles that authorities on both sides are willing, for the time being, to allow economic forces to determine a new relationship between the currencies.

In an erratic and nervous market the pound fell to $4.77½ here, the lowest price since Nov. 1, 1933, and off 4 cents for the day and 8¾ cents in the week.

Gold Rises as Pound Falls.

Prior to the opening of business here sterling had reached new lows abroad in terms of gold and the gold bloc currencies. In terms of the French franc it fell to 71.70 francs to the pound.

The London price of bullion was fixed at 146 shillings 10½ pence an ounce, which was an increase of 1 shilling 9¼ pence over the previous day and was equal to $35.37 an ounce, compared with the official price here of $35 an ounce.

At its closing price here the pound was worth about $2.83 in terms of the old gold dollar as it existed prior to our depreciation. The pound stood at about 58 per cent of its parity, compared with an official value for the dollar of 59.06 per cent of its old parity. The dollar itself is, however, at present at a discount and in terms of the French franc is worth only 58.74 per cent of its old parity.

Dollar Loses to Franc.

As sterling fell in terms of all currencies outside the sterling group, including the dollar, the dollar continued today its fall in terms of the gold bloc currencies of Europe. The franc advanced here to 6.67¼ cents, the highest price since last Sept. 24 and nearly 4 points above parity. It closed at 6.67 cents, up 1¾ points net on the day and 4¼ points above its price of a week ago. The closing franc value of the dollar was 99.45 per cent of its new parity.

In its fall sterling carried down the currencies in its group, including the Scandinavian exchange, which fell 18 to 19 points; the Japanese yen, which fell 18 points to 28.07 cents, and the Canadian dollar, which cheapened 3/16 cent to a discount of ⅜ per cent below dollar parity.

Explain Fall of Pound.

1. The United States by rapidly depreciating its dollar to 59.06 per cent of its former parity had brought about an advance in the dollar value of sterling from about $3.15 in December, 1932, to over $5 at the early part of last year, when we stabilized. This had left sterling in a precarious position where it was commonly believed to be overvalued in terms of the dollar, although at the same time undervalued in terms of the gold currencies of Europe.

2. The possibility that further abrupt devaluation of the pound would greatly add to the difficulties of the gold bloc, political and economic, had virtually tied the hands of the British authorities, making it impossible for them to respond to our devaluation by corresponding steps of their own.

Dollar Uncertainty Is Factor.

3. The uncertainties over the dollar and over the status of the gold bloc had brought about a heavy influx of short term funds to London, the existence of which funds made the pound, as an unstabilized currency divorced from gold, particularly sensitive to changes in opinion at home and abroad with respect to British political and economic conditions.

4. Recently events in England have led to a flight of this short term capital. The events have included a slowing down of British recovery indicated by increased unemployment; victories of the Labor party in the recent by-elections; discussion of the likelihood of an early general election with its attendant uncertainties, and the renewed official assertions that Britain does not intend to stabilize at this time.

5. Improvement in the political and economic position of the gold bloc

RISE IN SILVER AND GOLD FAILS TO STIR STOCKS

Shares of Mining Group Gain Moderately.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 2.—Having become more or less fixed in the dullness of its ways, the stock market refused to get excited today over the international monetary developments featured by skyrocketing gold and silver metal prices in London.

Most of the mining stocks on the big board improved their ratings, but the gains were held within a point or two, and such buying as appeared was not of a character to arouse particular comment. Traders generally seemed disposed to await further developments in the so-called pound-dollar currency war.

Business in the market generally was at a leisurely pace, the turnover of 279,480 being the smallest for a Saturday half session in months. Last Saturday a total of 536,190 shares was traded.

Trade News Spotty.

News from the trade centers continued spotty and generally unimportant marketwise, and the late political news did not tend to dispel the uncertainty that has long plagued the speculative mind.

Outside of the metals group, interest on the exchange floor centered in the price movements of a scattering of preferred and special stocks. The seniors of Foster-Wheeler and Gotham Hosiery tumbled about five points each on selling flurries, and gains of two points or so were registered by the preferreds of American Crystal Sugar, Bayuk Cigar, and Remington-Rand. Columbian Carbon common rose 3½ points on moderate buying and Vicks Chemical bettered its standing by about $2 a share.

U. S. Smelting rose more than a point to a new high for the movement, but gave up a fraction of its gain before the close. American Smelting, Howe Sound, and Cerro de Pasco gained fractionally. Homestake, the gold section leader, rose a point on a couple of sales, and other gold miners, including Alaska Juneau, Dome, and McIntyre, edged ahead slightly.

Leading Industrials Quiet.

Leading industrial issues, including U. S. Steel, American Can, Bethlehem, Westinghouse, and the like were quiet and such price changes as occurred among them were narrow.

Johns Manville, American Radiator, and other building shares remained virtually unchanged after their flurry of activity yesterday.

Railroad and utility stocks did little, the price changes in both divisions tending toward easier levels.

FOREIGN BUTTER IMPORTS DEPRESS DOMESTIC TRADE

Imports of foreign butter at the Atlantic seaboard are having a depressing effect on the domestic product. Prices in the local market dropped ¾ to 1¼ cents per pound yesterday and started a liquidating movement in the March future which carried it off ⅝ cent from Friday. November dropped to a new low for the season at 27⅜ cents, losing ⅛ cent for the day.

Private reports from New York said butter of excellent quality was offered there from Lithuania and Latvia at 32 cents per pound, duty paid, without takers. Around 580,000 pounds of New Zealand butter have been received at Boston and was reported as underselling domestic offerings. Shipments from Denmark, Sweden, and Argentina were said to be on the way.

A falling off in receipts of fresh eggs, with steady prices prevailing, led to fair buying of futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, and the close was ¼ to ½ cent per dozen higher. Sales of butter aggregated 108 cars and eggs 45 cars. Delivery of one car of eggs was made on March contracts. Prices follow:

PRICES OF COTTON FUTURES ARE UNCHANGED TO LOWER

Possible developments in the cotton trade, based on the sharp upturn in gold and silver prices in London and the decline in sterling exchange, resulted in further curtailment in speculative interest yesterday. Scattered selling developed early on weakness in Liverpool, but the break brought in scattered trade and commission house buying with a rally following. Final trades were unchanged to 2 points lower in Chicago and unchanged to 4 points lower in other markets.

The AAA will permit 10,983,000 bales of cotton to be produced tax free under the provisions of the Bankhead bill during the 1935 crop season. Spot cotton closed unchanged to 5 points lower, with New York 12.60 cents and New Orleans 12.65 cents per pound.

GRAIN PRICES LACK TREND, BUT CLOSE IS EASY

Trade Falls to Low Level; Corn Is Weakest.

Speculative indifference to commodities was pointedly reflected in activity on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, where prices moved back and forth listlessly. The general level of values was lower at the close, but this resulted from the fact that the closing gong found prices near the low point of a swing, and not that any definite trend was in evidence.

Fractional changes were the rule, while volume sank to extremely small proportions. Local professionals again supplied most of the trading. Not even the usual week-end evening up had any effect. Floor traders even up daily, and yesterday's short session was no different.

Uncertainties Increase.

Confusion in the money markets had no discernible effect on prices directly, but its psychological reaction on the speculative mind, adding a new uncertainty to an already overburdened state of fears, could not fail to prove unsettling. However, some quarters viewed the situation as constructive, based on the premise that eventual stabilization of world currencies may follow.

New crop wheat futures showed the widest decline following long range weather forecasts that parts of the wheat belt might receive rain or light snows early this week.

Closing prices of principal May futures follow:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Week ago.
Wheat	.97⅞	.98⅛	.97
Corn	.84⅛	.84½	.84⅜
Oats	.50½	.50⅝	.50⅝
Rye	.64⅞	.65	.64

Rise at Liverpool.

Strength in Liverpool was not accorded its full measure of importance because, despite the fact that yesterday was only the second day for delivery of actual grain on March contracts, normally a depressing price factor, and sterling dropped sharply, prices closed ⅜ to 1 cent higher. Winnipeg finished unchanged to ⅛ cent higher and Rotterdam rose 1¼ to 1⅜ cents. Buenos Aires was closed, and will also observe holidays tomorrow and Tuesday.

Corn futures suffered from decided weakness in the cash market, where prices slumped 1 to 3 cents a bushel, and the basis with reference to futures was lowered ½ to 1½ cents. One reason advanced for the weakness was the receipt of 82 cars of corn—about 123,000 bushels—most of which was thrown on the open market. Most receipts recently have been sent direct to consumers who had previously contracted for the cereal, and thus the market was not forced to absorb the offerings.

The Chicago Great Western Railroad company, which filed a voluntary petition Thursday for reorganization under section 77 of the amended bankruptcy act, yesterday reported a decline in revenue and an increase in expenses and deficits during January.

Total operating revenues were $1,143,891, a decrease of $13,603 from $1,157,494 in January of 1933. At the same time, operating expenses rose $119,512—from $919,652 to $1,039,164. This left net from operations at $104,727 for the month, a decline of $133,115. A deficit of $125,109 resulted, compared with a deficit of $10,702 a year ago.

Discusses Reorganization.

In connection with the proposed reorganization President Patrick H. Joyce wrote to security holders:

"Recent conferences with representatives of the Reconstruction Finance corporation justify the hope that if a plan of readjustment is carried out which will reduce the fixed charges of the company to a sum which present and prospective earnings indicate can be met, the RFC will, in addition to the $1,288,162 now loaned to the company, advance further funds to supplement the company's working capital and permit the conduct of its business without embarrassment."

Reference also was made to bondholders' acceptance of the proposal to defer payment for one year of half the interest falling due last Sept. 1. Inability to meet interest due March 1 led to filing of the reorganization petition and will make impossible the deferred payment Joyce said.

Says Costs Will Increase.

"Regrettable as the fact may be," he wrote, "the low volume of trafic has continued and there has been and will be a further increase in operating costs due to the restoration of the wage level of 1929, the increased cost of fuel, materials and supplies, and other charges.

"The company hopes, with coöperation of its security holders, to present a plan of readjustment to the court and interstate commerce commission."

SUGAR

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was firmer today and while demand was not aggressive, there was nothing available in any position below 3.05c per lb, which was 8 points above the last price paid for spots. The only sale confirmed was 21,000 bags of Cubas for the second half of April shipment at 3.05c to an outport refiner.

After an irregular start, futures firmed. After advances of 1 to 4 points on the more active positions, there was considerable realizing and partial reactions. The market closed unchanged to 2 points higher in the old contract and unchanged to 3 points higher in the new. Sales in the former were 2,150 tons, and in the latter 10,550.

FRENCH RAILWAY DEFICIT IS SIGN OF DEPRESSION

Charge Government Milks Roads on Mail.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 2.—The newest indication of France's rapidly worsening economic condition is the report on railways for the last year. It indicates that despite heroic measures to bolster them, the deficit totaled $266,000,000, the same figure as the previous year before rescue measures had been resorted to.

Responsible statesmen and newspapers declare it must not and cannot go on, almost unanimously laying the blame for the deficit on lavish government use of transportation for military, postal and other purposes, and paying little or nothing for the privilege. Their conclusion is that the state must allow its railways to get out from under the government thumb and operate on a commercial basis, charging the government normal commercial rates for whatever it chooses to dispatch over the railroads.

Admit "Saving" on Mail.

The government, asked pointedly to what extent it uses the railways at cut rates, admits officially that it saves $60,000,000 annually that way. The biggest item is mails, totaling $48,000,000. Next is the transport of soldiers and military freight, $10,000,000. A considerable contribution to the railways' plight is the great subsidence in tourist trafic.

To cover the 1934 deficit a loan will be necessary which, added to those of 1931, 1932 and 1933, will bring the total loans for covering the railway's deficits to 1 billion dollars.

When it became evident that the 1933 deficit was piling up, drastic measures were taken to remedy the situation. Late that summer a law was passed lowering the tax on passenger tickets and allowing railways to take up the slack by raising the rates correspondingly. That would have meant an improvement amounting to over $30,000,000. But accentuation of the crisis during the year completely wiped out the expected advantage.

Cut Pensions and Salaries.

Furthermore, certain simplifications were made in technical regulation of the railways but these, too, have proved inadequate. Lastly laws were passed reforming pension regulations and reducing pensions and salaries. The total savings effected by the economy measures were $26,000,000.

Taking that into account losses suffered by the railways in the last year were $66,000,000 more than the previous year and that staggering fact is causing despair among intelligent statesment and economists, who believe that France is heading for the economic abyss.

New York, March 2.—The listed bond market ruled generally firm during the brief trading period today. High grade corporate issues gained ground, but secondary loans were irregular.

United States government bonds moved irregularly lower. However, two issues, the treasury 3⅜s, due 1943, callable 1941, and the treasury 3¼s, due 1941, established new record highs since issuance on small gains.

Most Active Issues.

The most active issues included the obligations of the Paramount Publix group, up 2⅞ to 3⅞ points; Utilities Power and Light issues, up fractionally; and various issues of the Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania railroad, Union Pacific, and the Chesapeake corporation, which gained fractionally.

A sharp break in United Kingdom bonds, paralleling the decline in sterling today, featured the foreign loan group. The 5½s broke 3¼ points and the 4s, 1⅞ points, with new lows for the year thus far established in both instances.

Other Europeans Uneven.

Other European loans moved irregularly lower, although most of the exchange rates were firm in terms of the dollar. Continued heavy buying of Argentine government bonds featured the Latin American group, the issues rising fractionally to new highs for the year. The gains were attributed to the measures taken by the Argentine government to strengthen its financial position.

Trading was light, amounting to only $6,563,000.

The Life Policy.

It is a difficult matter for a person purchasing life insurance to decide what type of policy is best suited for him. In order to make an intelligent selection it is first necessary for him to know the fundamental make-up of the two principal types of policies.

This can best be demonstrated by breaking up the premium payment into three component factors. One portion of each premium payment goes toward expenses of the company, another is applied toward pure insurance, technically called "term insurance," while the remainder is in effect applied toward a savings account, known as "reserves."

These reserves belong to the policyholder. When he dies the reserves are paid to the beneficiary. An additional amount equal to the difference between the reserves and the face value of the policy is also paid to the beneficiary, who thus receives the face value of the policy. That difference comes from payments by the survivors allocated, as mentioned above, to pure insurance.

Take, for example, a hypothetical group of a thousand people of the same age who assume ordinary life policies. Only a very small percentage will die the first year. The portion paid by the survivors as pure insurance will cover the amounts due on the policies of the deceased.

During the second year some more will die. But by the second year some reserves [or savings] will have accrued to the policies. Should the same number die in the second year as in the first, a smaller amount will have to be paid out in the form of pure insurance, since the reserves of the policyholders who died will make up the difference.

As time goes on the number of policyholders will become less and the amount paid in as pure insurance will also become less. Since, however, the reserves behind each policy will become greater, it will always be possible to pay the beneficiary in full, since the two factors offset each other.

Eventually a time will come when all policyholders but one will be dead. On his death there will be no survivor to pay premiums a portion of which would be allocated toward pure insurance. By that time, however, according to actuarial tables, his reserves will be exactly equal to the face value of his policy and he can actually cash in on the policy to the face amount.

A twenty year endowment policy, by virtue of a larger premium, merely hastens the maturity, as described in the preceding paragraph, of the investment side of the contract.

In other words, both the ordinary life policy and the twenty year endowment policy are merely savings contracts plus the insurance that in the event the insured should die before maturity of the contract the face value of the contract will be paid to his beneficiary.

U. S. and Britain May Let Moneys Find Level.

countries, together with steps taken by France to reopen her capital market, have encouraged the recall from London of funds sent there from the gold bloc countries.

The British equalization fund has not attempted to put a stop to the decline in sterling in the last week or so, which has resulted from the flight of capital from London. British authorities, according to bankers, welcome a reduction of the dollar value of sterling. They are understood to have believed ever since our devaluation that sterling was unnaturally high in terms of the dollar and that a correction would have to take place.

Many bankers believe the pound will ultimately find a new level of temporary stabilization considerably lower than its present price.

Silver Highest Since 1928.

Bar silver, which enjoys several relatively free markets, today continued to advance around the world, reaching the highest price in New York since 1928. At 57⅞ cents an ounce, the New York price was up a full cent from yesterday, and more than double its depression low of 24¾ cents.

The rise in silver was attributed in the New York market to speculative buying in several centers, including London and the far east. It was pointed out that the takings of the United States treasury had probably removed much of the floating supply of the metal, making the market particularly responsive to speculative and other demand.

The New York price of 55⅞ cents is for foreign silver, and reflects the world price. Since December, 1933, the treasury has been paying 64½ cents for all newly mined silver from American mines, and last August the treasury nationalized all stocks of silver in this country not needed for commercial purposes.

French Discuss Devaluation.

PARIS, March 2.—The British pound's precipitate fall has dismayed the French. Nothing else is talked of in the corridors of the chamber of deputies, where for the first time one hears the possibility of devaluation of the franc seriously discussed.

High financial circles that previously had ridiculed any idea of tampering with the franc's parity now admit that continued fall of the pound, particularly if the dollar follows suit, will make the position of the gold bloc hopeless.

The dollar closed today only 4 centimes above the lowest gold point beyond which it cannot go without further devaluation.

The question that has been on every tongue all this week is: "Will the dollar follow the pound, no matter how far it falls?" The French hope not, but fear the worst.

NARROW RANGE IN LARD WITH CLOSE IRREGULAR

Provision prices held within narrow limits yesterday, outside interest being light, and the trade was disposed to await further developments in regard to the monetary situation. Scattered buying developed on the reduction of 3,750,000 pounds of lard in local stocks during February. Closing trades were 2½ cents higher to 2½ cents lower. Bellies finished 7½ to 12½ cents higher at the best figures of the season.

A reduction of 1,700,000 pounds of lard in February was shown in stocks at the seven leading western packing points, making the total 73,264,000 pounds, compared with 134,900,000 pounds a year ago and 31,240,000 pounds two years ago. Meat stocks increased 962,000 pounds during the last month and are 220,337,000 pounds, against 276,115,000 pounds in 1934.

Spot lard closed at $13.52; loose, $13.55; leaf, $13.75, and bellies at $16.87 per 100 pounds. Prices follow:

Car Output Shows Gain in February

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., March 2.—[Special.]—Although February was short on working days—only 24 in fact—the month was unexpectedly long on production of automobiles and trucks. Going into March a vast majority of the plants are continuing to step up outputs, and while the output schedules of most plants for the early weeks of the year were based mainly on dealer requirements, retail deliveries since the beginning of the year have been in heavier ratio to production than most manufacturers anticipated.

February was a good month. Although official figures are not yet available, a conservative estimate places the total output at 340,000 units.

Further Gains Expected.

Further gains are expected because of the fact that there has been but little margin between production and retail distribution of the leading volume producers. March will show a substantial increase over February, and April will probably be the best month of the current year.

Apparently the industry is again to experience the production of 400,000 units in a single month, and barring unforseen developments such as labor troubles and the inability to be provided with sufficient materials, that figure will be reached in March, and be exceeded in April.

It is quite evident that the gold decision is playing no small part in increasing sales of automobiles and is acting as a real stimulant. Some of the dealers throughout the country—but not many—are beginning to acquire floor stocks, but virtually every car now being shipped from the Detroit area is going directly to the consumer. Driveaways are popular.

Registration Significant.

Those of the industry's executives who base their outlook on the analysis of statistics see another significance in the registration figures, in that they disclose a replacement distribution in 1934 of but 1,763,000 passenger cars and trucks. Now the replacement figures are considerably larger, and it is this field toward which the industry is casting an eye, and where dealers reap their most profitable harvest.

For every working day in March the Ford Motor company has a schedule calling for an average of 6,000 cars and trucks. This is the largest output since the introduction of the V-8 three years ago, and twice as great as that of one year ago. The step-up of output in the Chevrolet and Plymouth plants are correspondingly greater, both of these plants doubling production over that for the corresponding year of 1934.

Gets Active Start.

A summing up at the close of the second month of the year shows that the industry got away to a running start, and has increased outputs virtually every week. There is no question now, unless a real serious slump in buying develops in March, that the industry's prediction of a million units will be realized.

The industry seems to be approaching the record year of prosperity—1929—in which manufacturers in every price field are participating. Producers of high priced cars who have this year added a line in the medium low price field are even at this early date assured that their step was made in the right direction. Packard is an outstanding example, and with present orders on file, delivery of their new Packard 120 series cannot be made to purchasers who order now until April so great has been the demand for the new line of cars.

NEWS AND VIEWS

After 25,000 miles of driving over the worst roads and under other of the most difficult of motoring conditions that could be found in America, three Packard cars returned to Detroit last week. They were new low priced Packards sent out on what is declared to have been one of the most trying test runs ever undertaken.

Leaving Detroit the cars were first driven to Texas, as word had been received that road conditions in a part of that state were "impossible." Thousands of miles of driving were piled up and then the caravan headed for the Imperial valley in California.

Variety for the drivers, but still greater difficulties for the cars, was obtained by occasional high speed trips in the mountains. From points 250 feet below sea level where the thermometer stood at 90 degrees and more the cars were driven over rough trails at altitudes of 8,000 feet and temperatures below zero.

To meet a special demand from business organizations for lower priced transportation to be used by their salesmen and other representatives, the Plymouth last week announced that two new lower priced models are being added to the 1935 line. The new models, a business coupe and a two door business sedan, will soon be in production.

Also announced is a special "high wheel" Plymouth car with 20 inch steel disc wheels, affording unusual road clearance for rural districts. This is the third year that Plymouth has provided a high wheel model.

The appointment of Frank Biron to the position of assistant zone manager was announced last week by O. L. Arnold, Buick zone manager in Chicago.

Biron is one of the old timers on the Michigan avenue auto row and is well known in automobile circles throughout the city and neighboring territory. He gained his early automobile experience with the old Overland factory branch back in 1915 when neighborhood dealers were few and far between and practically all of the automobile sales activity in Chicago centered in the showrooms on the south side boulevard.

HOTEL MEN BACK CAMPAIGN FOR ELEVATED DRIVE

Karl Eitel Named Head of Safety Committee.

BY HAL FOUST.

Karl Eitel of the Bismarck hotel, ardent exponent of elevated highway construction in Chicago, has been named chairman of the Chicago Hotel association's trafic and safety committee.

"Indorsement of a plan to secure federal assistance in the developing of elevated highway system in Chicago," said Mr. Eitel, "merits the enthusiastic acclaim of every one interested in the safety of roads of this second largest metropolitan center of the country.

"Sincere thanks should be extended to the Peoria group of civic leaders who pledged themselves to aid their neighbors to meet the competent development of this nature.

"It was stated at the Peoria meeting that to elevate some 160 miles of highway, which would in turn result in the saving of some hundred lives and 12,000 injuries, the cost would be in the neighborhood of $100,000,000. It was pointed out that the need for elevated highways had reached a critical stage.

"Money for the project could be made available through the $4,888,000,000 work relief program now before congress. Senator James Hamilton Lewis has pledged his support in the furtherance of this project, which is identified with the work of Ald. Massen, chairman of the city council's committee on trafic and public safety.

Dinkelberg Plan.

"In connection with this idea I was greatly interested in the plan of the late Frederic Phillip Dinkelberg for utilizing the Lake street branch of the elevated line. He outlined in some detail, I believe, the possibility of revamping the elevated structure into a forty foot automobile highway with elevated trains of aluminum construction suspended underneath. Sketches of this plan were under consideration by a civic counsel committee.

"Certainly, from the material and means which thought and effort have created in the passing years, something tangible should result. Bringing a super highway system to completion would eliminate the appalling loss of life which society suffers from automobiles, not to mention the untold suffering caused by injuries and heartaches. The intolerable roar and din of traffic will be greatly alleviated by a construction of this type.

"Surely the press of the city, and all those interested in the welfare and good name of Chicago, should join hands to achieve this goal."

VOICE OF TRAFIC

DOESN'T SOUND RIGHT.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Recently in the Trafic court there was one case that interested me and should be of interest to every driver. A man was fined $4 for passing a street car. According to the testimony the street car was waiting for a trafic light and the passengers boarding or leaving the car had done so.

This would indicate that it is against the law to pass a street car except when it is in motion and since this is practically impossible on most of our streets it just about rules out driving on a car line if one obeys the law. "Something ought to be done about this."

HIGH TAXES.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—I would like to raise my voice in a public utterance in a strong protest regarding the unfair high automobile license tax existing in our grand and glorious city.

Why is it necessary that we in Chicago have to pay such an enormous vehicle tax? Berwyn, Ill., has cut its tax in half. Cicero, Ill., is taking the same steps. Why not Chicago? Chicago, in my contention, is the greatest city in the world and should therefore set an example for others to follow.

I submit these humble words in a form of a motion. Who will second this motion? Come on now, all ye auto owners, let us hear from you. Let's have your formal protest now.

"RACKET."

Chicago, Feb. 25.—On Jan. 12 my car was stolen at the point of guns two miles east of Valparaiso, Ind. The theft was immediately reported to the police at Gary, Ind. Thirty-three days later I am notified by the automobile protective and information bureau that they have located my car.

I was told by this company that my car was picked up by the Gary police on Jan. 14. I went to the Gary police station to claim my car. They seemed to have a complete record of everything, including the report when it was stolen.

Upon going to the garage where the car was held I found that on my key ring, which was still in the ignition lock, was my identification tag giving my name and address. In the pocket of the car was my 1934 Chicago license receipt giving my name and address. The 1934 license plates were on the car for identification.

Yet this car was held in this Gary garage for thirty-three days and even then they did not notify me. I claim this is a very good storage racket, as the thirty-three days' storage was added to a towing bill. I cannot thank the automobile protective and information bureau too much for finding my car.

WATCHING LEGISLATURE.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Noting by your Sunday paper that it is proposed to follow up the various bills pending at Springfield in our legislature having to do with taxation and regulation of automobiles and automobile operators and record for your readers the votes of various members of the legislature on such bills, etc.

That is a splendid idea and if you went a little further and summarized in a way the features of such bills the reader would know precisely what it is all about that he may judge better the action of the legislative member.

Wreckers Hit Old Town Hall in Englewood

James Whitcomb Riley or Eugene Field in their lighter moments might have been able to compose a verse to commemorate it, but all that can be said now, is the Old Englewood village hall and fire station, which stood for no one knows how many years back of the Englewood police station at 6347 Wentworth avenue, is no more.

City wreckers started tearing the structure down two weeks ago and completed the job last week. A five car garage soon will be built on the site.

Sagging at every joint, leaking from countless holes in its roof, cold as the inside of an ice box and populated with myriads of rodents, the old building, two stories high, had been used for the last two decades as a garage for the station "paddy wagon." Before that it housed the horses which hauled the old time "black Maria," and every warm day would bring back reminders of the equines' tenantry.

Many are the coryza [cold to you] germs which were wafted up the noses of the unfortunate wagon drivers and helpers who had to occupy its chilly quarters while waiting for a run and many are the pinochle games which were played within expectorating distance of the pot-bellied stove. All are no more.

Built originally by the town of Englewood as a village meeting hall, police and fire station, the old building was superseded by the modern [then] building in front of it which now houses the police station and Engine company No. 51 of the fire department, after the city absorbed the village.

CCC COMPANIES TO REDUCE AUTO AND FIRE HAZARD

Reach Goal 10 Years Ahead of Time.

Preparations for spring are under way in the Cook county forest preserves. Work is being rushed on a comprehensive schedule of improvements throughout the 33,000 acres which, when completed this summer, will put the forest preserve district ten years ahead in its development program.

This is revealed by Supt. Charles G. Sauers. When the district was organized in 1915, Supt. Sauers said, a schedule of improvements to be carried out by 1945 was formulated. The work is being brought to completion ten years ahead of time as a result of the aid given first by the CWA, then by relief labor furnished by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, and now by CCC workers.

Eighteen CCC companies are at work now in the forest preserves, Supt. Sauers said. Each company has approximately 200 men. Ten of the units are stationed in the Skokie valley and the other eight are scattered throughout the forest preserves.

Will Curb Drivers.

Particular stress is to be laid this year on automobile control and fire prevention in the preserves, Mr. Sauers said. Complete automobile control is desirable for two reasons: conservation and safety. Cars driven over young vegetation destroy it, and promiscuous driving through the preserves endangers the lives of hikers and members of picnic groups.

Complete automobile control will have been attained with the completion this summer of 110 closed parking spaces, six and a half miles of roadside and highway barriers, and twenty-five miles of roadside ditch barriers. Work on the parking spaces and barriers was begun two years ago in connection with the improvement program now nearing completion.

Sixty-eight of the parking spaces have been completed, twelve are in process of construction and, before the summer is over, an additional thirty will have been built, Supt. Sauers said. Most of the parking spaces are close to picnic groves, golf courses and swimming pools.

Place Fire Warnings.

A campaign has been launched by Clayton F. Smith, president of the board of forest preserve commissioners, to keep fires at a minimum this year. At the direction of Mr. Smith 400 signs bearing the legend, "Help Prevent Fires," are being placed throughout the preserves.

Efforts will be made to educate the public to the importance of extinguishing fires in picnic fireplaces, and to see to it that cigar and cigaret butts have been completely extinguished before being thrown away. Extension of such facilities in the preserves as concrete roads and highways, which now total 200 miles, cinder and gravel hiking and bridle trails, of which there are now 150 miles, and the construction of cinder and gravel parking spaces, are regarded as effective measures toward fire control, Mr. Sauers said.

Among the improvement projects now under way in the forest preserves and scheduled for completion this year are the construction of twenty-three picnic shelters to augment the twenty now existing, building of sixty-eight trailside fireplace shelters along the 150 miles of hiking and bridle trails, and the construction of forty-eight trail bridges to accommodate hikers and riders. Thirty-three such bridges now exists. Five new vehicle bridges also will be constructed.

Reforest 300 Acres.

Three hundred acres of open land will be planted with trees taken from thickets, and with saplings and shrubs from the forest preserve district's new nursery, which is under development at Ogden avenue and Wolf road. Planting of these 300 acres will make a total of 1,400 acres that have thus been reforested.

The forest preserve district is divided into seven geographic divisions, numerically indicated.

Division No. 5 is bounded by 79th street on the north, 175th street on the south, Crawford avenue on the east, and Du Page county on the west, and has within its boundaries the Palos golf course, the Palos winter sports area, Orland game sanctuary, Camp Sullivan and Tuna lake.

Division 5A, known as Dan Ryan woods in Beverly Hills, 87th street and Western avenue, is a popular picnic area in summer and a huge winter sports territory. A new shelter house of stone has just been completed.

Division No. 6, on which the boundaries are the Indiana state line on the east, Will county line on the south, Western avenue on the west and 112th street on the north, contains the Little Calumet river, Thorn, Deer and North creeks, Sauk Trail lake and Green lake, where one of the most popular of the three swimming pools of the forest preserve district is located. There are also miles of hiking and bridle trails and many trailside shelters.

Playground for Suburbs.

Residents of Blue Island, Riverdale, Dolton, Burnham, Dixmoor, Calumet City, Harvey, Phoenix, South Holland, Hazel Crest, Markham, Thornton, Lansing, Glenwood, Chicago Heights and South Chicago Heights use this area as a summer playground.

Many of the improvements made within the last two years were financed by the proceeds from the sale of bonds from the 2½ million dollar bond issue authorized at a referendum in November of 1930. Approximately 1½ millions of the bonds have been sold.

SIGN CONTRACTS FOR SOUTH SIDE $250,000 SCHOOL

Contracts for the construction of the Oakenwald Elementary school at 41st street and Lake Park avenue, to cost approximately $250,000, were approved by the board of education yesterday. Work will be started as soon as weather permits, according to John C. Christiansen, architect for the board.

The school originally was scheduled to be built two years ago as a model school structure for inspection by World's Fair visitors. The plans, however, were shelved for lack of money. Had the school been built at that time it would have cost approximately $500,000, Mr. Christiansen said.

It would have contained a grand foyer and staircase, the only arrangement of its kind in the city, and a kindergarten that would have been visible immediately upon entering the building, since it would have been set off with a glass partition just opposite the entrance of the building.

The wings of the structure would have housed the gymnasium and assembly hall, both with separate heating and lighting plants, which could have been shut off from the main building as distinct units for meetings and evening festivities of the school and neighborhood.

Fifteen portable, with an enrollment of approximately 750, now occupy the site of the new school. The new building will represent a modification of the original plans and will be so constructed that four additional rooms can be added at any time, Mr. Christiansen said.

HYDE PARK RIFLE TEAM IS CLOSE UP AS MATCH ENDS

With two "Annie Oakleys" in its ranks, the rifle team of the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A., 1400 East 53d street, is second in the field of contestants now competing for the Illinois state small bore rifle team championship, according to results posted last week. The various teams fire on their own ranges and then mail the result to the others, so one team never knows for several days just where it stands in the rankings.

Until last week Hyde Park was leading the field, but in the last shooting the Milan team scored 1,372 points to bring its total to 4,014, nine more than Hyde Park's total of 4.003. Other teams in the contest and their rankings: Monmouth, third, with 3,954 points, and Castle American Legion, fourth, with 3,856 points.

The fourth and final shooting took place last night but the results will not be known for several days.

TROOPS OUTLINE PLANS FOR SCOUT CAMP ACTIVITY

Three Name Delegates to Jamboree.

Winter is still with us and prospects of warm weather seem far away, but the Boy Scouts of the south side already are making definite plans for their camping activities next summer, according to reports received by R. W. Horlick, chairman of the district camp committee. These activities include participation in the organized summer camps of the Chicago council and in the national jamboree to be held in Washington, D. C., Aug. 21 to 30.

Sixteen troops in the district already have indicated their intention of going to camp next summer, either at the Owasippe Scout camps near Whitehall, Mich.; at Camp Kiwanis, near Willow Springs, or at a camp conducted by the troop itself.

Scoutmasters of three troops have registered their troops' representatives for the jamboree. They are Irving Naiburg of troop 514, Elvin W. Anders of troop 523, and F. H. Marks of troop 529. Chicago has been allotted 700 representatives, one for each troop, ship and pack, at the jamboree.

A novel method to develop attendance at the camps is being used by a group of older Scouts who are members of the Order of the Arrow, a nation-wide group of oldtime Scout campers. They have evolved a camp promotion plan built about the stories of Paul Bunyan, the mythical loggerhero of extra tall legends of lumber camps.

James Goreham, 11329 Normal avenue, who directs the district camp campaign, is known as the "foreman," and the leader in each neighborhood community is known as the "straw boss."

In the Oakland-Kenwood community the straw boss is Pat Smith; in Hyde Park, Robert Lowery; in Shoreland are two, Ivan Atkens and Al Schaar; in Parkside, Gene Thompson; in Woodlawn, Neil McDowell; in the Triangle community, Robert Bergman; in the Eastern community, Robert Stone; in the Western community, Omar Freholm; in North Central community, Chuck Bevans, and in Blue Island, Tom Parsons.

Proceeds of the party will be used for the Catholic Youth activities sponsored by the court. The organization is 32 years old, and is headed by George A. Grieshaber as chief ranger.

GLACIER PRIEST TO GIVE LECTURE ON U. OF C. CAMPUS

The Rev. Bernard R. Hubbard, S. J., famous as the "Glacier Priest," will describe his latest explorations in the mountains and volcano craters of northern Alaska in a lecture at Mandel hall, of the University of Chicago campus, next Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock. Father Hubbard is appearing as the fourth speaker in the series sponsored by the student lecture service of the university.

The priest-explorer returned recently from an adventure into the Aghileen pinnacles, the most remote part of the Alaskan peninsula. His lecture is entitled, "Moon Craters of Alaska," and is accompanied by motion pictures taken by him. He was landed inside the crater of a volcano he discovered last summer by the late Frank Dorbrandt, one of the northwest's best known aviators, and made scenes while the volcano erupted.

Father Hubbard is professor of geology at Santa Clara university, California. He has pointed out that there is a close resemblance between the craters of Alaska, as seen from an airplane, and the craters of the moon, as seen through powerful telescopes.

PROPOSE THREE DISTRICTS FORM CIVIC COUNCIL

Hyde Park, Kenwood and Oakland to Unite.

A plan for a proposed community council for the Hyde Park, Kenwood, and Oakland districts will be presented to 150 representatives of the civic, social, economic, religious, and cultural groups in the communities at a meeting in the ballroom of the Windermere East hotel, Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Months of preparation and conferences have gone into the preliminary plan, according to the Rev. Norris L. Tibbetts, pastor of the Hyde Park Baptist church, one of the organizers. An attempt will be made to establish a permanent organization at the meeting.

Would Improve Living.

The primary purpose will be to make the three districts better places in which to live and work, according to the Rev. Dr. Tibbetts. Under the plan already worked out, this is to be accomplished by coördination of activities and exchange of ideas.

It is expected that the council will study the districts and make use of common knowledge and newly discovered facts, according to Dr. Tibbetts. Primary attention will be given to larger community interests, he says, and the various activities, organizations, institutions, and agencies will be thought of as coöperating instruments to achieve the ends of the council.

The council will create committees to discover the needs in the district which are not being cared for at present by any agency, and will seek to have these needs met through existing agencies or by creating new agencies to meet the needs. The council also will serve as a clearing house to eliminate wasteful overlapping.

Organizers Are Named.

Among the many persons included in the group which has been developing the plan are: Miss A. M. Anderson, Mrs. G. G. Bogert, V. K. Brown, Dr. E. W. Burgess, J. A. Butler, Spencer Castle, T. J. Connelly, J. E. Cornell, L. T. Crossman, C. H. Daemicke, G. O. Fairweather, J. W. Gonnelly, L. J. Harris, J. W. Hays, C. E. Hendry, C. W. Hoff, the Rev. Douglas Horton, and Ward James.

Others are S. C. Kincheloe, Mrs. N. L. Kreuger, Dr. Gerson B. Levi, Michael Montague, Mrs. E. G. Nichols, O. E. Peterson, Mrs. Ella M. Saunders, the Rev. William Slade, Lee Smith, Mrs. H. J. Smith, Miss Kathleen Stewart, H. W. Waltz Jr., and B. Fred Wise.

JACK SMART IS EXPERT ON ODD NOISES IN STUDIO

He Squawks Like Ostrich; Imitates Huey Long.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

When weird noises are needed many producers call in the sound effects experts. But others summon Jack Smart, 325 pound actor of Fred Allen's Town Hall show. Jack is a dialect expert, playing Japanese and Chinese parts expertly. On the March of Time he tosses off a convincing Huey Long impersonation, but around the studios he is best known for the assortment of odd noises he can make to order.

JACK SMART.

One day Fred Allen's show called for the squawk of an ostrict. Fred looked at Jack. Now, Jack wasn't certain about the honk of an ostrich, but he knew Allen wasn't, either.

"I just made a squawk like a hoarse chicken," Jack recalled. That sounded plausible to Allen and there were no objections sent in even by zoo directors or Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson.

On a dog biscuit program he plays both the part of the purp and his master. During the Wizard of Oz program he started out as a roaring lion, wound up as a hee-hawing donkey. He will provide anything from a bullfrog croak to a banshee wail. And when the tenor on the program fails to show, Jack takes his part. Smart fellow, this Jack Smart.

Notes on New Programs.

Jack Pearl is building for more solid popularity, we have an idea, with his new Peter Pfeiffer show than he did as Baron Munchausen. And Freddie Rich's orchestra, heard with him, is certainly the top. It is, indeed, a little too swell for the type of hotel Peter purports to be running. Patti Chapin is a delightful songstress, too. One of these days there may be a Chapin vogue as there has been and is for Jane Froman. Ray Noble's perfume program is another that suits this listener. With so many orchestras going in heavily for strings Noble sticks to brass and woodwinds and yet achieves the soft smoothness that the stringed orchestras emphasize. Hearing Noble is a little like listening to Hal Kemp or Guy Lombardo. You wouldn't mistake either of them or Ray Noble for somebody else.

PATTI CHAPIN.

Out of the Grab Bag.

Goodman and Jane Ace have been signed to a new three year contract by NBC. They recently left CBS. They made their first national splurge through W-G-N three years ago. . . . Angelo Ferdinanado's orchestra has been conducting a national song title contest. More than 22,000 poetic and romantic titles were submitted, and the one that won was simply "Say yes." . . . Vi Bradley, CBS songstress, received a gratifying fan letter the other day. It came from a telephone official who a few years back wouldn't give her a job as a phone girl because "her voice wasn't attractive enough." . . . Dorothy Miller, Harold Stokes' songstress, is appearing with Tom, Dick, and Harry on the NBC Musical Memories hour as a guest singer. . . . Kay Kyser brought back from Dixie stories of something new under the sun—morning dances. In southern university towns they played several engagements beginning at 11 a. m. And they played as late at other colleges as 4 a. m. . . . And Art Wright, the young tenor with the orchestra, made a big hit with the southern girls.

Cyril Pitts, soloist on the Contented program, is due for a buildup at NBC. He will be featured in a program of his own shortly. . . . Irene Beasley is sending her book of verse titled "Sonnets for a Song" to the printers this week. . . . Walter Wicker has been laid up with the influenza. . . . Joan Kay, network actress, is to join the Tony Wons lineup shortly.

Town Hall Bulletin

Dear Larry: Tennessee legislature kills move to appeal famous anti-evolution law. Reassured that they aren't kin to man, thousands of monkeys cut capers in relief. . . . The publishing of incomes will be a great help to art. Baby movie actors will be encouraged to learn that the President doesn't make over $100,000, either. . . . True to form: Master of ceremonies placing naughty daughter across knee, gives the little girl a great big hand. . . . The world's laziest housewife puts a loaf of bread on the window sill and lets the birds make their own crumbs. . . . Says Portland: "If some radio comedians died laughing, the coroner's verdict would be suicide." Cordially, FRED ALLEN.

The championship matches of the Golden Gloves boxing tournament will be broadcast exclusively by W-G-N next Friday evening from the ringside at Chicago Stadium. Following six weeks of preliminary matches in which more than 10,000 boxers competed the field has been narrowed to the finals in which the best thirty-two boxers will compete.

There will be bouts in every weight and in both the novice and championship divisions. The title battles will start at 9:30 p. m., although the semifinals will be staged starting at 8 o'clock. W-G-N will be on the air at 9:30 to bring listeners the blow by blow account of each of the title contests.

Quin Ryan and Bob Elson will broadcast the entire show for W-G-N and the broadcast will continue until the champions in each of the weight divisions have been determined.

Hocky on W-G-N Tonight.

When Les Canadiens meet the Chicago Black Hawks tonight at the Chicago Stadium, W-G-N will present an exclusive broadcast of the third period. Summaries of the first two will also be given. Bob Elson will be at the microphone.

CHURCHES BEGIN LENTEN RITUALS NEXT WEDNESDAY

Masses, Noon Services in Loop Planned.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

All Catholics, Lutherans, Episcopalians, and an increased number of Protestants will begin their Lenten devotions on Wednesday, known in the ecclesiastical calendar as Ash Wednesday. This name of the first day of Lent is derived from that fact that the ashes of the palms blessed on the previous Palm Sunday are sprinkled over congregations as a symbol of penitence.

Ash Wednesday services announced at Holy Name cathedral will include solemn mass at 9 a. m., followed by blessing and distribution of ashes. At noon low mass will be offered. Special Lenten devotions will be conducted by the Very Rev. Msgr. Joseph P. Morrison at 8 p. m. Low masses, with five minute instruction periods, will be celebrated each noon during Lent.

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist Episcopal area of Chicago has announced that all churches in his jurisdiction will observe the Lenten season this year by holding evangelistic services. An all-day retreat for Methodist pastors will be held Ash Wednesday in the Chicago temple, 77 West Washington street. The Rev. Dr. John Thompson will conduct the retreat.

Hold "Parish Night."

Episcopal churches of the diocese of Chicago are announcing unique services for Lent. At St. Mark's church, Ridge avenue, Evanston, the Rev. Dr. Harold L. Bowen has announced "parish night" events to replace the usual formal Lenten services during the week. Following parish suppers each Thursday night Dr. Bowen will give a Lenten lecture.

The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard of Winnetka has announced that speakers from various communions will address Thursday night gatherings. His list includes Dr. Shailer Mathews, dean emeritus of the University of Chicago divinity school.

Ash Wednesday also will start the annual noon day Lenten services at the Harris theater, Dearborn street near Randolph street. Bishop George Craig Stewart will be the opening speaker and will continue through the remainder of the week. President John D. Allen of the Episcopal Church Club of Chicago, sponsor of the noon day loop services, announced that services will begin at 12:10 each noon and continue until 12:30.

Announce Radio Series.

Representative clergymen from Chicago and other cities will speak at later services. Bishop Stewart will conclude the series during holy week.

The publicity association of the 86 Evangelical Lutheran Missouri synod churches of Chicago has announced that a special Lenten radio series will begin on Ash Wednesday under Lutheran auspices. Each Wednesday in Lent a service will be broadcast over station WAAF between 2 and 2:30 in the afternoon. The first speaker will be the Rev. Arthur H. Kaub, pastor of Windsor Park Lutheran church. Assisting in the service will be the Concordia college octet of River Forest.

The Rev. Edward S. White, rector of the Church of the Redeemer, 5600 Blackstone avenue, has announced that a quiet day for the women of that parish will be conducted on Shrove Tuesday by the Rev. Howard Brinker, rector of St. Bartholomew's church, Englewood, which begins with breakfast at 9 o'clock. For the Thursday night services during Lent, the general theme, "The Christian Man in a Day in Chicago," will be discussed by visiting preachers among whom are the Rt. Rev. Frank A. McIlwain, bishop of Minnesota, and the Very Rev. Edmund J. M. Nutter, dean of Nashotah seminary.

The Rev. Walter C. Bihler, rector of Christ church, 6500 Woodlawn avenue, has arranged for visiting preachers at the Wednesday evening services during Lent. The Rev. Duncan H. Browne of St. James will officiate on Ash Wednesday.

ASK STREET CAR TRACK REMOVAL ON PARK AVENUE

Clubs Want "Bottleneck" Hazard Decreased.

After starting its drive for a new south side sewer last week, the South Side Federation of Improvement clubs is now working to have the street car tracks removed from South Park avenue between 63d and 67th streets to make ready for future widening of the street, according to T. A. Arnold, president.

"We will prepare petitions to be presented to the Illinois Commerce commission and the street car company urging that this be done," Mr. Arnold says. "At the present time that section of the street is a bottle neck crowded with buses, trucks, and street cars. If the tracks are taken out the section can be made part of the boulevard and reserved for pleasure automobiles only."

Mr. Arnold points out that the only street cars using the stretch are those which run to Hammond and Whiting. He suggests that these cars be routed over Stony Island avenue at South Chicago avenue, to 63d street, thence to Dorchester avenue, south on Dorchester avenue to 64th street, east in 64th street to Stony Island avenue and then south over that street to South Chicago avenue.

That route is now being used by several of the street car company's lines, but would not be crowded by addition of the others, Mr. Arnold says.

"Routing the line in the manner I suggest would result in better service for the people using it," says Mr. Arnold. "Persons coming from downtown who wish to transfer to the elevated lines have more chance of getting a seat if they get on at Stony Island avenue. They also have the opportunity of transferring to the Illinois Central suburban line at Dorchester, which they do not have under the present system."

University Study Club to Hear Three Speakers

The University Study club, an organization which sponsors a scholarship at the University of Chicago, will meet tomorrow afternoon in the Gladstone hotel, 62d street and Kenwood avenue. Mrs. E. H. "For our Lesson today we take the Apple"

This is an apple.
In it, there are SEEDS.
Nobody eats them.
They do not make the apple taste better.
Everybody knows that.

This is a COFFEE BEAN.
In it, is CAFFEIN.
Caffein has as little to do with the goodness of coffee as do the seeds with the goodness of the apple.

So we take the caffein OUT of SANKA COFFEE.
The PUNGENT AROMA remains.
The superlative GOODNESS remains.
The WARMTH and SATISFACTION remain.
ONLY the caffein is out.
And good riddance to it.
Because caffein harms
some people's NERVES, and keeps a lot of folks AWAKE
when they ought to be ASLEEP.

You can drink Sanka Coffee
BLACK as night and not disturb your nerves.

You can drink it ANY TIME, and sleep.
It's WONDERFUL.

TRY it—you'll see.
Your grocer has it.

DICK TRACY
By Chester Gould
BUT HOW DID TRACY PREVENT THE ELECTRIC TRUCK THAT WAS SPEEDING TOWARD YOU IN THE UNDERGROUND TUNNEL FROM RUNNING YOU DOWN?
WELL, YOU SEE THE TRUCK WAS COMING TOO FAST FOR US TO OUTRUN IT-AND THE TUNNEL WAS TOO NARROW FOR US TO STEP ASIDE AND LET THE CAR PASS –
SO TRACY SNATCHED OFF HIS OVERCOAT AND THE OVERCOAT OF THE HOTEL MANAGER – FOLDED THEM BOTH TOGETHER – AND LAID THEM ON ONE OF THE RAILS. THAT WAS ENOUGH TO DERAIL THE TRUCK, AND IT BUMPED INTO THE SIDE OF THE TUNNEL.
AND YOU SAY THAT PERSON THAT BROKE INTO OUR ROOM, AND TRIED TO TAKE MY LIFE IS A WOMAN?
ABSOLUTELY! WE SAW HER HAIR WHEN HER HAT FELL OFF. TRACY'S AFTER HER NOW, AND HE SAID FOR US TO STAY HERE TILL HE CALLS FOR US.
MEANWHILE THE CHASE AFTER ZORA ARSON HAS LED FROM THE UNDERGROUND FREIGHT RAILWAY BELOW THE CITY STREETS UP ONTO THE BOULEVARDS AND INTO THE PARK.....
SHE'S GIVEN US THE SLIP, TRACY! WE'RE LICKED!
LOOKS LIKE IT, MEN! WE'VE COMBED THIS PARK FROM END TO END – WE LOST TRACE OF HER RIGHT AT THIS LAGOON.
'COURSE SHE COULD HAVE JUMPED INTO THE WATER AND DROWNED HERSELF. HA! I CAN IMAGINE HER DOING THAT – OH! OH! LOOK AT THE SAIL BOAT!
IF TRACY ONLY KNEW WHAT STRANGE PART THAT LITTLE SAILBOAT IS PLAYING!
FOLLOWING THE SHORE LINE SHE ROUNDS A POINT IN THE LAGOON, REACHES SHALLOW WATER NEAR SOME BUSHES AND EMERGES...
FASTENING THIS HOLLOW WATER REED THAT WAS GROWING AT THE EDGE OF THE LAGOON TO THAT LITTLE SAILBOAT MADE A PERFECT SET-UP FOR BREATHING UNDER WATER!
WAW WAW
THOSE SCREAMS! SOUNDS LIKE A KID!
LET'S TAKE A LOOK.
A WOMAN TOOK MY SAILBOAT AWAY FROM ME, THEN TIPPED THIS BASKET OVER ON ME AND RAN AWAY. I WANT MY SAILBOAT!
HIS SAILBOAT?
THAT NIGHT BORIS ARSON RECEIVES A SPECIAL DELIVERY LETTER...
HM! IT'S FROM SIS...... IT SAYS.."HAVE COURAGE-WE'RE FOR YOU". LET'S SEE, IN OUR SECRET CODE THAT MEANS "GAVE THE COPS THE SLIP-AM O.K."
ZORA ARSON'S CUNNING HAS SAVED HER NECK AGAIN! BUT HOW LONG CAN SHE OUTWIT DICK TRACY??

GOSH IT SURE FEELS SWELL TO GET MY ARM OUT OF THOSE SPLINTS — IT'S KIND OF STIFF YET, BUT IT'LL BE ALL RIGHT. BOY! I CAN'T WAIT TO GET BACK TO OUR SCHOOL ATHLETICS. BASEBALL SEASON WILL BE HERE BEFORE YOU KNOW IT, AND —
DR. WHARTON M.D.
OFFICE HOURS
I KNOW HOW YOU FEEL, AND I'M HAPPY TOO — AND WON'T ALL THE KIDS IN THE FAIR PLAY CLUB BE HAPPY!
CLICK!
WHY WHAT'S THE MATTER — WHAT ARE YOU LOOKING SO SAD ABOUT ALL OF A SUDDEN?
I FORGOT ABOUT THOSE LITTLE KIDS. THAT FAIR PLAY IDEA WAS SUCH A SWELL THING. IT HELPED MAKE LITTLE MEN OF THEM — WOULD HAVE TAUGHT THEM LESSONS THAT WOULD STAY WITH THEM ALL THROUGH LIFE — BUT NOW I WON'T HAVE TIME TO DEVOTE TO THEM
IT'S REALLY A SHAME IT HAS TO COME TO AN END BEFORE THEY'VE REALLY HAD A CHANCE TO BE IMPRESSED WITH THE IMPORTANCE OF FAIRNESS AND GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP
THAT'S NOT THE WAY STREAKY TAUGHT US TO PLAY — REMEMBER WHAT HE TOLD US — IF YOU CAN'T WIN BY FAIR MEANS IT ISN'T WORTH WINNING AT ALL!
YEAH — THAT'S RIGHT, ALL RIGHT
THERE NOW! YOUR EFFORTS WERE NOT IN VAIN. YOUR TRAINING HAS IMPRESSED THEM MORE THAN YOU REALIZED. THEY'LL GET ALONG AND WON'T EVER FORGET THE THINGS YOU TAUGHT THEM!

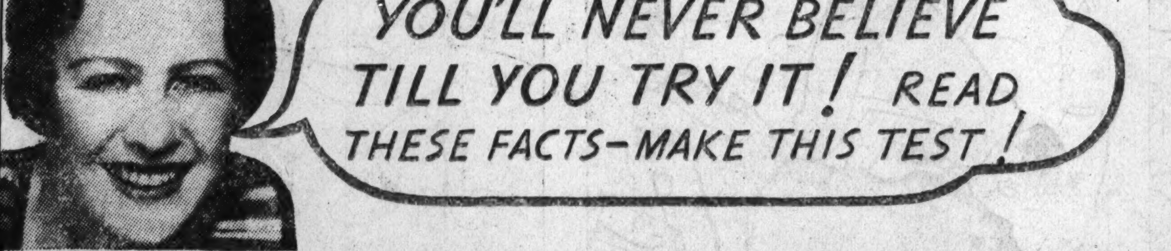
OH, RUTH, WHAT AM I GOING TO DO! ALL THESE CLOTHES TO WASH ... AND JOHN'S BOSS COMING FOR DINNER!
NOW DON'T YOU WORRY! WE'LL GET THESE CLOTHES DONE IN A JIFFY. JUST A MINUTE WHILE I GET THAT SPECIAL SOAP OF MINE—OXYDOL. I'LL SHOW YOU SOMETHING ABOUT FAST WASHING.
OXYDOL? THAT'S GRANULATED SOAP, ISN'T IT? BUT I'M USING A GRANULATED SOAP ALREADY.
BUT OXYDOL IS EVEN FASTER WASHING. JUST 15 MINUTES' SOAKING —NO SCRUBBING OR BOILING—WHICH SAVES LOADS OF TIME AND WORK.
15 MINUTES' SOAKING? RUTH DON'T YOU DARE PUT THAT SOAP IN MY CLOTHES! IT MUST BE TWICE AS STRONG AS THE ONE I'M USING NOW. AND I'M BEGINNING TO BELIEVE EVEN THAT ONE'S TOO HARSH.
NOW DON'T GET EXCITED. OXYDOL IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE. IT WON'T HURT ANYTHING—EVEN THE SHEEREST COTTON PRINTS. YET IT WORKS TWICE AS FAST AS OTHER SOAPS.
THAT'S RIDICULOUS! I DON'T BELIEVE IT!
IT'S TRUE, AND I'LL PROVE IT! JUST WAIT 15 MINUTES AND SEE.
15 MINUTES LATER
WHY RUTH, IT'S AMAZING! ONLY 15 MINUTES' SOAKING AND THESE CLOTHES ARE SHADES WHITER THAN EVER BEFORE. BUT ARE YOU SURE THAT SOAP IS SAFE?
WELL, JUST LOOK AT THIS PRINT DRESS I'M WEARING. I'VE WASHED IT 15 TIMES IN OXYDOL ALREADY. ISN'T IT MARVELOUS HOW THE COLORS ARE SO FRESH AND NEW?

SARAH, YOU WERE MARVELOUS TONIGHT. THE BOSS WAS AWFULLY IMPRESSED! YOU WERE JOKING, WEREN'T YOU, WHEN YOU SAID YOU DID A BIG WASH TODAY?
I REALLY DID, JOHN. RUTH SHOWED ME A MARVELOUS NEW SOAP THAT ACTUALLY SOAKS DIRT LOOSE FROM CLOTHES IN 15 MINUTES. NO SCRUBBING OR BOILING AT ALL. AND YOU SHOULD SEE HOW WHITE AND CLEAN THE CLOTHES ARE!



YOU'LL NEVER BELIEVE TILL YOU TRY IT! READ THESE FACTS—MAKE THIS TEST!

New Million Dollar Granulated Soap Combines Safety With Utmost Speed. At Last A Safe Fast-Washing Soap That Actually Loosens Dirt Out of Clothes In 15 Minutes' Soaking—Gets Them 4 to 5 Shades Whiter Than Other Soaps Without Scrubbing or Boiling.

● New and Improved OXYDOL is different from any bar, flake, chip or ordinary granulated soap you ever used. Different in the way it's made and in the results it gets.

Due to its patented process of making, OXYDOL dissolves instantly in hard or soft water, and does these things:

FIRST—gives thick, 3-inch suds, rich as whipped dairy cream. Suds that go to work on grease, dirt and stains—in any water—2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps.

SECOND—sets up a unique, new "soak and flush" washing action. 15 MINUTES' SOAKING loosens dirt out so it flushes away—without scrubbing or boiling.

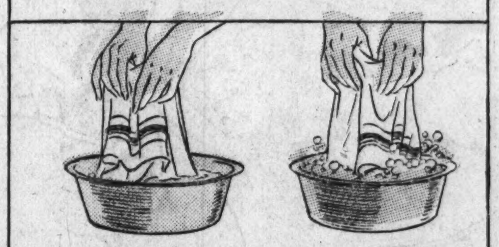
You cut washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine. You save long hours of soaking, scrubbing and boiling—you get clothes clean and white without washboard wear and tear.

And yet, due to its special formula—its special protective combination of mild soap ingredients—OXYDOL is safe. Absolutely safe to hands, colors, and fabrics!

Accept FREE Trial

Send your name and address to Procter & Gamble, Dept. D7-1, Box 1801, Cincinnati, Ohio, and we'll see you get a regular 10c package (enough for 2 full washings) absolutely free. Or to avoid delay—get OXYDOL tomorrow from your own grocer.

YOUR MONEY BACK
If This Test Fails in Your Home



● Into 2 pans, filled with equal amounts of water, put equal amounts of (1) your favorite soap and (2) the New and Improved OXYDOL. Then soak a dirty towel in each for 15 minutes by the clock. Then rinse.

● IF IN YOUR OPINION the towel that soaked in OXYDOL doesn't wash out whiter, smell sweeter, take the unused portion of the package of OXYDOL back to your grocer with this ad and get your money back.

A PRACTICAL COURSE.

World's of Practice Work Is Created for the Students of the MOLER COLLEGE in Beauty Culture and The Barber Trade

Through Their Club Plan.

The magnitude of the Moler System with branches in principal cities is the result of superior service.

Just a look in at the 10,000 sq. ft. of bank floor space fitted into individual booths will convince you.

Just a buzz from your phone will give you courteous description and particulars.

Just a letter or card from any distance will bring to you an illustrated booklet with photographic reproductions graphically telling the Moler Story.

Telling you of the three plans of teaching to fit you for 3 kinds of positions.

Exclusive North Shore Beauty Shops PREFER DeLEE GRADUATES

Read this frank letter:

CAYR-LEEN BEAUTY SALON,
1126 CENTRAL-AV., WILMETTE, ILL.
661 VERNON-AV., GLENCOE, ILL.
February 19, 1935.

DeLEE University of Beauty Culture.
Attn. Mme. Louise, Educational Director.
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Mme. Louise:

I want to tell you how pleased we are with Adele Humbert. She is capable, conscientious, and thorough in her work. As you know we have a very exacting clientele, for the most particular folks on the North Shore come to our shops. We are therefore very careful in hiring our operators. I have hired many operators and tried out many more, and have come to the conclusion that I would rather have a DeLEE graduate.

It is essential that an operator have the right training in the beginning, if she would make an excellent operator, and I know that she gets that correct training under skilled instructors, at the DeLEE University.

I think one reason that your operator graduates are capable of going right to work in a creditable shop is because your students stay in school long enough to thoroughly master their work. The fact that they can stay as long as they desire, having unlimited opportunity for practice, without any extra charge to them, means that your students become skilled operators by the time they graduate. The interest that you take in your students after they leave your school also means a great deal to the operators.

Again let me thank you for sending Adele Humbert to us.

Sincerely yours,
[Signed] Carrie Baker Buck, president,
CAYR-LEEN BEAUTY SALON, INC.

MEN.

If you live on the South Side or South Side suburbs, let me start you in a profitable business of your own, backed up by our prosperous company.

I have been on this territory exactly nine months and have already set one hundred and ninety-seven men up in business for themselves between Cadillac, Mich., and Mattoon, Ill., and still have twenty-four opportunities left.

I am in control of this territory of a business unique in character, merchandising an electrical unit that has no competition for which there is an ever increasing demand.

If in a personal interview you can satisfy me that you are honest, reliable and trustworthy and really have a desire to succeed, willing to study and are teachable, you may be the very man I am looking for.

Our business is very profitable. Many of our associates are earning as much as $50 on a percentage basis in a single day and after they become experienced handling our business receive a sizable monthly income, not regulated by the seasons, as ours is a year round business.

Selling experience not necessary, or if you are selected you are thoroughly trained at no expense to you. Some of our most successful associates never sold anything before joining us.

We stand all expense of your business, such as rent, light, heat, telephone, help, etc., and in addition to giving you merchandise on open account, carry all of your time payment paper.

You do not invest one cent with us. We finance everything.

Our business is depression-proof, as same has increased every month of the last four years with 1934 our busiest year. We have thousands of satisfied customers in the territory and are considered one of the country's outstanding organizations. There are no strings connected with this offer and if you can meet the above requirements you will be granted a personal, confidential interview which will quickly determine our mutual interests.

NEAR NORTH SIDE
It's very nice when you close your desk at the end of the day to know that after a short, brisk walk, just 5 blocks north of the river, you will come to a studio in a quaint little lamp-lighted court that makes you feel far away from Chicago, or a bungalow tucked away in a little Pomander Walk that no one knows about, or a little top floor flat with a huge 35 ft. living room, or a roof garden, or a place where a whole family can live. Some with lofty ceilings and sun kissed rooms, all with fireplaces, all interesting; a little charm about them that makes you glad you live there. You are home long before most of your friends, with a full evening in store. 2, 3, 4, 5 and 7 rooms. Also shop space.

DISTRIBUTOR WANTED

A well rated manufacturer of gas and electrical household utilities operating nationally is seeking a high grade distributor for the Chicago territory.

We offer for distribution in Chicago a complete line of automatic gas water heaters second to none in quality and at a favorable price.

The man our company is looking for may already be an established successful distributor of merchandise, who perhaps seeks a new product with a bigger and less competitive market.

He may now be employed and desirous of putting his business experience and general resources to work for himself because he believes the time is now right to establish his own business.

He must be a good salesman, good organizer, as he must organize a sales force, form dealer connections, exercise close supervision in the field and in general act as our direct representative in the Chicago territory.

Our product lends itself to sales through the plumbing industry and a large volume can be secured by working co-operatively with this industry.

We invite correspondence from any individual or organization with vision and resources ample to firmly establish a line of water heaters of merit in a territory possessing broad possibilities.

To this firm or individual we offer the co-operation of a high grade manufacturer with unquestioned standing—a line of products which in quality, price, and performance is unique—and an opportunity to build a substantial dignified business on a firm foundation and with possibilities of growth limited only by you or your organization.

If you are qualified, and will submit your qualifications to us, an early interview will be arranged. Any information you give will be held in strictest confidence. ADDRESS B S 18, TRIBUNE.

Men Tell Cooking Editor of Epicurean Yernings for Brawny Breakfasts

By MARY MEADE.

WHEN the master of the house is permitted a free hand with breakfast planning, here's the result. You'll find a groaning board, a few trimmings, but a great deal of good, plain man-food—stacks of pancakes, a profusion of sizzling sausages, big steaming cups of coffee, eggs not in genteel onesomes but in cheerful twos and threes, crisply fried potatoes—hearty stuff with a definite masculine appeal.

Maybe the men quoted below as to their preferences wouldn't choose these brawny breakfasts to precede a quiet day at the office, and maybe the yet chilly weather had something to do with their stated predilections. It's even being whispered that they're occasionally quite content with a more delicate repast of fruit juice and toast and coffee, with perhaps a dish of cereal, but that's quibbling.

Typical Choice of Sportsman.

The breakfast fancies of a sportsman are said to run something like the following, if we're to take the word of Bob Becker, woods and waters editor of The Tribune. He christens it his " camp " breakfast, but it boasts the distinction of feeling equally at home in more civilized surroundings.

The " camp " breakfast begins with a dish of stewed prunes, although Mr. Becker will permit an occasional swerve into the orange realm. Then follows a good generous pile of wheat cakes with butter and sirup slithering down their sides, and an accent of curly Canadian bacon. Toast, too, and a pot of marmalade, and big cups of coffee top off the meal.

Buckwheat cakes, that bone of contention among those who mourn the happy days of the past, key the breakfast of E. M. Antrim, assistant business manager of The Tribune, who is rather an authority on those tangy, fragrant cakes. A half grapefruit seems to him just the ticket for a cheerful beginning for the feast. Next to arrive are the buckwheat cakes with their running mates of melting butter and hot sirup, and a plate heaped with brown, sizzling, country style sausage pats ranging alongside.

Masculine Matinal Menu Bristles with Eggs, Hash, Cakes, Sausage, and Such

William K. McKay, Chicago editorial representative of the New York News, draws his breakfast inspiration from faraway sources. Following his morning grapefruit, upon which he urges the use of a bit of olive oil, a dash of salt, and a sprinkle of ground whole black pepper, he asks this:

"Now you're ready for your bacon and eggs. The bacon is that imported article . . . cured by those peculiar methods which have been used in Tuscany for many centuries. It comes to you not in a flat slab like our worthy American product, but rolled and twine bound, and in the folds are liberal sprinklings of spices. Don't fry or broil it to a crisp so that the aromatic flavors are burned out. Let it be fairly rare."

Eggs and Potatoes Accompany Bacon.

With these flavorsome slices of Italian bacon rimming the edge of a warm platter, he asks a cluster of fried, fresh eggs and a side dish of diced potatoes, cooked brown in the spicy juice of the bacon.

The fourth breakfast is most American in tone. Crusty pats of browned corned beef hash form the pièce de resistance, with their charms enhanced by gently coddled eggs. A bowl of fruit to begin the meal makes its colorful appeal, while golden, flaky hot biscuits and strawberry preserves set it out as a special sort of function. Just to prove his open-mindedness, the man who asked for this substantial morning repast said he could be swayed from his habitual morning coffee by a cup of hot chocolate topped off with whipped cream.

"Don't forget about toast and orange juice," cautioned the creator of the fifth breakfast, fearing, no doubt, that we were straying too far afield from the regulation going to work breakfast. So, with a tall glass of chilly orange juice for an eye opener, and the beloved golden buttery toast, he decided that he could nicely round out the meal with scrambled eggs and a slice of pinky broiled ham.

Paris Revokes Her Stringent Ban on Prints

By Bettina Bedwell.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—A few seasons back the Paris dressmakers couldn't see anything so unexclusive as printed materials, so they kept them down by a barrage of disapproval, calling them undistinguished, ordinaire, popular, and these are real epithets in the eyes of ladies avid for exclusiveness.

However, in spite of the Paris bar sinister, prints kept on being big style stuff in the U. S. A., and they finally got back into the French collections, too. They got back because Vionnet and Schiaparelli and some of the others took to having exclusive prints designed for their collections. Later, just rank and file prints, like dots and stripes, were received in the best Paris houses, and now, today, prints are as good as any plain goods in fashions.

Two color prints are starting the season off at the practical end of styles. There are beige-and-navy, black-and-pervenche, green-and-brown color combinations, and many others, too, that are seen as frequently as the white-and combination.

Styles to take to prints for spring are suits, jacket ensembles, coats, dresses, blouses.

Printed taffeta comes in for spring suits and dresses, printed crêpes and chiffons are numberless, as usual, and printed satins and faconne silks are with us. In the washable group there are printed organdies, nets, linens, piqués, voiles, crêpes, and so forth.

The ensemble, made of dark ground printed silk, and the dress of this charming member of the patterned material vogue, will be paramount among the fashionable. Dressy and extremely simple suits are being fashioned of this type of silk. The one shown at the left is an example of the dressy suit, made of brown silk crêpe, patterned with beige and yellow daisies in scattered clusters. The straight jacket is trimmed with blue fox fur, which makes a long stole effect at the closing. The skirt of this suit is straight and simple, and the blouse, shown above, is made of plain yellow chiffon, fastened with jeweled buttons that are star shaped. It has ruffles along the shoulder seems that descend around the armholes.

The dress and coat shown center are from Chanel. The coat, which looks so simple, is totally and entirely covered with black spangles. It is a sparkling member of fashion in spite of its tailored lines. The belt is made of black antelope, with a simple silver buckle. The toque, also from Chanel, is covered also with black spangles. Perfect with this brilliant coat is the Chanel dress at the left. It is made of sheer black crêpe dotted with a soft pervenche blue, and is plaited from top to bottom with fine knife plaiting. Its naive, round collar is plaited like the body of the dress and the short sleeves are trimmed with two plaited ruffles apiece.

Maggy Rouff Uses Bright Colors on Navy.

One of the best print garnished ensembles from Paris is shown second from the right. Maggy Rouff designed this ensemble and made it of dark blue wool crêpe. The knee length loose jacket is lined with printed silk, bright colors on a navy ground. The same print covers the revers and collar. The simple frock is of navy blue material the same as the coat, and is touched with the print at the neckline, waistline, and on the set-in hip pockets. The belt is draped softly around the waist and is half print, half plain. The bow at the neckline is made of the navy blue material.

At the right is a printed sports ensemble, with a dress of red and white candy striped linen, the stripes worked in chevrons and with bands of white linen sewed down the sides of the skirt to imitate the braid on military trousers. The white linen jacket, bolero size, has rippling revers of the striped linen at the front closing, and is fastened on white linen ties that emerge from the shoulder seams.

FIGURING IN THE PARIS OPENINGS

Above: Chanel makes this plaited frock of black and blue dotted sheer silk crepe and trims it with ruffles at the neck and sleeves.

Small Talk on Spring Fashions

FRINGE is an important new trimming. You'll see it down the backs of picturesque new dinner and dance dresses, along the long sleeve seams of negligees, and used for flounces. Even adopted as hat trimming with clever little tams made almost entirely of narrow rows of the stuff.

● Soft cashmere sweaters in all the pastel shades of blue, pink, soft yellow, mauve, and mint green come in the famous twin duets or singly. Tab collars with buttons down the front are new ideas to watch.

● Fabric gloves in pastels are as excitingly different as the clothes in the same springlike tones. Yellow numbers are going out fast, to be worn with the newest of navy blue outfits.

● Big taffeta neck scarfs with deep fringed edges come in the huge squares and the long, wide affairs that tie in bows or in double ascot formation.

● Noisy looking footwear in wild shades of bright blue, white, and scarlet has been copied from European peasant shoes. These boots have pointed edged, wide tongues that extend high over the instep, with lacings of brilliant color and rather jaunty, thick looking soles that extend out beyond the suede lether of the shoe. A built-up heel makes them splendid sports and heavy action shoes.

● Snowflake white, sheer blouses are ready for the trim, tailored new spring suits. Because of the severe simplicity of these high fashion tailored suits, blouses with plaiting, frilled jabots, and other feminine accents are essential for contrast.

● Brilliant seersuckers will positively make you gasp. Wide, vivid plaids, checks, and still more plaids are the highest of fashion. No spring or summer wardrobe will be complete without at least two frocks of seersucker cotton.

● All shades of gray from swanky oxford to the pale mist like fog are coming strong for these delightfully slim and tailored street suits for spring. Pencil striped gray skirts combined with diagonal tweed patterned jackets are as new as blurred, checked patterns in either skirt or jacket contrasting the plain darker shade. Scarlet ascots, or canary yellow, or a vivid shrimp pink are grand contrast colors for these subtle gray outfits.

● Jersey is back in all pastel shades and deeper colors for street. It makes the smartest of simple dresses and youthful looking suits.

● Just because most of publicity about the proper underlayers to wear beneath the streamlines of the daring new fashions seems to be pointed toward the young, is no reason to believe that grand new models for the heavier figure haven't been planned. There are some excellent foundation garments for the heavy-above-the-waist figure, with extra long shoulder straps and extra and cleverly added fullness over the diaphragm. All the complaining bridge players can now buy foundation garments with plenty of room for stretching without snapping or straining shoulder straps. And while you're shopping for these new creations you might notice the incoming supplies of white garments as typical spring and summer models to wear under sheer cottons and thin silks.

● Woolen fabrics with a linen weave, some with a shantung finish or texture, others that make you think they are silk are some of the inspired new textures. Soft, smooth woolens are back to stay for a while, especially for spring and summer wear.

● Redingotes will be made with dark materials for the dress and lighter tones for the outer dress coat; for instance, a golden shade over a dress of black spattered with a tiny design of old gold flowers and leaves; or a dusty pink wool over a dress of brown with small pink dots. The possibilities are unlimited for both color and contrast. Stripes, dots, checks, and plaids may be combined with one color outer contrasts in the coat or vice versa.

SYMPHONY IN GREEN AND SILVER

Spring green is the lovely color for this afternoon dress, which is made with sleeves deeply trimmed in silver paillettes and embroidery.

German Woman Aviator Applies for U.S. Citizenship

FRAULEIN ANTOINE STRASSMANN, one of Europe's best known women flyers, has taken out her first papers to become an American citizen. She started her career in the air as a free balloonist, having been taught by her brother. After a few flights, however, she turned to heavier-than-air craft, and has flown into every corner of the continent.

Men exceed women in the ranks of the idle in the United States. However, the number of female workers in industry more than doubled between 1900 and 1930. The decade 1920-'30 showed an increase of 2,200,000 employed women.

New Devices Aid to Hostess in Serving Food Attractively

TWO useful numbers that will prove their worth for the modern housewife are a blanc-mange ring mold set for salads, jellies, or baking purposes, and pattie shells for au-gratin foods. The large ring mold is splendid for salads, noodle rings, etc. The six individual rings included can be used for many attractive dishes. These are made of heavy club aluminum, are acid and rustproof, and most reasonably priced.

The scallop shells will interest the housewife who dotes on serving food attractively. These dainty shells, while not at all new, may be unknown to many young housewives. They are useful for serving fish au-gratin, patties, and canapes. The food is baked in them and served at the table as taken from oven. Each shell holds at least two heaping tablespoonsful of prepared food—an ample portion for entrée.

Turkish Women Excel in Varied Professional Fields

TODAY in Angora and Istanbul, Turkey, there are among women in professions fifteen magistrates, twelve lawyers, eight doctors, five chemists, four municipal councilors, and twenty university professors. Eight hundred stenographers and typists are employed in official departments and the number of women filling posts in banks, monopoly administrations and public services exceeds 1,500.

The police department of New York City has 105 policewomen and 50 patrolwomen in the department. Many of them are elderly, many are mothers, a few are grandmothers. Their average age is 45 years.

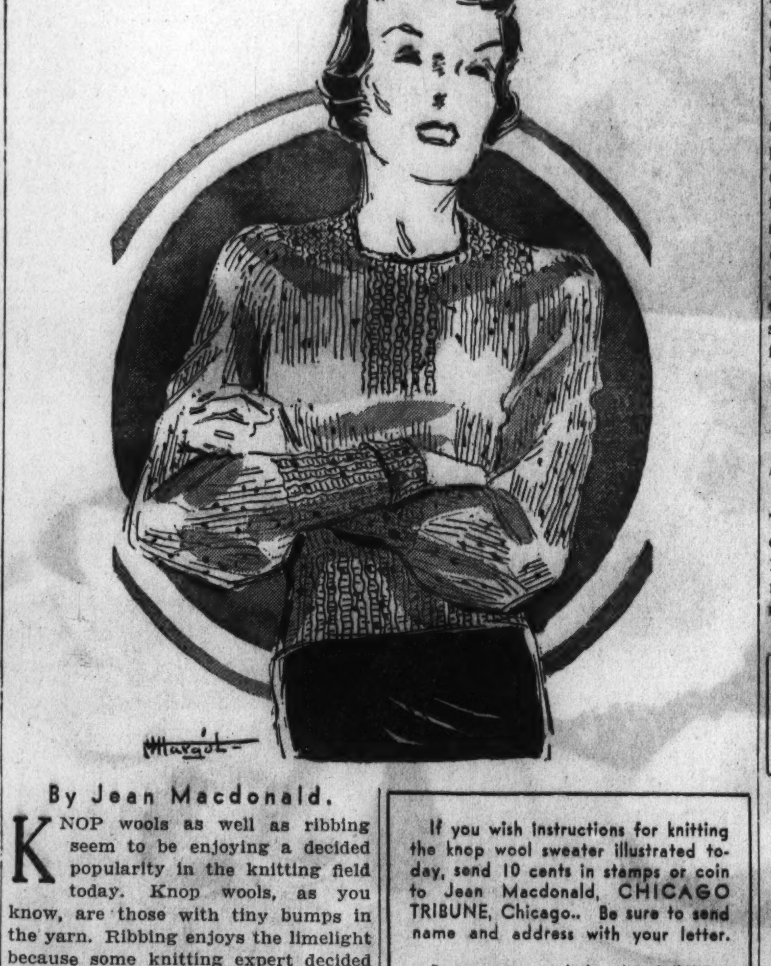
Popular Knop Wool and Ribbing Combined in Smart Sweater



By Jean Macdonald.

KNOP wools as well as ribbing seem to be enjoying a decided popularity in the knitting field today. Knop wools, as you know, are those with tiny bumps in the yarn. Ribbing enjoys the limelight because some knitting expert decided that it offered greater perfection of fit than other stitches. However, its use is still a matter of personal taste.

The orange and white knop wool sweater illustrated today is made with a four inch band of even ribbing at the waist and ten inches on the sleeves. The back of the sweater has a four inch yoke with four inches across each shoulder and five inches down the center front. The body stitch of the sweater is the old standby, the stockinette stitch. This sweater is an ideal job for beginners who are making their initial attempt at knitting wearing apparel.

If you wish instructions for knitting the knop wool sweater illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Be sure to include the following measurements:

New Sun-Proof Fabrics Designed for Slip Covers

THE stores are showing some fascinating new fabrics, designed especially for slip cover use. Some are washable and preshrunk; others are not, but all are sunproof.

Chintzes are as good as ever, and as colorful and charming. Printed sateens and cretonnes are inexpensive and in the limelight this season. A large family of cotton crashes is proving highly popular because of interesting novelty weaves, and stunning cotton damasks and cottons finished like linens are style notes.

Imported, narrow striped cottons are smart for slip covers in a room where plain, solid colored fabrics are used as contrast. The idea now is to vary fabrics, to ensemble rather than to match. Thus, a couch may wear one color and material in its new dress, while a lounge chair will choose another, and a third chair come out in something harmonizing, but different from the first two.

By Nancy Cabot.

"LITTLE Sister Bear" makes her debut as the fourth member of an interesting quilt sextet. She is marching along all set for a successful season at the beach. Her coloring may be the same as that of "Brother Bear"—light brown; her dress may be forget-me-not blue with tiny white flowers; the hair ribbon and shovel, red. The handle may be embroidered in either a satin or stem stitch. "Little Sister Bear" may be saved and used en famille at the close of the series, or used as a repeat pattern in a quilt composed entirely of the illustrated pattern.

With her second book of quilts, Nancy Cabot now offers 10 patterns of her own choice at a combination price of 10 cents (12 cents by mail). The booklet alone is 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Modern Curtain Poles Fashioned of Heavy Crystal

MODERN curtain poles for the room done in contemporary decore come in glass, if you please, but a heavy crystal that will not break easily. Some are finished with round knobs. Others have ends that curl over in shepherd-crook fashion. These latter can make a window look positively glamorous if from them are hung long, full, diaphanous draperies of synthetic silk gauze trimmed in crystal ball edging, or floor length curtains of the lustrous cellophane and silk woven material. These poles are made by a Chicago firm and are sold in several stores here.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

Saves Good Money! No Cooking!

If you want the best cough remedy that money can buy, mix it at home. It costs very little, yet it's the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money —a real family supply. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, clears the air passages, and thus ends a severe cough in a hurry.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Wise Hostess Stages Fete Artistically

The Art of Entertaining Is Now Undergoing a Wholesome Revival.

By Doris Blake.

THE art of home entertaining is undergoing a healthy and wholesome revival. Probably nobody in the world is called upon to do more entertaining of the socially elect than the stars of the opera.

As the Metropolitan depends for its support on the interest of the families which move among the four hundred and the limited other hundreds which follow close behind, the singers who are lionized and petted must not only know how to be fêted but must continually reverse the procedure and give parties for their patrons and patronesses.

Bori and Van Gordon Homes Rendezvous of Smart Groups.

Thus Lucrezia Bori, whose finesse and diplomacy caused her to be chosen last year as the head of the opera rescue committee, is as fine a hostess as can be found. She is the queen of the salon. She knows the ways of the world, the taste, and the look.

In a way she is not unlike Cyrena Van Gordon, whose palatial home on upper Park avenue in New York is the rendezvous for the smartest groups in the metropolis.

Bori has something of the continental about herself and her parties. Van Gordon is rather the flower of American social custom. Herself a member of a distinguished family of financiers, intellectual and cultured epicureans, the famous contralto of the Metropolitan Opera and the Chicago Civic Opera has the bearing in her salon not of the stage but rather of the leader of society.

These Stars as Hostesses Make Guests Feel at Home.

Yet both Bori and Van Gordon and indeed the brilliant new coloratura of coloraturas, Lily Pons, have the indescribable ways of a hostess who makes everybody feel utterly at home. There is no let-down in these parties. Those who cannot themselves give stimulus to the ensemble are rarely invited again. Everybody must give of his best at the Bori and Van Gordon fêtes. But nobody feels as if he or she can do otherwise. Something of the atmosphere, you know, something that the hostess exudes.

Van Gordon's are very shrewdly arranged to bring together only those who mix.

"Sometimes my dowagers of high society are most at home with some bohemian of the art world and sometimes one member of the grand opera board is poison to another one. I remember well those who can sit in the same room together." So Van Gordon puts it with a mischievous smile.

Bori's parties are enormous in number at times. And Van Gordon's are generally somewhat limited in volume.

But in both cases, and in the quaint salons of Pons, too, the very last individual on hand is made to feel that the party would be a failure were it not for his or her presence there.

Van Gordon Supervises Every Detail of Parties.

One of the amazing things about the Van Gordon parties is that they are always personally supervised from the first to the last detail by the grand opera star herself.

"I think there's more zest about food made at home, with certain individualistic details in cooking," Van Gordon suggests. To carry out the little touches Van Gordon herself is everywhere, in the kitchen, at the serving board and tables.

Neither Bori, Pons, nor Van Gordon permits liquor to flow too freely. One feels that there is enough to drink, but somehow there are so many things to eat, so many things to do, that the way everything focuses on drinking in some affairs is not to be found here.

Manner of a True Hostess Is That of a Stage Artist.

The manner of a true hostess is that of a true stage artist. No matter how flustered, excited, and nervous the star may be, the guests and audience never know it.

Once Caruso said that he never sang without feeling as if his head would spin off just before he went on the stage. Pons declared that she never gives a party without stage fright. But you wouldn't know it. These three delightfully different women are as cool and collected as the proverbial cucumber.

What are the rules for the good hostess at parties, whether for tea, cocktails, supper, dinner?

Van Gordon utterly disarms us. She says that there are no rules for her. Every party is different, each is a composition which must be planned, rehersed, and produced, even as all operas are different, even as Wagner differs in all he wrote, and calling for different technique.

Yet one is inclined to think these smart hostesses exaggerate or are too modest. There is a definite set of characteristics which is found always at any reception or party given by Bori; so, too, Pons; so, too, Van Gordon, and so, too, many others of the operatic-theatrical-social crowd.

That does not mean that if you attend one party of Van Gordon you will know what to expect. But if you hear Wagner you can recognize him in "Tannhäuser" and in "Tristan."

Accessories for Flowers Made of Enameled Wire

SMART State street stores, as well as those along the avenue, are showing interesting baskets, small stands, flower pots, and trays made of sturdy and colorfully enameled wire, effecting a most picturesque background for flowers, plants and fruit. Some of the containers have a rim around the edge in a scalloped border, but most often the article is constructed entirely of wire.

A wire flower stand has a most attractive design. Pale blue is the color, and the stand rises pyramidically toward the ceiling, with at least a dozen holders branching out at all angles, to hold all the flower pots one could wish. It would add a decorative touch to any indoor winter garden with delicate pink begonias, massed primroses, or geraniums tastefully arranged in its many holders.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Velvety Face Powder Gives Glow to Lift Skin Out of Winter's Doldrums.

By Eleanor Nangle

IF you've been wondering what's wrong with your face lately, you might find out, if you do a little experimenting, that it's your powder shade. Skins, like winter clothes, get a little frumpy in that dull period when the cold weather is wearing off and spring is playing hide and seek.

In the first place, the complexion shade in winter isn't apt to be what it is in the summer. Sun and fresh air, which you can't help but get when warm weather makes the outdoors inviting, give the skin life and glow. In winter they need brightening up.

A grand powder to consider, if you feel that a little spring makeup renovation is in order, is one of the best on the market. It has a velvety texture and a weight most women will find ideal. And there are all of twelve shades, beautiful, skin-matched tones, from which to choose. No matter how difficult your skin is to match, one of these will do the trick, we're sure.

This powder is not expensive, although it is well made.

Its makers have introduced the most sensational innovation makeup this town has seen in years. It began in Paris, and it's going over like everything. It's called "sun kissed" and that's just the effect it gives.

Don't be frightened at the mechanics of it. It's rouge ALL over the face! But the ultimate effect isn't as bizarre as that sounds.

Forehead, nose, even the earlobes, are rouged delicately with the deepest degree of color in spots where it would ordinarily be, on the cheeks. Then over this goes a film of face powder. It may sound insane to you, but when the powdering is done the skin is given a radiance that is youthful and attractive. And when two shades of powder are used with skill, the transformation in faces can be astounding. It's possible then to "blend down" large noses, camouflage hollows, and even do magical things to the chinline.

It's a trick you should see, anyway.

A young woman who can and does wear the new "sun kissed" makeup, achieved with the use of rouge all over the face, and then filmed over with powder. It might sound fantastic, but the radiance it gives is flattering to many women.

New Sponge Mop Cleans Without Harming Hands

THE lowly floor mop has been glorified, if one can imagine such a thing. The new type of mop is a combination of broom and mop belonging strictly in the twentieth century class.

It is easy to use and the housewife may keep her hands in perfect bridge club condition, for the hands touch neither mop nor water. This last word in mops is a piece of sponge honeycomb rubber clamped in a metal frame, but what it does to pick up dirt, lint, hair, ashes, and water is next to magic. It squeegees water from linoleum in exactly the same manner as a window cleaner dries plate glass.

Housewives will be spellbound with this marvelous new mop that wiggles itself into corners and with its rubber bumper is gentle with furniture.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, March 4.

Lengthening days give more sunshine to stimulate plant life. Potted bulbs will require less time to flower, but a few should be brought to the light at intervals of ten days. Gardeners who wish to force branches of flowering shrubs into bloom will find the following easy subjects for the purpose: Pussy willow, cornelian cherry, goldenbell, shadbush, alder, birch, hazelnut, and pawpaw. Continue to make cuttings of tender bedding plants for next summer's use. Remember that direct light is required to grow compact plants. Sow a few seeds of tomatoes, peppers, and eggplant indoors. Specimen onions may be grown from early sown seed.

Tuesday, March 5.

Clean and divide dahlia tubers. Dust freshly cut portions with sulphur. The cactus plants will soon show activity and then may be repotted. Any plants showing decayed parts should have these sections cut back to good tissue and the exposed portion dusted with powdered charcoal or sulphur. Give plenty of drainage and use half sand and garden loam. New dormant bulbs of amaryllis may be purchased now.

Wednesday, March 6.

Home gardeners who have potted Easter lilies should bring them to a light window. A temperature of 60 degrees will suit them. Watch for green fly and if any appear spray the plant with a nicotine concoction. To test seeds count out twenty or more and place between damp blotters. Germination will soon take place and results may be noted.

Thursday, March 7.

Perennial seeds sown now will give good stock to line out in the garden. Some of them will flower the first year, but not in maximum quantity. Why not build a few birdhouses now while outdoor work is inactive? Look over the requirements as to pots, sand, potting bench, and other necessities because all activities will soon be at high tide. See that no perennial border plants are suffering from excess of water. Place ashes over the crowns of the delphinium to reduce the likelihood of disease. Place pieces of suet here and there on branches for the birds and scatter feed in protected places.

Friday, March 8.

Many succulent plants are almost foolproof when used as house plants, but all appreciate good care. The hardy list includes the aloe, gasteria, haworthis, crassula, echeveria, bryophyllum (sprouting leaf, curious and easy to grow), small century plants, and especially the delightful parviflora, victoria regia, tennuata, and cotyledon. The stone plants from South Africa are curious. A small basket of "little pickles" makes a nice basket plant for small containers.

Saturday, March 9.

Sow the seeds of tender annuals now for good, strong plants for early flowering. Repair coldframes that need strengthening. See that the sash is given a coat of paint to preserve it and replace broken glass. Start cannas in pots. Plan to have a few tuberous begonias this year. Tubers may be procured now, potted or placed in sand until growth shows, and carried along until planting time.

A FRIEND IN NEED

The Piano Standing Unused in the Attic Will Fill One of These Requests; Sundry Other Articles Are Badly Needed by Others Less Fortunate.

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

By Sally Joy Brown.

WE know that there must be any number of sadly neglected pianos in various homes throughout the city, and we'd certainly like to bring them back to a useful, active life once more. With the advent of radio, many a piano's nose is out of joint, so to speak, but there still are regular appeals for them.

D. B. sends the following request:

"Our community center has had the good fortune to obtain a former opera star to teach piano and voice, but we cannot afford to buy a piano, without which classes are, of course, impossible. Therefore we would deeply appreciate such a gift from any one who is in possession of a piano not in use. We will arrange to move the instrument if one is obtainable."

From the south side comes a similar appeal:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am writing to you in hope that you can help me out of my difficulty.

"I have a daughter, 12 years old, who has been confined to bed with heart trouble since last December. She has returned to school, but is unable to play like other children and must spend her free hours at home. She has little recreation, and is weary of reading and drawing. Do you think one of your readers might have a piano which is no longer needed, and which could be passed on to me? It would help my daughter to pass the time and give her an opportunity to study music. Her father is not working and we are on the relief rolls at the present time. There are two smaller children in the family.

"MRS. R. S."

A teacher in a country school in Illinois would appreciate any reference books or children's story books suitable to a school library. If your youngsters have books they no longer care to keep, why not pass them on to Miss S. and give other children an opportunity to enjoy them?

Two little boys in need of clothing are the reason for the following letter.

"Dear Miss Brown: Although I have helped others through your column, this is the first time I have made a request.

"A friend of mine has two boys, 7 and 9 years old, who need clothing. They have never had suits but have worn overalls all the time. If any one has clothing which will fit them, it will be greatly appreciated, and I shall be glad either to call for them or pay postage for mailing.

"Their father earns only $5 a week, so there is no money for clothing, and the barest necessities are all the home affords.—Mrs. H. K."

"Dear Miss Brown: Would you be kind enough to try to obtain a crib for one of our families? They need it for a week-old baby who is, at present, sharing a double bed with the mother.

"When the mother gets up they will need some other arrangement, as the other five members of the family are crowded into two beds.—F. M."

This request comes from the north side.

"Dear Miss Brown: I know a set of twins badly in need of a buggy. They are 6 months old, and poor babies. They're crammed together in a single carriage. Do you know any one with a twin carriage? I will be glad to call any place in the city for one."

Black and White Theme Song of Spring Fashions

By Rhea Seeger.

AMERICAN designers and American women have finally discovered what the knowing French woman has used for centuries—the magic of black and white, especially in clothes. A French wardrobe that makes everybody sit up and take notice and causes pangs among the envious is usually one with plenty of fine black dresses for both daytime and evening wear.

Last year, and already this season, American fashions have out blacked the French collections. Stunning clothes in black, the "background" dresses that used to be found just about once in a lifetime, are now made for sleek, distinguished silhouettes, for the American streamlines. And they are made with lots of dash and imagination.

For instance, in one famous Chicago store there is a miniature shop that holds nothing but black clothes or black and white clothes. Color is taboo. Some of the most breath taking black and white and all black costumes you ever hoped to locate, the perfect slim black clothes that make a slim princess out of an otherwise merely ordinary clothes collector are hung within its walls. Here is an array of black and black and white combines that are the last word in always hard to find sophistication.

Here you will find the newest of sheer blacks, touched off with ethereal wisps of white. Here you will find the smartest of black and white printed dresses, the tempting small patterns with lots of black space and the white motifs, small but enormously effective. Here you will find the slinky, all black, dull crêpes for dramatic dinner and dance models, dull crêpes fashioned and cut and seamed by magic fingers. Here also, are the finds of the year, the rustling afternoon suits in black, with thin white blouses. And here will be found the perfect one piece dresses in black, frosted with spanking white bows, bands, jabots, and collar and cuff sets that make your mouth water. In short this shop is one of the most fascinating spots in Chicago. All sizes of frocks are available, and the smartest, newest, spring ensembles, suits, coats, and dresses are now on display.

Wool and Taffeta Cleverly Combined in Afternoon Suit.

The small figure at the upper left shows a one piece dress of thin wool with a decorative vest, wide revers, and cuffs of looped white bands fagoted in white. The skirt has inverted plaits. Because of the long, simple sleeves this dress becomes a perfect street costume with or without a fur piece. The popular swagger costume in sheer black is illustrated on the small figure in the center. The high necked one piece dress has a narrow, white, turnover collar. The belt and trimmings are of braided bands of black taffeta to match the lining and bands on the swagger coat. On the lower small figure is shown one of the most practical of spring ensembles, a simple, black, soft silk dress with a short, fitted, long sleeved jacket of small printed black and white silk. It is designed both for immediate use and for wear later on without either coat or fur and with clear white costume accessories . . . a perfect summer street ensemble.

Lamp Adjusts to Various Positions for Good Lighting

SCIENTIFICALLY correct lighting should be of interest to every woman, for the facts prove that after the age of fifty three-fourths of all people suffer with defective vision. Improper light is a prominent cause. The pupil of the eye becomes smaller with age, hence the need for more light as the years go by.

A new floor lamp, with an adjustable arm, seems to solve the problem of good lighting neatly. Unlike other adjustable gadgets, this metal rod holding the electric bulb and shade may be bent in almost any direction. When twisted directly upward the lamp becomes the reflector type, when down and very low it is ideal for sewing and close work. Again, it may be slightly lifted and a metal shade attached for bridge, the light thus being kept out of the eyes and thrown directly on the table. Or it can be thrown at right angles to the room in spotlight fashion.

Six finishes are available in this convenient item—bronze, black and gold, antique silver, Tiffany bronze, black and silver, and ivory and gold. This lamp is sold at three loop department stores.

Bronze Canines Hold Place Cards in Their Mouths

THE doggiest place card holders of the season are the tiny bronze canines designed by M'Clelland Barclay, famous sculptor. A dachshund, an airedale, or a scottie can stand guard at each plate, holding a place card in the tiny slit that is his mouth.

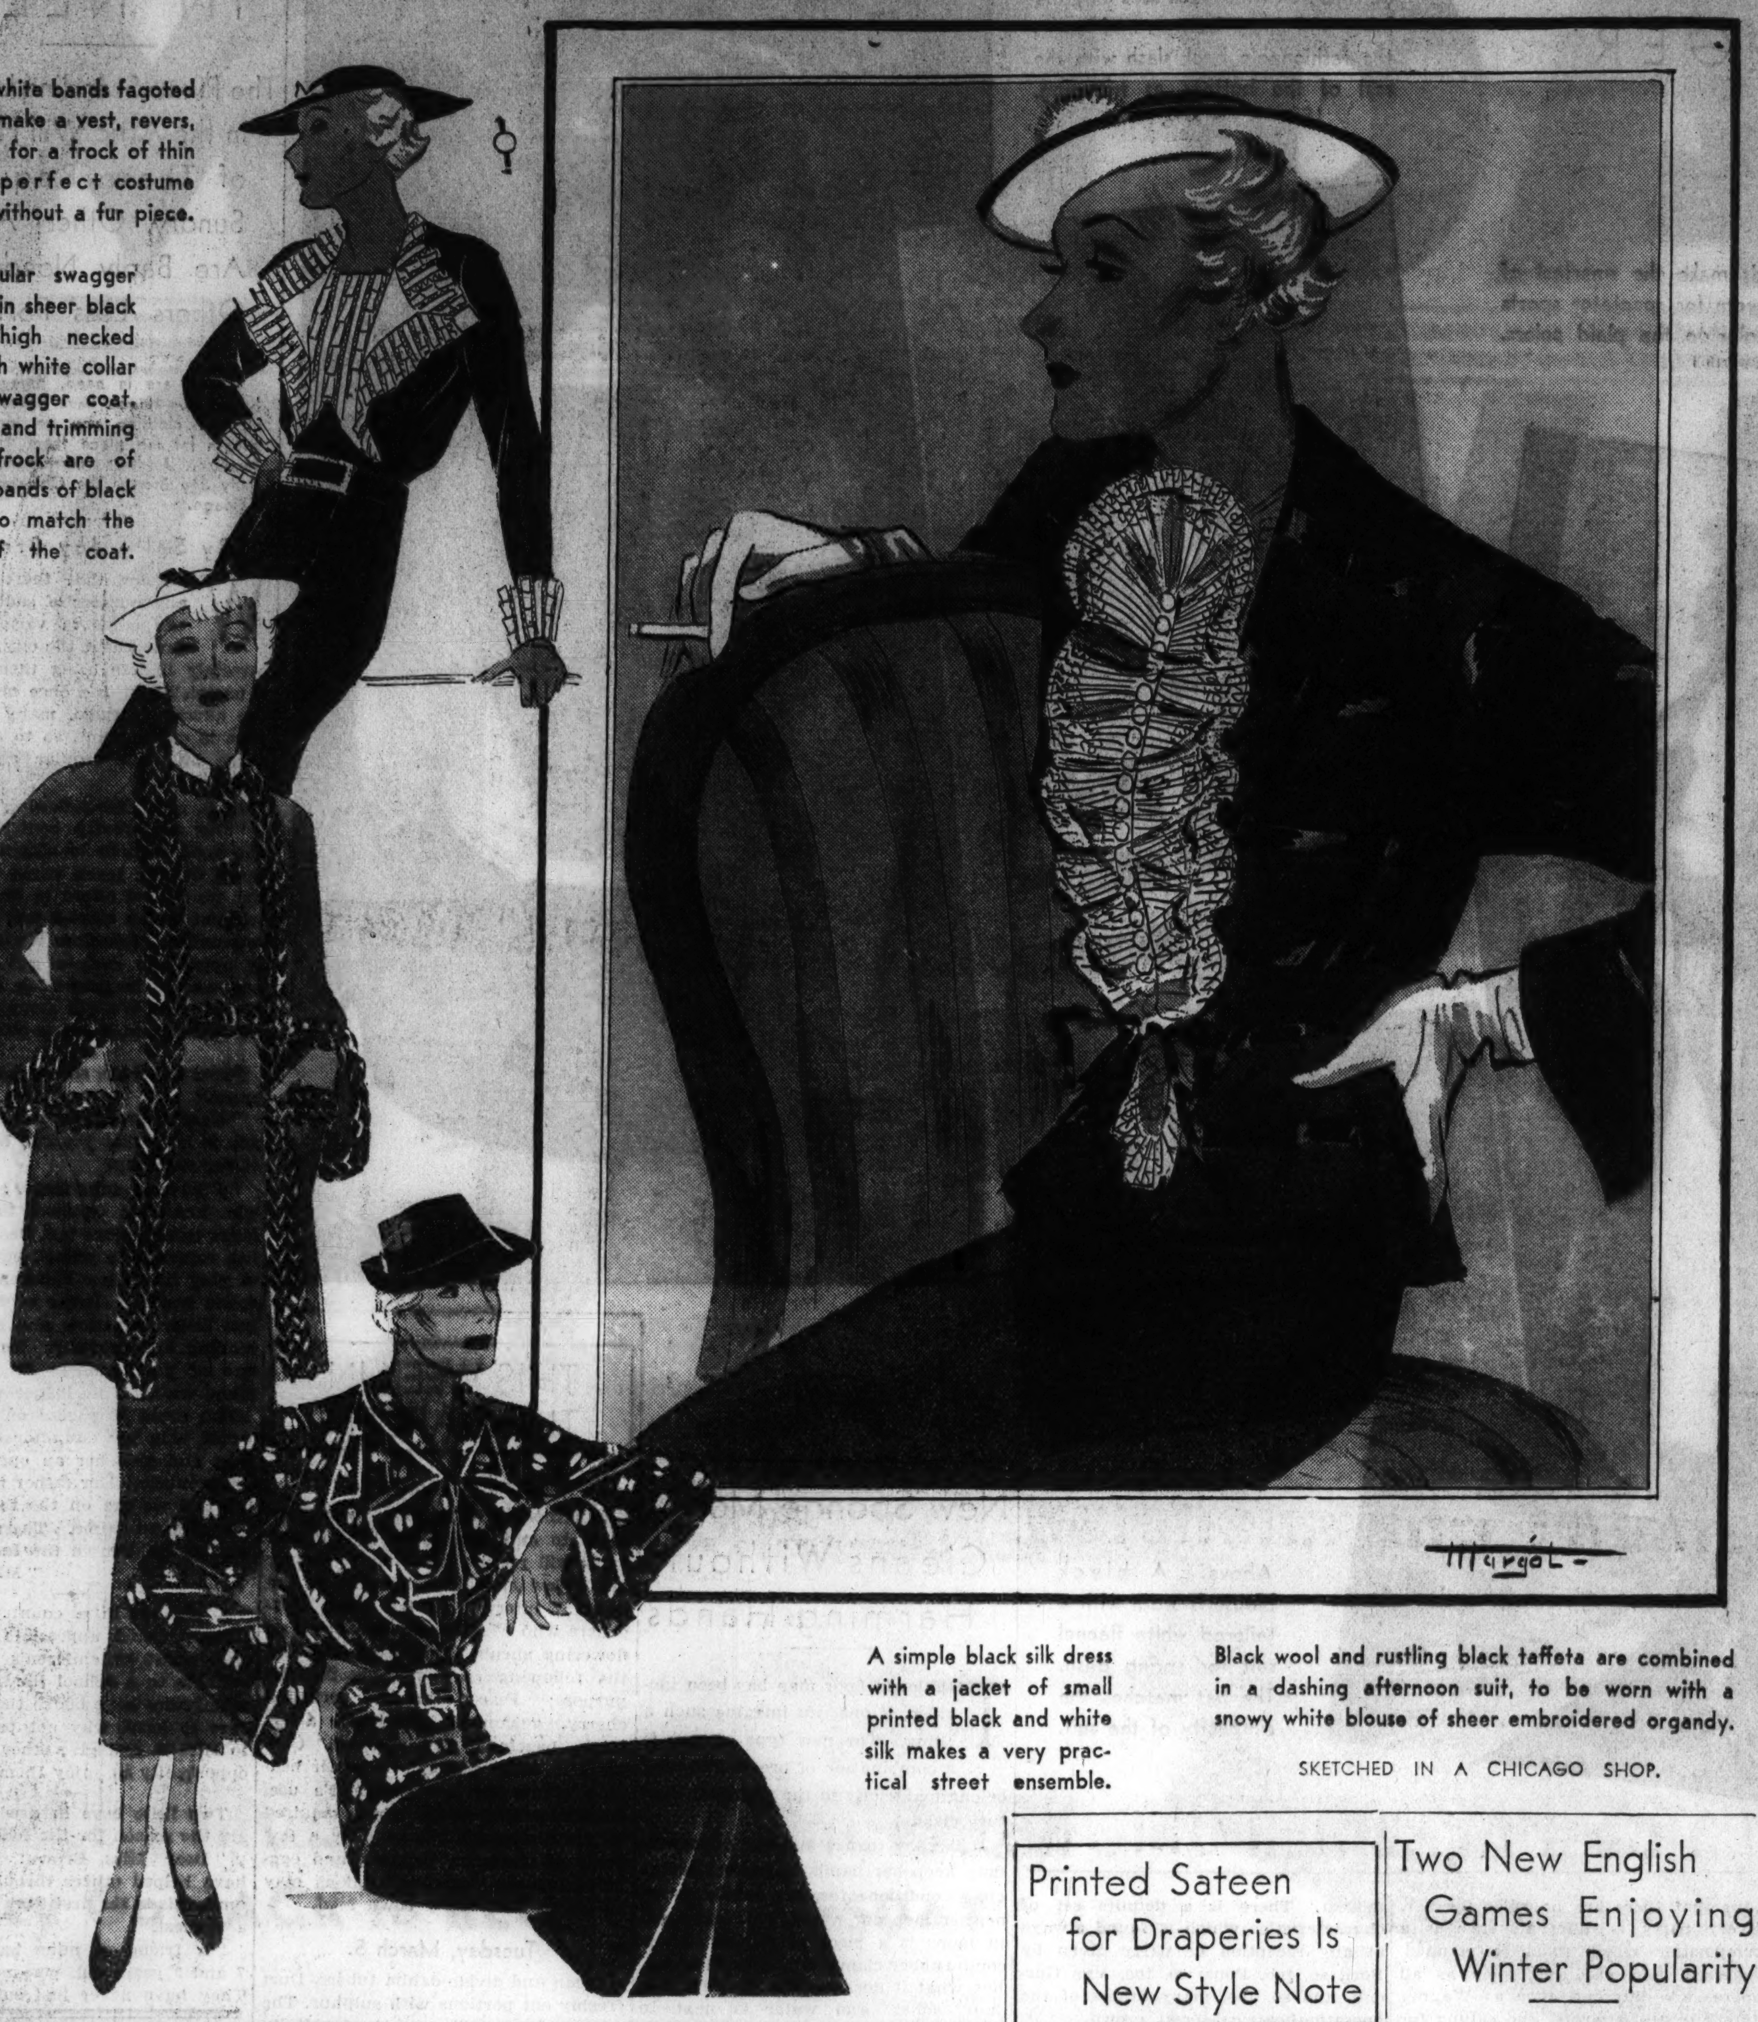
QUARTET OF DISTINGUISHED SARTORIAL STARS



Looped white bands fagoted in white make a vest, revers, and cuffs for a frock of thin wool, a perfect costume with or without a fur piece.

The popular swagger costume in sheer black has a high necked dress with white collar and a swagger coat. The belt and trimming of the frock are of braided bands of black taffeta to match the lining of the coat.

A simple black silk dress with a jacket of small printed black and white silk makes a very practical street ensemble.

Black wool and rustling black taffeta are combined in a dashing afternoon suit, to be worn with a snowy white blouse of sheer embroidered organdy.

This Is Time of Year to Repair Stairs of House

THIS is the time of year to give careful attention to stairs, inside and outside the house, to prevent accidents by making sure that these danger points are sturdy and sound. Is the outside boarding becoming warped and loose? Are the rails firm? Are the interior steps well lighted? And is there enough closet space around the house to keep the steps free at all times from movable objects over which children and adults alike can stumble?

Blistered or outworn linoleum is a frequent cause of accidents by tripping. Garages in a state of disrepair present a real menace.

Fires will mount in homes the country over from now on until spring. Have you a special closet with a lock and key in which to store all combustible materials such as gasoline and kerosene, cleaning fluids, and stove polishes? Has your bathroom a cabinet which can be depended upon to house safely antiseptics and poisonous compounds? Are all your gas cocks in order? And how about the electric lights in your bathroom and kitchen? Are they controled by wall switches? Many an accident might have been prevented by switching on a wall light instead of groping around in the dark.

It is possible to make accident preventive repairs around the house at low cost, at much lower cost and much less painfully than after accidents occur and suffering and doctors' bills follow in their wake.

Printed Sateen for Draperies Is New Style Note

THINKING of new drapery materials for your rooms? Something pretty and smart and new, but inexpensive? Then, next time you go shopping, be sure to look at the spring crop of printed sateens. They are as colorful as the first garden flowers, as clear as sunshine after an April shower. In fact, they're the top!

And if you've ever used this fabric for slip covers, you know there is none nicer. It launders like a handkerchief and looks as fresh and crisp months hence as it does now. You probably have become an old friend of ecru and colored sateens, so meet their younger sisters, the new printed ones.

Velvet Corduroy Makes Beautiful, Trim Bedspreads

A MARVELOUS new material for bedspreads is velvet corduroy in chevron or diagonal weave. Make the spread perfectly plain, in tailored fashion, and choose a pure white, a golden yellow, a lime green, or any soft color that harmonizes with your wall paper and furnishings. Velvet corduroy may be used in the modern room, or in any semi-formal interior. It is beautiful with walnut, mahogany, or satinwood furniture. The simpler chintzes, linens, and candlewicks should be used with maple pieces.

Two New English Games Enjoying Winter Popularity

TWO new English games on the market are proving popular and exciting during the long winter evenings. One is much like the popular old parchesi. The board is arranged in the same manner, and four men to a person are used. In place of dice to determine the moves, forty-four cards are used. They are marked one to twelve. Four of them are "hot cards," which will send a player back to the starting point, even though they have but one space to make. The safety lane means nothing in this game, for one isn't safe until he is "home."

Nor does the "tailender" need to become discouraged, for with the drawing of a high card, which is the "works," he may send his opponent home in place of going himself by repeating one little name, which is the title of the game.

The other game also has a board marked much the same as parchesi. This is quickly and easily learned, and full of excitement. It is played with colored, marked cards, and there is a great deal of bidding. A "bull" card of double value, a "bear" card that destroys value, and a "tiger" card that is the highest trump make points of the game extremely interesting and effective.

Understanding Only First Step in Child Care

Analysis of Motives Must Be Used by Parents as Basis for Sane Action.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

GRETCHEN'S mother was attending a meeting of a parent education group. She listened attentively to the speaker.

"O, so that's why Gretchen acts as she does!" said Gretchen's mother to herself. And she sat back with a sigh of relief. A load was lifted from her shoulders. She began to think about the living room glass curtains. Would marquisette be best, or would full, thin, canary colored silk be more cheerful for that northern exposure?

Now perhaps it was all right for Gretchen's mother to be through with the matter of her daughter's most worrying behavior—and perhaps it wasn't.

Understanding and Laissez-Faire Not Synonymous.

We talk a lot in this column about understanding your child. And although we try to make clear that understanding leads to action, sometimes I have misgivings as to whether that corollary is always tied up closely enough with the principle involved. Perhaps, I fear, there are some mothers who will draw the inference that to understand a child is enough. That if one understands why a boy does this or why a girl does that one can heave a sigh of relief, sit back, and rest on one's oars, leaving everything to take care of itself because one knows why.

Well, one can't.

Understanding and laissez faire are not synonymous.

Understanding is not enough. Understanding is only the first step. The purpose of understanding is to pave the way to wise handling. Understanding is not the end—it is the means to an end. And the end is making life fuller and richer for your child by working with him as his needs reveal themselves to you—his needs according to general natural growth and development, and his needs as the individual child that he is, like no other in the world.

Parents Must Study Both Childhood and Particular Child.

There are two kinds of understanding of our children that we as parents need to gain.

There is, first, the understanding that concerns itself with the general nature of childhood—that finds out how children in general grow and develop physically and mentally and emotionally. This kind of understanding gives us an explanation of why they act as they do and performs that other important work for us—leads us to know what to expect of them in the months or years just ahead.

And, second, there's the kind of understanding that concerns itself with our individual child—with that child who is the product not only of nature but of his particular parents and grandparents and great-grandparents, played upon by the influences in which the circumstances of life have set him.

The first mentioned profound comprehension of what child nature in general is is what students of the child are trying to discover and pass on to parents in groups and by the printed page. The second—the understanding of the individual child—is what the mother or father must work out, sometimes with expert outside help and sometimes without it.

Three Lines of Action Are Open to Adults.

That much clear, let us ask ourselves of what will that wise handling consist? As soon as we understand, shall we follow up with action? Shall we at once get busy and do something about every one of these qualities and behaviors that we have learned to interpret—shall we direct, mold, change to a pattern or ideal? Heaven forbid that we should become such a "managing" and ubiquitous parent! What then? Let us work it out together—it is such a help sometimes to see things put down in black and white.

If understanding should lead to wise handling, what is wise handling or management?

When once you get some sort of working understanding of child nature as it manifests itself in your own particular boy or girl, any one of three lines of action may be called wise handling, depending upon what it is you are aiming to deal with.

That is, (1) you may need to work aiming to change entirely your child's state of mind or behavior; (2) you may need to modify it slightly; (3) or you may need to do nothing at all because you can do nothing at all except stand by until the rough going is over. So we see that, although understanding is not enough in itself and must be followed by action, that action may have to take different forms.

Lively Juvenile Must Be Controled and Directed.

If you don't quite know what I mean here are examples of the different sorts of wise handling that real understanding may lead to:

First, if a child is at the age where we know he is bursting with energy, shall we let him give vent to it by doing whatever he pleases, making himself objectionable and not really happy, and life miserable for his grownups? Not at all. Understanding his need we find constructive and developing channels for it.

Second, taking the next form of wise management, sometimes indicated by our understanding—shall we expect the dreaming, dawdling 9 year old to become perfectly punctual and to render instant obedience? No, our course here is a modifying one. Because we know this to be a phase which he must go through, we try only to accomplish enough conformity to reduce friction and to achieve a measure of practicality.

"Standing By" Often All That Is Needed by Adolescence.

And third, using still another example to illustrate the last description of what kind of handling may be used, let us take the rather familiar case of our adolescent boy or girl who, we may feel, we have come to understand. If our boy has grown so fast that he has a stature almost like a man's but his mind and feelings have not kept pace—if our daughter is suffering the throes of disappointed young first love—if either one is unlearning his or her childhood religion, what is our cue? Mostly looking on. Doing perhaps what we can to help them physically or to divert them or to be open to possible confidences, but chiefly to let them feel that we sympathize; that we have faith in them; that we are there. It doesn't seem like much to do sometimes, but it is.

We have fully written booklets to help in understanding the adolescent, the in-between, and phases of the young child. Any one of these will be sent upon receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

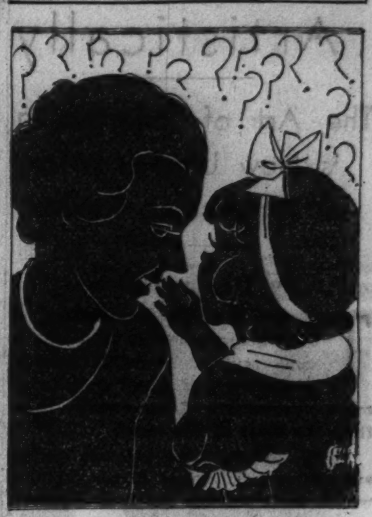
THE FAVORITE QUESTION



By Eleanor Jewett.

How old are you, Mother?
And how old is Dad?
This question of age
Has its points good and bad.

I answer "Sixteen" and Dad says "Twenty-four"—
But the children all claim
We were that once before.

Then we tell them the truth
Or as near as no matter—
But that does not calm them
For still the three chatter,

And Elizabeth, six,
Whispers anxiously: "Well,
You DID say you were EIGHTY—
But I'll never tell!"

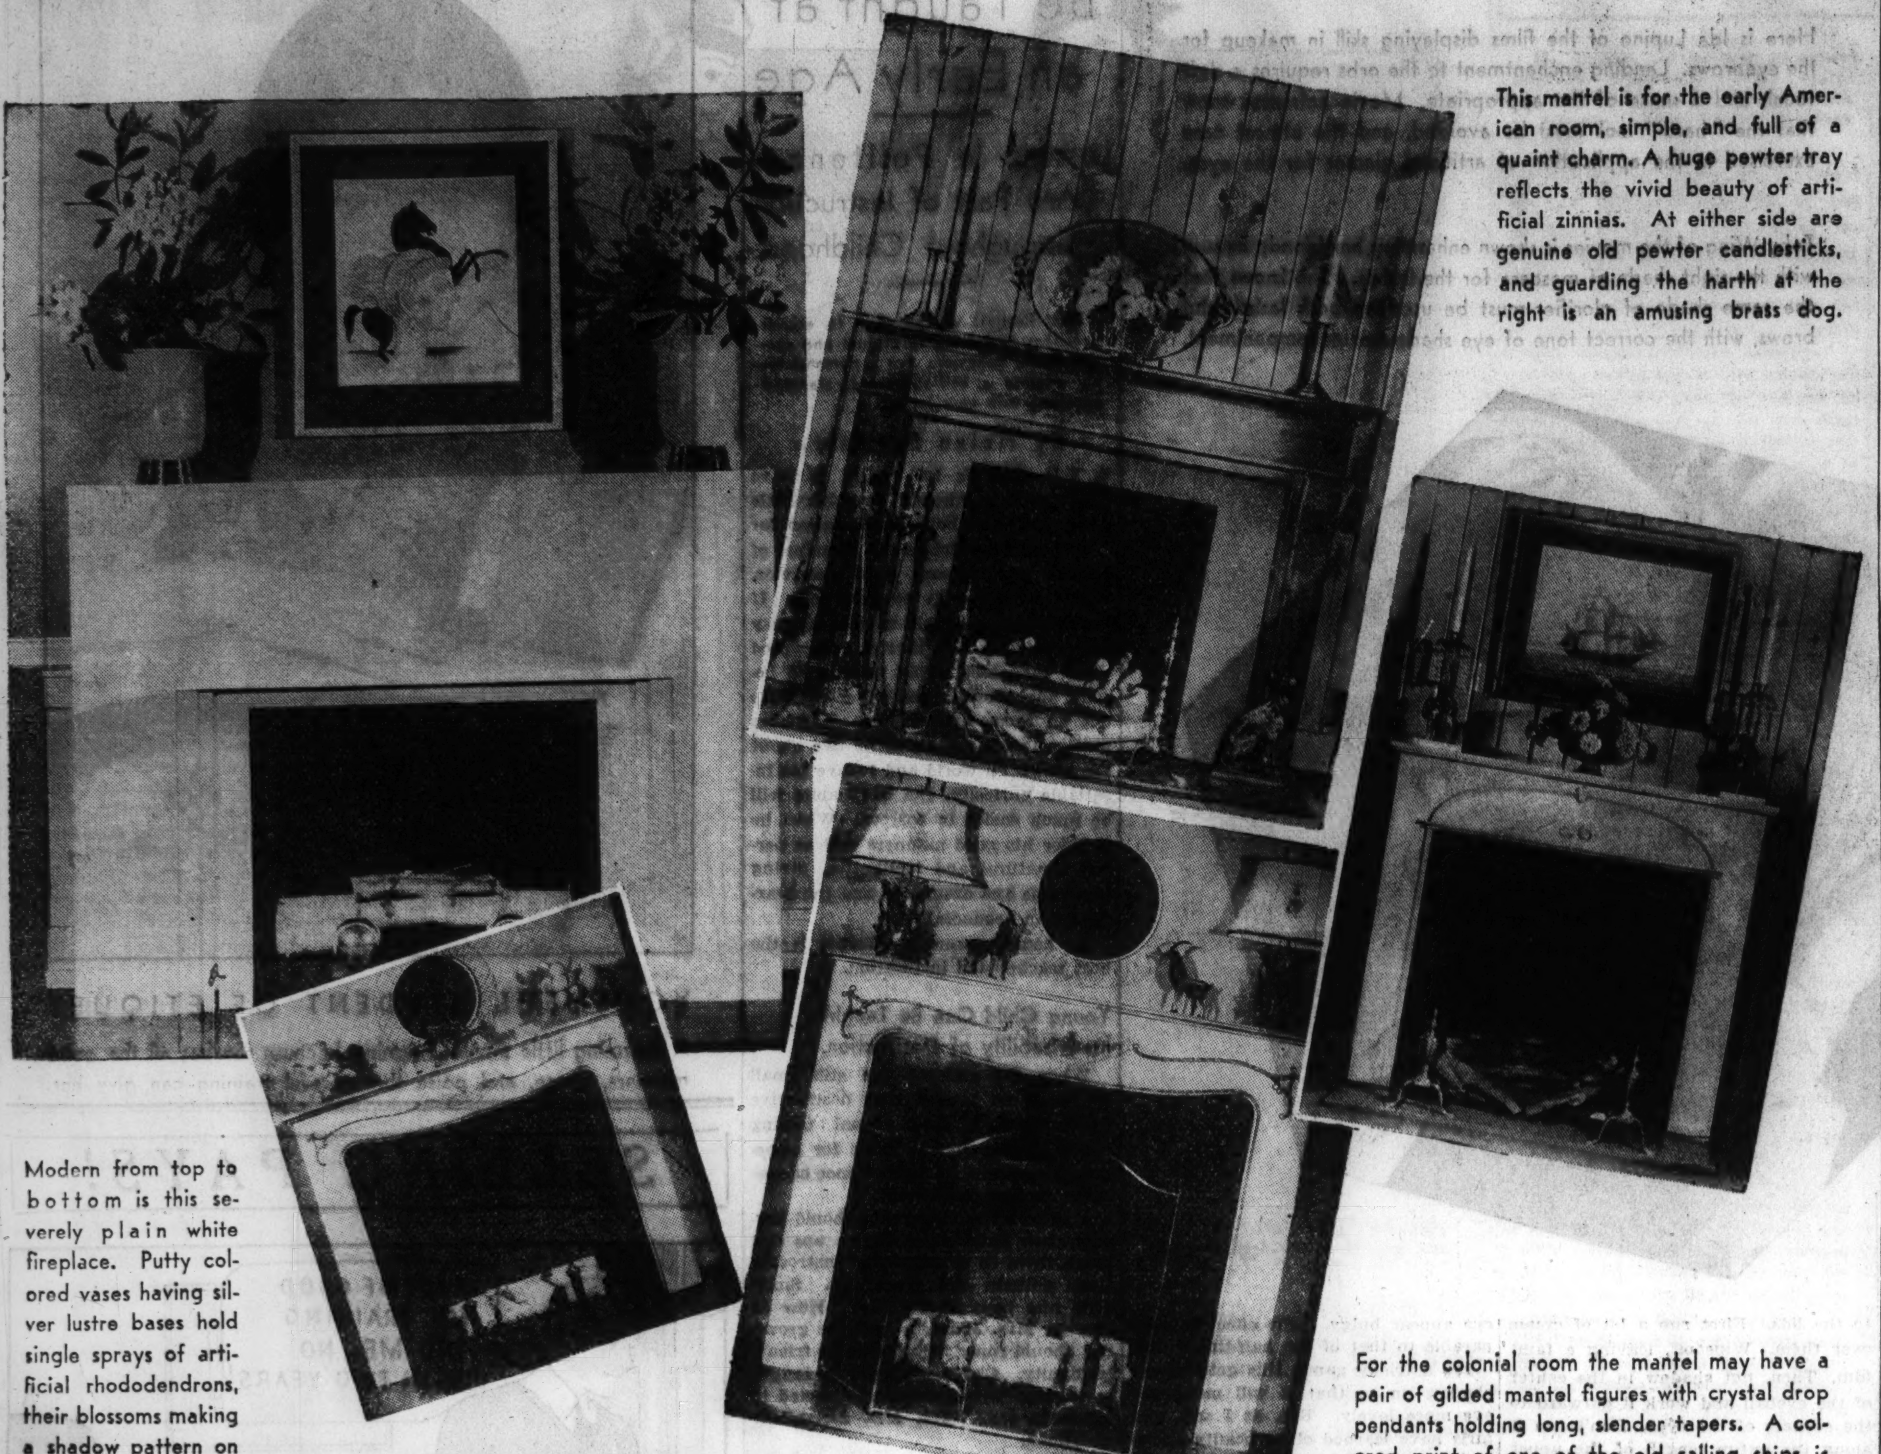
PERIOD MODES FIND MINIATURE REFLECTION ON THE HARTH



This mantel is for the early American room, simple, and full of a quaint charm. A huge pewter tray reflects the vivid beauty of artificial zinnias. At either side are genuine old pewter candlesticks, and guarding the harth at the right is an amusing brass dog.

Here is another way of treating the Victorian mantel. Step right out and be modern, if you wish, using a 1935 pair of artificial trees bearing globular fruit as golden as the famed apples of Hesperides.

Originality Should Have Full Play in All Types of Mantel Decore

Conventional Candle, Clock, and Mirror Yield Place to Modern Items.

Miss Winslow's new leaflet, giving color schemes for both light and dark bathrooms, will be sent on request, if a stamped, self addressed envelope is enclosed. For a personal reply to any queries on interior decoration remember to enclose a stamp.

By Claire Winslow.

LOOK at any picture, any advertisment and your eye immediately falls on the center of interest. There is always one point in the scene or in the arrangement of the type that draws the vision like a tack to a magnet.

This same principle applies to your living room. It has one grouping of furniture, or one large window, or one oil painting, or the fireplace that is the center of interest. Usually it is the fireplace. So why not make that spot just as good looking, just as smartly dressed as you can?

Many readers write in, their letters showing they are confused about this business of decorating the mantel. A lot of them say they are weary of the same old thing: two candlesticks and a clock, and they're a bit fed up on the eternal mirror hanging above the mantel shelf, too. What to do?

Mantel Accessories Must Complement Living Room.

First, simply determine what type of living room you have and what sort of mantel. Are you using maple furniture and is the fireplace red brick with dark wood frame? Or is your furniture mahogany with the woodwork and mantel white? Or are you in a house built in the middle or latter part of the last century, a Victorian home with high ceilings, polished floors, and a creamy marble mantel in the living room?

Once you've decided it is not difficult to choose the right accessories. Any well equipped novelty or department store will offer you a wide range of objects from which to choose.

The pictures today show five different mantels we decorated especially to solve your problems, and we hope you like 'em. All the objects from the andirons and fire tools to the artificial flowers and the pictures may be bought in a Chicago store. And, yes, the fireplaces themselves can be put right into your living room just as they are, in case the builders forgot to include one, or in the event you want to cover up an ugly golden oak affair with an up to date, beautiful mantel. Not one of them is expensive.

Pewter Fits Gracefully Into Early American Setting.

Now, about the Victorian mantels [and how many of them there are, even in 1935!]. Why not turn a pair of your grandmother's vases into lamps and place one at either end of the shelf? One of the photographs shows two reproductions of gilt and white vases thus transformed and equipped with pretty white silk shades. They make grand ornaments, and just for fun we placed the most amusing pair of green Venetian glass animals we could find between them and above hung a modern Victorian mirror in a white wire frame.

1935 Glass Tree Effective on Victorian Shelf.

Lastly, the modern mantel. It's pure white and, of course, you must use modern andirons, not ones of colonial feeling. We chose extremely severe, putty colored vases having silver luster bases and in them you see stunning sprays [one to each vase] of artificial pink and white rhododendrons. The clever picture above the mantel is classic-modern, showing a Grecian head and a black horse behind it. The white frame shelves down to the dark mat surrounding it.

Nothing could bring more brightness, more verve to a room than this fireplace and accessories. You don't have to create a completely modern interior about it either. But it would be an excellent starting point for such a departure.

Study all the pictures today and then decorate your mantel in your own, personal, individual way. You'll find it loads of fun.

Household Hints

To clean those gilt picture frames around the house which may have become grimy with the winter's soot use a mixture of half alcohol and half household ammonia. Apply this with a camel's hair brush and remove after a few minutes with clear water, also applied with a soft brush. If any water remains, shake it off.

If there are nickle plated pipes of toilet fixtures around the house which have lost their plating, clean off the oxidizing which is the cause of the loss of the plating. Then sandpaper the metal, wash with benzine, and paint. Still better, have them replated with chromium.

CLASSIC FURNITURE FOR AVERAGE ROOM

Phyfe Chairs Follow Graceful French Design

American Craftsmen Made Deft Use of Directoire Period's Lyre.

If your dining quarters are small and inclined to be cramped they call for special skill in furnishing. Miss Weigle's booklet, "Making the Most of the Dinette," will help you solve your problems. It is 3 cents by mail, 2 cents if you call for it. Address the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn St., or Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

EVERY woman who likes good furniture and has a bare speaking acquaintance with it recognizes a Duncan Phyfe chair when she sees one. Especially is it easy to designate if it has the familiar lyre ornament in the open back.

But she's not so apt to know that this lovely type of chair was not original with our American craftsman at all. It is typically French, and came to him from that source and also by way of the English version through Sheraton.

The well known Duncan Phyfe chair is a Directoire article, this brief period in the history of furniture design that lasted from about 1796 to 1799 having greatly influenced the best craftsmen for years afterward. These years mark the brief lull between the extravagance and ornateness of the Louis' and the severe classicism of the Napoleonic era called the Empire, which started when Napoleon was first consul and was known as the Consulate.

Phyfe Designs Admirably Suited to Modern Interiors.

Furniture of the Directoire, as we know it through Duncan Phyfe and Sheraton, is admirably suited to our present day needs, odd as that may seem, for while it was made in a foreign country at a time completely different from our industrial age it, nevertheless, is quite simple, extremely graceful, and on the whole is scaled for the small rather than the large room. When Phyfe worked under the influence of the Directoire he was at his best. His later Empire furniture shows him at his worst, artistically speaking.

The photograph today, taken in the charming little dining room of the furnished house on the furniture floor of a large Chicago store, shows what can be done with modern reproductions of Duncan Phyfe furniture. The chairs, sturdy, yet delicate in appearance, are characteristic of this master. Notice that the legs, instead of being straight, flare in sweeping curves both in front and the rear and that the sides are in one continuous, graceful line from the top rail to the knee.

At the sides of the knees are small ornaments called buttons, or rosettes, which Phyfe took directly from the French chairs of the Directoire period. Appropriate fabrics for seat coverings of pieces of this type are satins having a tiny formal design, striped taffetas, and brocades. The wood, itself, is always mahogany.

Candelabra and Bowl Solve Buffet Problem.

The sideboard in the picture is nicely scaled for the room of average size, offering adequate storage for linens, silver, etc., and yet not taking up too much space along the wall. The tapering legs end in what is known as the spade foot, a type used often by Heppelwhite, and, indeed, this whole piece is reminiscent of his work.

On the top of the sideboard is a pair of old fashioned crystal drop candelabra, and between them is a shallow bowl filled with colored glass fruit. This tasteful setting answers the queries we receive every day of what to put on the buffet.

This delightful room is all done in tones of white, brown, and banana yellow. Draperies of ivory taffeta show brown figures, the walls combining these two tones, also. On the floor is a Moroccan rug in brown and ivory. The seat fabric on the chairs is banana yellow brocaded satin.

If you are having trouble with your dining room color scheme or its furnishings, write me and I'll be glad to help you, replying personally if you enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. I also have a booklet on "Making the Most of the Dinette," which will be sent on receipt of a 3 cent stamp.

Artists Apply Skill to Ironers and Washers

Interested in giving one of the new, white painted finishes to some of the woodwork, walls, ceiling, or furniture of your home? Send for new booklet by Louise Bargelt, "Popular White Finishes"; 2 cents at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn, and Tribune Tower; 3 cents by mail.

By Louise Bargelt.

I WONDER if you have thought how much attention and study is given at the present time to the designing and styling of our modern household appliances — and how expert are those who develop them?

Take as an example the cabinet type washer now on the market, put out by a number of well known manufacturers of washing machines and ironers. One industrial stylist who has been working for two years to perfect a modernistic type of cabinet washer is a wel known sculptor, with work in state capitols, libraries, and cathedrals. Another stylist of these same units has had his talents reflected in the design of various snappy motor cars with which we are all familiar.

The result is that in both washers and ironers today we have models which are highly qualified from an artistic standpoint as well as a ultilitarian standard to take their place in any kitchen, no matter how new and gleaming, or how renewed and freshly modernized it may be.

Cabinet type washers now resemble large radio cabinets, with porcelain enamel tops and sides. Their wringer and controls appear as an integral part of the unit, and the controls are as simple as they are safe and instantaneous.

Some Cabinet Washers Have Built-in Thermometers.

In some models we find a built-in tub thermometer to show when the water is the correct temperature for silks, for woolens, for cottons, and linens, as well as for rinsing. There are timing switches which will stop the washer mechanism if the worker is called suddenly away; there are models which can operate a food mixer, too, the connection made as easily as plugging in a floor lamp.

Every effort has been made to eliminate cracks and crevices from all types of washing machines, with the result that the gleaming surfaces are easy to keep clean. In the last three years many improvements have been made in washers which have resulted both in better handling and longer life for the articles washed and in the use of more cleansing weight with no additional amount of soap and water. The new machines also wash more rapidly, due to the improved cleansing mechanisms, and this means less consumption of electricity, less fuel for replenishing hot water—and clothes hung out sooner on the line!

Ironer May Be Used as Food Mixer.

The same strides forward have been made with the ironers. These, like many of the new washers, can take their place in any kitchen. The flat plate models have been streamlined and brightened with contrasting colors. In the rotary models we see table and cabinet styles. An ironer may be had which resembles a porcelain enamel top kitchen table. And there are also ironers of the cabinet type which may be quickly converted into the ever convenient food mixer by operating through a small opening in the ironer enclosure top.

There is the appearance of balance, however, accomplished by the proper placing of units. At the same time important points in kitchen efficiency have been observed.

Note how the functional part of the kitchen is confined to a relatively small area, and while the units are compact, they are not so compact as to cause crowding.

Close to the automatic refrigerator is a hardwood work table where preparatory work can be done, and supplies, utensils, and tools are within easy reach.

Sink May Be Used for Work Top.

The sink has been made larger and can serve for a work top as well. Open shelves above the sink hold those dishes which are most frequently in use.

Tools and utensils related to the gas range are placed close to it for convenience. There is a small mirror for a reassuring glance before answering the doorbell. Spice racks and utility racks hang where they are most needed.

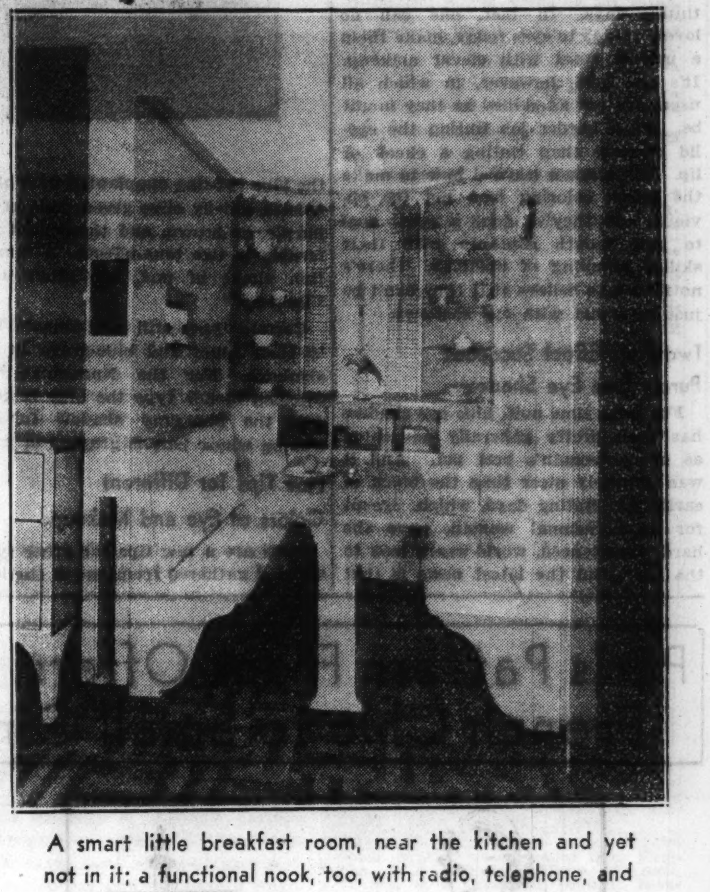
There's food for satisfaction in the fact that even in this new and model kitchen there is a small pantry to be seen. So many houses have pantries—and we can't all of us convert them into breakfast nooks!

To be sure this pantry is small and has been made as nearly as possible an integral part of the kitchen; architecturally and decoratively it is treated as a continuation of the kitchen. There isn't even a door. Thus the home mistress, working hurriedly in traffic with her hands full, is relieved of pushing the door open and shut with her foot.

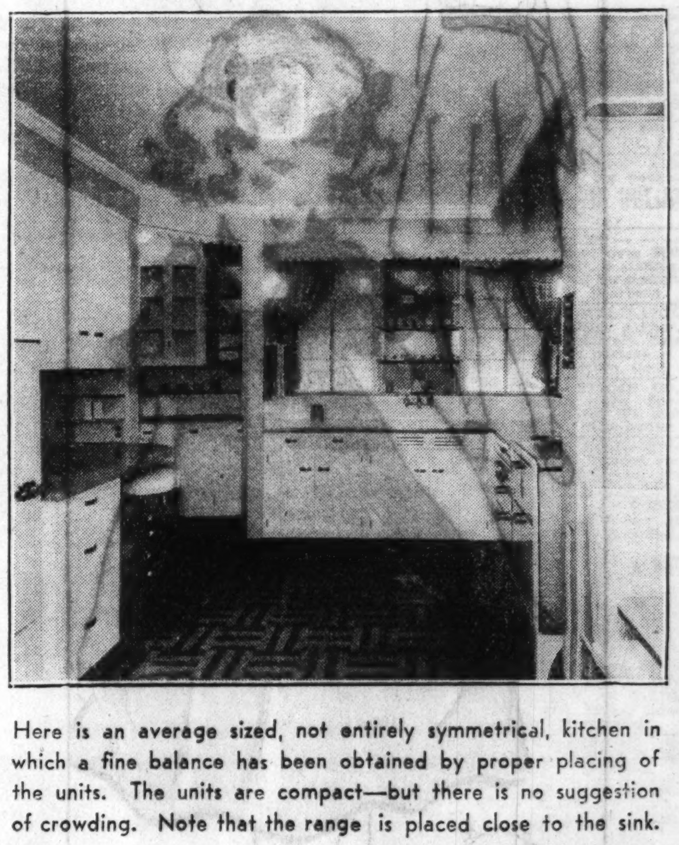
The walls are of linoleum in soft gray and linoleum is also used for counter tops and shelf bottoms and for the floor. The refrigerator, range, and metal and wood cabinets are white with an edge of salmon enamel. This salmon edge is used in all horizontal lines and is the only strong color in the room.

BEAUTY IN THE KITCHEN

Handsomely fashioned to decorate the newest of 1935 kitchens comes the new cabinet type of family washer. A number of different manufacturers are now offering these smart cabinet units, designed by deft experts in household appliance styling.



A smart little breakfast room, near the kitchen and yet not in it; a functional nook, too, with radio, telephone, and shelves for recipe boxes, files, etc. The walls are of French gray linoleum, the benches of washable white lether. The trim is salmon; moldings, benches, table legs, and cabinet interiors, chartreuse. Easy to achieve in many a home.



Here is an average sized, not entirely symmetrical, kitchen in which a fine balance has been obtained by proper placing of the units. The units are compact—but there is no suggestion of crowding. Note that the range is placed close to the sink.

This Is Season to Give Porch Protective Coating

This is a good time of year to give our porch floors and steps protection from the sun's scorching rays. They will thank us for a good coat of porch or deck paint.

Progressive Changes in Eye Makeup Keep Femininity on Alert

By Antoinette Donnelly.

KEEPING up with makeup changes might be recommended as a silhouette reducer, so active one must be, so up on the toes.

Perhaps I should call them makeup advances rather than changes, for one has to hand it to the cosmetic manufacturers that, when they make a change in their product, it is invariably a change for the better. I am speaking, of course, of the manufacturers of high grade products. Naturally, they want the demand for their goods to continue improving. In order to do so, they have to keep on offering something better all the time.

Even Fastidious Women Now Make Up Lids and Lashes.

Take the business of eye makeup, a comparatively recent departure. By which I mean that it wasn't many years ago that a woman with her eyes made up caused a good deal of eyebrow raising. Now these former eyebrow raisers are treating their own eyelids and lashes to colors in the hope of lending a more intriguing interest to their orbs. This, because the colors for eyelid makeup have expanded.

One doesn't have to look the hard-boiled-cut-to-kill siren of the old eyelid tinting days. In fact, one can do lovely things to eyes today, make them a perfect asset with clever makeup. It's one field, however, in which all users are not as skilled as they might be. It's a harder job tinting the eyelid cleverly than tinting a cheek or lip. But women learned how to make the cheek coloring look not too obvious, and they've done a great deal to help mouth contours with their skilled handling of lipsticks. There's no reason to believe that they can't be just as smart with eye shadows.

Two Tone Effect Succeeds Purely Blue Eye Shadow.

For some time now, blue eye shadow has been pretty generally advocated as every woman's best bet. And it was infinitely nicer than the black of earlier eye-tinting days, which, except for an occasional woman, gave the hard, experienced, world-weary look to the eye. But the latest news is that the blue is being supplanted with other shades, chiefly olive green, jade green, purple, or brown, and these used preferably in two tone effects. A foundation shade of one, the other as a "light-up."

Certain types still may remain true to their blues and blue-grays in eye shadows. For the Norwegian and Swedish blonde type the blue is good, and the blue-gray shadow for the woman whose hair is graying or gray.

Few Tips for Different Colors of Eye and Makeup.

Here are a few tips for other types which I gathered from one of the leading cosmeticians and experts on eye makeup.

For the hazel eyed, a light brown foundation is suggested with jade green on top. For the dark brown eye and black, brown or purple foundation, with olive green as the "light-up." For the steel gray eye, a brown foundation with jade green on top. For the green eye, a light brown foundation, with olive or jade green top. For the baby blue eye, the dark brown foundation with gray-blue on top.

Purple shadow alone may give an irritated look to the eye. But as a foundation, or, in some cases, as the top, second color, it is good.

Now, here's the way to apply shadow to the lids. First rub a bit of cream over them. Wipe off, leaving a faint film. Then, put shadow in the center of the eyeball and work it outward to the corners of the eyes. Don't run it along the entire length of the upper lid. Brought in close to the nose, it makes the eye appear smaller. Then, work up on the lid to the spot where the top sinks in. If you leave that upper half of the lid untouched, you're apt to get the hard look or make the eye appear bulgy. The effect is comparable to that of the half-tinted lips.

It's a tricky game, this getting eye shadow on so that it will make the eye more lovely. But, as I say, you girls have learned other beauty tricks and learned them well, so why not this one? It was practice on the other things that got you just the right color and trick of application. The same applies with the eye makeup.

Here is Ida Lupino of the films displaying skill in makeup for the eyebrows. Lending enchantment to the orbs requires a deft touch and a sense of the appropriate. Movie actresses know that the "hard" look must be avoided, and the utmost care exercised in the application of artificial glamor for the eyes.

Toby Wing of the movies is shown enhancing her blonde beauty with the right shade of mascara for the lashes. She knows that the same shade of glorifier must be used on both lashes and brows, with the correct tone of eye shadow as accompaniment.

Etiquet Should Be Taught at an Early Age

Lessons in Politeness Are Part of Instruction Throughout Childhood.

Miss Bartlett will be glad to answer questions pertaining to etiquet and correct social behavior. For a personal reply enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your letter.

By Helen Bartlett.

NO child is too young to have good manners. Teaching little girls and boys consideration for others which is the principal of etiquet and general good behavior, should be begun at an early age. If problems are met just as soon as they are presented—and they are presented when the child is big enough to become adventurous, and when he starts out on those little private searching parties to learn a thing or two about the grown up world and relieve his insatiable curiosity, the bad habits will be much easier to correct. When he is older his good manners will be perfectly natural and instinctive, giving him poise and assurance and the bearing of an aristocrat.

To begin, parental example is the best teacher and inspiration.

When the children are still small they can be taught that destructive little practices and casual tossing about of toys makes work for somebody else, and that disobedience causes their mother real pain.

A little later on parents should present their children to grown ups and teach them to acknowledge instroductions politely and gracefully. Small girls and boys should say, "How do you do, Mrs. Jones." And the grown ups should reply with the same friendly dignity. Children should be taught to respond to conversation directed to them, to say, "Yes, Mrs. Jones," to questions.

Little men should be taught, at the earliest possible age, to lift their hats when they meet girls or women whom they know, and also to raise their hats when they meet a woman acquaintance of their mother or sister when walking with either, whether or not they have seen the acquaintance before. At first these gestures may be exaggerated a little. A boy might be likely to remove his cap with a bit of awkwardness and too much flourish, but the important thing is that he removes it, rather than simply touching it or doing nothing about it.

Small Boy Should Know Courtesy Toward Women.

Small boys should be taught to remember to open doors for girls and older women, and to wait for them to precede them when going through doorways or when getting into motor cars, etc.

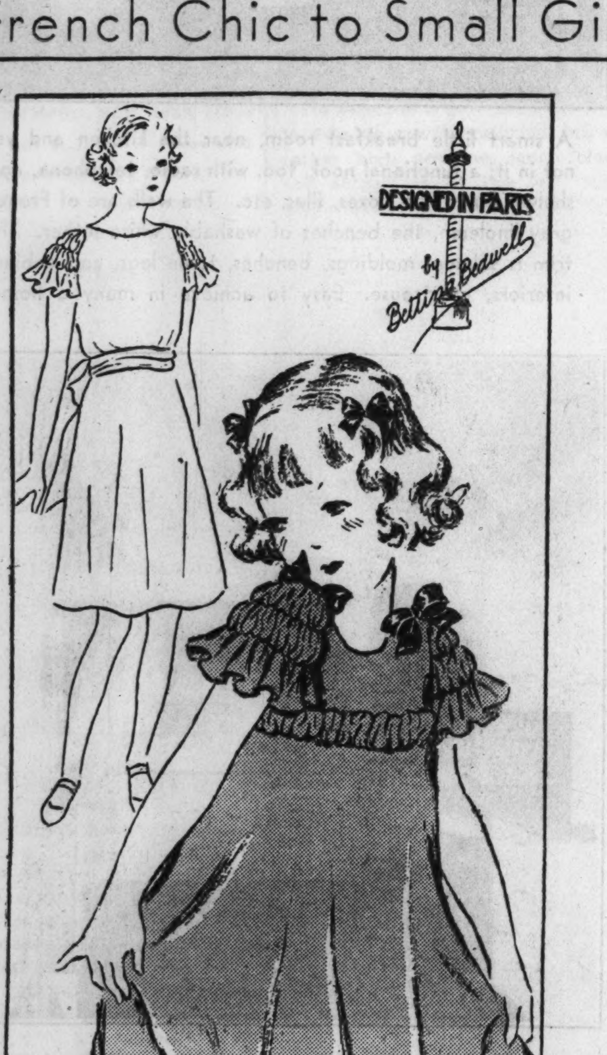
The essentials of table manners should be taught in the nursery. It is there that lasting habits are formed concerning the use of table implements. Gradually, as the more complicated foods are allowed in the child's diet, the more complicated table amenities can be brought to his attention. Then, when he grows up, his good behavior at the table will be instinctive because of his early training. He will know which fork to take because all his life he has been using the right fork.

All these and other little niceties and traits of good breeding are admirable qualities, perhaps because they are so rare, make the child so much more lovable, and help to prepare him to be confident and poised and successful when he takes his place in the complex society of adults.

YOUTHFUL STUDENT OF ETIQUET

A charming little miss. Charming because she has all the good manners, grace, and poise that careful training can give her.

Paris Pattern Frock Offers French Chic to Small Girl



No. 5075—The Paris pattern for this girls' dress is available in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, and 12.

By Bettina Bedwell.

THIS Paris pattern, No. 5075, is for a dress that has French chic for little Parisiennes from 5 to 12, and can be worn by girls of those ages anywhere. The difference that fashion makes for older girls is not great, as you see. Any maiden of or over has a right to a waistline, and the addition of a sash to the dress does the trick. The 8 year old and over abandons the babyish shirred band that suggests a shoulder yoke across the front.

Sleeves in the dress remain the same. They are made by gathering the circular sleeves into the armholes, and then repeating the gathers twice in the center of the sleeves, to suggest bands of shirring. They are exceedingly easy to make, these sleeves, and they add an undeniable daintiness.

Mothers, you can make this frock in almost any of the materials used ordinarily for your children's dresses. If you want a real party frock crêpe de chine is ideal for the child of any age from 5 to 12. You can use batiste, organdy, or even gingham, if you like.

Toy Size Washer Ideally Designed for Kitchenette

A CONVENIENT little washer, for those who prefer to launder their own delicate silks and fine laces is the last word for the one room kitchenette apartment. It is a toy size washer, but completely equipped with a quiet, concealed transmission on exactly the same principles as are applied in the finest of standard size washers. It may be plugged into any electric outlet.

Such a diminutive washer is just the ticket when there are small children in the family and constant laundering is imperative. This washer is so light that it may be carried into the bathroom or placed upon the drain board of the kitchen sink; it is so small that it may be tucked in an out-of-the-way corner of the cupboard, yet it is large enough to wash wearing apparel for the average family.

A brand new addition to a famous full size washing machine is the drier connected with it. This new addition will rinse one load of clothes and whirl them to a damp dryness while another load is being washed. This model is shown at a State street store.

New Brushes for Delicate Kitchen Tasks Are Boons

THE new lineup of brushes for efficiency in the kitchen is widely varied. The new style of glass coffee percolators is hard to clean with a cloth, but the new type of bent brush is made to get inside the pot easily and will keep the transparent, heatproof glass sparkling at all times. A long, slender brush with tiny, burrlike bristles will get down into the hollow stem of champagne glasses.

With hot waffle time at hand there is a fine steel brush to grease the waffle iron perfectly. Made of fine steel bristles, it assures sanitation. And right along with the waffle brush is one for greasing pastry pans and is more pleasant to use than the fingers.

A soft, downlike brush to remove dust from fragile bric-a-brac or delicately made lamp shades is in this assortment of brushes available at Chicago stores.

Questions on Decorating

Miss Winslow will be glad to answer questions on interior decoration. If a personal reply is desired enclose a stamped, self addressed envelope. Number your questions and confine them to one room for each letter.

Query: "I have a Chinese rug with rose ground and blue design and border in my living room. Will scarlet damask draperies be all right?—B. T. K."

Answer: No, scarlet and rose shriek at each other. If you like any of the shades of red—rust, pink, rose or scarlet—confine yourself to one of these in one room. Use contrasting colors in your scheme, such as ivory, green, blue, or gray. But not another red.

Query: Is it possible to paint a narrow white line border on black linoleum in an entrance hall? Or must this be inlaid?—R. L."

Answer: It is much more practical to have the white strips inlaid in the linoleum itself than painted on. I have never seen the painted white design that did not show the black through it and that did not look a bit odd.

Query: "My neighbor tells me the tall, secretary desk is out of fashion. She doesn't like anything tall in her living room. Is she right?—E. M."

Answer: No. She's a bit odd in her ideas. A well made, well styled secretary desk is just as much in good taste now as it ever was. Whether your room can, use one or not depends on the other furnishings. Most living rooms have at least one or two tall objects to break the monotony. If all the furniture were the same height you'd have a strange looking interior.

Query: "My dining room is extremely small and adjoins the living room through an open archway. Should the floor covering be the same in both rooms?—V. T."

Answer: Yes, in your case it would be best to have identical floor treatment in both dining and living rooms. If you choose a plain, solid color broadloom it will make your dining room seem larger.

Household Queries

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We are remodeling our basement—and for the first time in my life I am going to have a real laundry room. What color should I have the walls—white? What type of floor—cement or linoleum? And how shall I heat it? J. D.

Answer: Would suggest walls of light yellow rather than white; use a flat paint rather than a glossy paint for the laundry room. You will find a wood floor covered with linoleum very easy to stand on and very easy to clean. In our modern laudries we don't have to worry about slopping water as in the old days. You can extend a radiator for heating from your central plant, you can install a small electric heater or you can get a so called "laundry" stove which burns oil or coal and which will heat the room as well as the water.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt—[1] Can we whitewash over a painted wall? [2] We want to varnish our linoleum floor. Is any preparation of surface necessary? [3] We want to make a breakfast room of an old pantry. Can the furniture for it be financed under the NHA? I know that everything else can.—K. T.

Answer—[1] It isn't safe to try to whitewash over paint. The whitewash won't adhere well to an oil painted surface. [2] Use benzine to remove all wax, grease, or film from the linoleum floor before you start to varnish or to lacker it. [3] Your breakfast room furniture can be financed by NHA if built-in and stationary.

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We are building a new wood porch at the back of our old house. I have been told we should paint the under part of the floorboards as well as the top to prevent decay. Is this true?—X. Y. Z."

Answer: Yes, paint the boards all over before laying to prevent moisture absorbtion. Your floor paint will also last longer. You will find aluminum paint excellent protection against moisture.

Spring Frocks Adopt Bows as Neat Trimming

By Clotilde.

THE printed silk crêpes seem more beautiful than ever just now, and women who enjoy making their own clothes will surely want to make a dress of one of them by pattern No. 2575, to add to their spring wardrobe. This dress is practically a one-piece affair with side skirt sections. These side sections are rather circular and give graceful fullness to the skirt edge.

Simple Dress Enhanced by Clever Details.

As you can see, the front and back are each cut in one piece and the waist part has drop shoulders. The neck outline is round and becoming and the bow of the dress material, perched at the left side of the neck, gives just the right finish. The sleeves are interesting and are easily made. After the several rows of shirring have been put in the top of each sleeve [and the shirring must be evenly spaced to look well] pull the gathers up as close as possible, then let out slowly to the required length and space evenly. Then it is an easy matter to set the sleeves in the dress. You will see, in the sketch, that there are two lengths for sleeves, and the short one fits closely below the elbow.

If a belt is becoming, you can wear one with this dress, although it is pretty without, the small horizontal tucks at each side at the waistline holding the dress in well.

Pattern No. 3052 is for a charming jacket dress. The original model was made of a navy blue and white printed silk, and this is ideal for spring wear. The bodice and bow were of plain navy blue silk crêpe. The small jacket doesn't hide it, for it is the collarless, youthful, boxy type. The dress closes under the left arm. The waist, slashed and closed at the neck in front, has set-in sleeves and an attached neck bow. A four-piece yoke skirt has the front yoke cut in one with the front of the skirt and is attached at a raised waistline. The fronts of the jacket are underfaced and rolled to form revers. There are set-in sleeves.

This costume will be stunning carried out in sheer crêpe, printed or plain taffeta, and plain crinkly crêpes.

Athletes' Attire Practical, Smart

THE girls who have taken to bowling in a half-hearted manner because they fear the ripped seams threatened by a full, muscular swing will revel in the knowledge of a new costume designed for the complete enjoyment of this healthful sport.

A good looking, divided skirt that has loads of style is fashioned of soft Lavin gray wool, and topped by a soft woolen sweater. Sport shoes of the heavier variety complete the costume. The ensemble bespeaks a trim appearance, combined with the possibilities of heretofore unheard of scoring ability.

Stylists Outdo Themselves in Parisian Show

The Latest Spring Clothes from Couturiers Are Varied and Individual.

PARIS. — In the current spring fashion show, Lucien Lelong has the most beautiful and distinguished collection yet shown. Evening gowns in grand manner of old fashioned, changeable, patterned taffetas are notable. Embossed taffetas with lether-like surface are interesting in evening coats and dresses.

He features a new back movement in evening gowns, gathered full at a rather high neckline, much bloused and shirred in at the low, curved waistline and with a full train sweeping out at back. The fronts of these are plain. This treatment is noted in some full length evening coats.

Sleeves and Necklines Vary the Decolletes.

Some extremely nude, strapless evening décolletés are noted. Other low front décolletés are draped into a high collar line at the back of the neck and are nude below. Full scarf sleeves, cut in one piece with the front neckline, draped and looped around the arms, are a characteristic feature.

Lelong uses these necklines on many simple, ankle length afternoon gowns of large patterned crêpes, and variations of the same line on coats and cape fronts. They also are suggested in neck and armhole draperies of some sleeveless evening gowns. Short swing back, cutaway jackets are notable for all hours. Many two-piece front effects are seen on one-piece dresses.

Lelong Stresses Width in Skirts on Costumes

Alix's collection shows a strong near east influence: Arab trousered beach suits of wool jersey are draped in one piece with broad, two colored jersey sashes, abbreviated tunics, and brassieres of hand printed linen copied from Egyptian frescoes are shown for beach play suits. The Hindu sari of metal bordered chiefly is drafted in hostess gowns and evening wraps.

Novel coats consisting of the free panel front and back worn over frocks having long looped and draped armholes are featured for beach, afternoon, and evening wear. Backward movement at the top of the ensemble is noted in drapes, puffs, and sleeves carried toward the back. Good afternoon frocks of sheer black jersey with interestingly draped bodices are shown.

Mainbocher's new lines make the modern woman romantically beautiful. Especially alluring are his spotted tulle or lace evening ensembles having double ruffle capes with attached ruffled hoods, which frame young faces in the manner of Lebrun's miniatures.

Flower Wreaths and Corsage Bouquets Strike New Note.

Flower wreaths in the hair and huge corsage bouquets are worn with vivid, multi-colored flower printed evening gowns. The trailing skirts and capes are of printed chiffon, and the blouses of plain chiffon. Printed crêpe evening gowns with tulle capes sprinkled with flowers cut out of print and leaf printed vulture feather capes with matching printed crêpe evening gowns are featured.

Bolero suits, short cutaway jackets and looped dolman capes all are favored. The bosom on most blouses and dresses is accentuated with huge cabbage roses or jutting ruffles of organdy are of the dress fabric so placed as to form a large, oval plastron. Summer dresses often are sleeveless. Both high and low necklines are used for daytime. There are many two-piece effects.

Harem Skirts Vary the Theme for Evening Wear.

Full harem skirts with gathered hemlines looped under in zouave effect are seen at all hours. There are slender, beltless sheath tunics with high waisted, empire fitting, and floor length empire evening coats, wide open, showing the same fitting. Bouffant skirts, trailing or level, or a slim unbelted front with looped back panels are the outstanding evening lines. There are some short front hems, ten inches off the floor, also some spiral skirts.

Schiaparelli's stratospheric fashions evolve into a celestial evening silhouette. The figure is molded in soft spiral folds, narrowing below the knees and accentuating the full curves of the hips and bust. Some recall the modernized hobble skirt line, others the primitive Greek draperies.

One Notable Evening Frock Glorifies Bear Constellation.

The Great Bear constellation, printed black stars on zenith blue crêpe, makes a lovely evening dress. It is draped like a gypsy's shawl, and is fringed with jet. New evening head scarves called Ihram, attached to decolletes, may be draped over the head in biblical fashion, or worn floating.

Some New Suits Have Two Three-Quarter Length Coats.

Some suits have two three-quarter coats—one of light wool, and one made of horse blanket or cashmere rug fabric. Loose fitting blouses recall a masculine peasant shirt. Lether belts often are wrapped around twice.

Newsprint beach caps, like paper hoods, are made by Schiaparelli of press clippings arranged in a pattern and printed on glazed white chintz in blue or red.

Frivolous accessories accompany the feminine mode. There are long handed parasols of ruffled silk or straw, tiny glass fans, soutache braid trimmings, wax tuber roses, trimming hats and corsages, huge stray hats with sweeping brims.

Miniature Mangle Saves Labor and Time on Wash Day

MUCH time and energy will be saved for housewives doing their own laundry work if a miniature mangle made expressly for home use is installed. The roller of this mangle is 26 inches wide, but smooths large sheets and tablecloths when they are folded lengthwise. It mangles children's clothing perfectly, even fussy ruffles, tucks, and shirring. With the new type of clothes drying rack, made of rust-proof steel, at hand, many steps will be saved when towels, pillow cases, napkins, etc., are placed upon it.

THERE'S SIMPLE SECRET IN THIS PIE CRUST

The crust of this unusual pie is made of broken pieces of cinnamon toast; the filling of slightly sugared grapefruit sections dotted with butter and covered with meringue. Then it's baked in a moderate oven for 15 or 20 minutes to brown the fluffy topping. It's simple and delicious.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will be glad to answer questions concerning stamps, except questions about value. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

THE French colony of St. Pierre and Miquelon consists of two islands lying ten miles off the southern coast of Newfoundland. Together they have an area of less than 100 square miles and are the sole remnant of the great French colonial empire in North America.

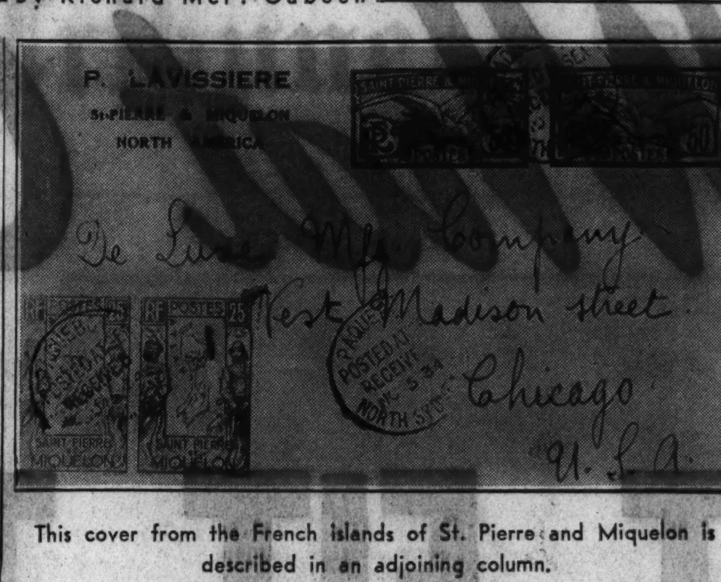
At the beginning of the eighteenth century France was in control of North America, except for the English colonies along the Atlantic seaboard, and the Spanish settlements in Florida and in the region reaching south and west from Texas. When the French attempted to build a line of forts from Presqu'Isle, now Erie, Pa., to the navigable waters of the Ohio river in Pennsylvania, the English moved against them and started what is known in American history as the French and Indian war. The treaty which settled this disturbance stripped France of its American possessions, leaving it the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon as a fishing station. At that time there were three islands, Great Miquelon, Little Miquelon or Langlade and St. Pierre, but since 1783 the Miquelons have been connected by a mud bank.

From Two Issues.

England has taken the islands three times since the end of the French and Indian war, but France has been in undisputed possession since 1814. Their usefulness as a fishing station has gradually diminished, but at one time they were in a fair way to become the world's greatest smuggling station. This was checked to a great extent when the British government placed a consular agent on the islands.

The stamps on the cover adjoining are from two issues. Those showing the sea gull were first placed on sale in 1909, while those showing the map of the islands were issued in 1932. Other stamps of the latter series show a lighthouse or a fishing vessel.

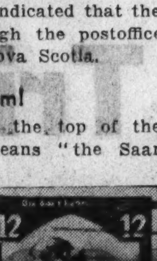
The inhabitants of the islands seem to prefer placing their letters aboard a passing steamer rather than depositing them in the postoffice, and for this reason many are to be found with foreign cancelations. When the passing steamer is not equipped with a sea postoffice, letters received en route are sent ashore to the postoffice where the vessel docks, and are there canceled and marked with a special postmark of which the word "Paquebot" usually forms a prominent part. The mark on this cover indicated that the letters passed through the postoffice at North Sydney, Nova Scotia.

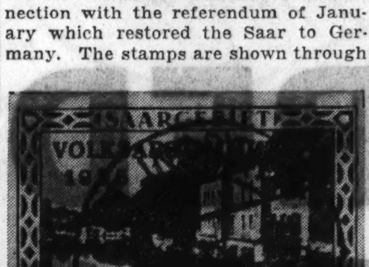


This cover from the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon is described in an adjoining column.

Die Saar Kehrt Heim!

The inscription at the top of the stamp illustrated means "the Saar comes home." This German series of stamps indicates in a symbolic manner the return of a lost child to its mother. These stamps were issued in four values, 3, 6, 12 and 25 pf. The last issue of the Saar itself is also illustrated and consists of the regular stamps of the region, overprinted with the 12 and 25 pf. The inscription "Volksabstimmung —1935." This set was issued in connection with the referendum of January which restored the Saar to Germany. The stamps are shown through the kindness of William Walsh and Helmuth Bartsch.





Dvorak.

In November, 1934, Czechoslovakia issued this stamp to honor Anton Dvorak, a composer well known to America. He was born in Mulhausen, near Prague, Sept. 8, 1841, and after an eventful career, three years of which were spent in America [1892-'94], he passed away in 1904. Of all his compositions none was more popular in America than his "Humoresque."

The Farley Souvenirs.

Philatelic authorities say the Postoffice department will realize not less than $2,000,000, perhaps more, from the sale of imperforate stamps to collectors beginning March 15, through the Philatelic agency, Washington, D. C. It is as if, attempting to atone for having let one bug out of Pandora's box, Postmaster General Farley is about to remove the lid and kick out the bottom. Whatever he does about it will harm American philately, and some of the bugs may bite him on the ankles. Third Assistant Postmaster General C. B. Eilenberger says about twenty varieties of stamps are to be placed on sale. A general tightening up is in process in the department, and postmasters are warned to withhold from sale any unfinished or defective stamps or stamped envelopes which they may find in their possession.

Covers from Little America.

By radio it is learned that all of the special mail canceled at Little America is on board the S. S. Jacob Ruppert, en route for New Zealand. The S. S. Mariposa will receive this valuable philatelic cargo at Dunedin, N. Z., and sail March 9 for San Francisco, where it is due on March 25. Following a postal inspection the covers will be distributed to the addressees. The Byrd Antarctic Expedition II., the headquarters of which are at Washington, D. C., has ordered a limited number of covers to supply collectors who were unable to obtain theirs in the regular manner. These will bear the autograph of Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

Cachet Notices.

Col. Michael B. Gilligan, 1418 St. Anthony place, Louisville, Ky., of the Kentucky department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has arranged for two more cachets. The first will honor the Kentucky Cachet king, date not set, but soon, and the second will be on the occasion of the state encampment of the V. F. W. at Newport, Ky., in June. Any covers received too late for the previous cachet are being held for the next one.

John D. Long, cachet director for the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce, announces several cachets for that city. One will be in connection with the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge, date not set, but soon. The dedication of Hamilton field, in Marin county, has been announced for April 28 or May 5. Airmail postage must be used on covers for this event. In both cases send stamped and self-addressed covers under separate wrapper to Mr. Long at 779 41st avenue, San Francisco, Cal.

Club Notes.

The Springfield [Mass.] Stamp club celebrated its fortieth anniversary on Feb. 8, 1935, with a banquet at Hotel Worthy in that city. The president of the organization is William Carlos Stone of the Springfield Public library, and without doubt he was one of the founders if not the moving spirit behind the Springfield club.

Clever Gadgets Lighten Work of Meal Preparation

THE household utilities sections of the State street department stores are displaying several new gadgets to aid busy housewives. The highlight among these new items is a bean stringer. It works magically in snipping off both ends of the beans, removing strings, and producing about four thin lengthwise slices in one operation. The beans are pushed through an adjustable collar onto several sharp blades which do the trick in the twinkling of an eye. Tiny carrots may be treated in the same manner, and thin slices of celery made ready for curling in ice water.

The roll mincer is another time saver for mincing parsley and other vegetables where recipes call for a small amount of fine chopped vegetables. The food to be prepared is placed upon a woodern board and this sharp edged little gadget, rolled over the vegetables, cuts them to almost a powder fineness.

A boon to better baking is a new type of flour sifter. One hand holds the sifter and operates flour which, when one squeezes the handle, the amount of flour desired is released while the batter is stirred with the other hand. For angel or other cakes, where recipes call for several siftings, there is a brand new item. This sifter multisifts and fluffs flour with other dry ingredients to perfection. One may sift flour as often as desired, over and back, without removing cover and scattering flour.

No guesswork is required when making checkerboard cake, for circular or square shaped pans have the grooved division for light and dark batter, obviating the danger of one running into the other. And another "find" is a small rubber handle to pick up the steel wool pad and protect fingers from fragments of steel when scouring pots and pans.

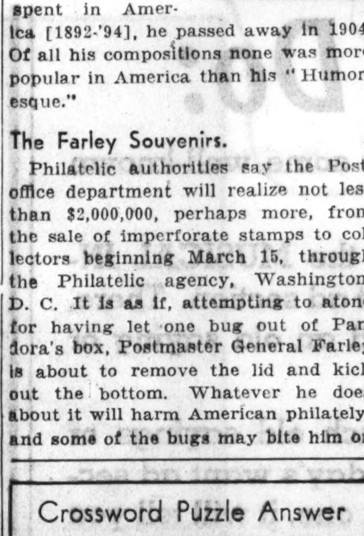
Crossword Puzzle Answer



Fireplace Holds Family Comfort in Cold Weather

THE season is here in which the fireplace becomes the heart of the home. At all times, during the cold weather a fireplace gives cheer and beauty which no other single feature can contribute to a room.

If a new fireplace is to be built, special attention should be given to its location, since it will dominate the room. Don't allow it to extend too far out into the room, for furniture will be grouped around it, and plenty of space is needed for the family and friends to gather.

Let the style of the fireplace harmonize with the room. If a room has enameled trim, an enameled Colonial mantelpiece is in good taste. A room that has light woodwork and walls needs a gay harth of brilliant glazed tiles to satisfy the love of sparkling hues. With dark stained floors and dignified furniture, a mantel of face brick is beautiful. Then there are the hooded fireplaces in the Italian manner, which blend with a room which has rough plaster walls and stained, unvarnished trim.

Be certain, also that it has a good draft, to prevent smoking on even the wettest days, and that it throws out maximum heat.

Like millions of other modern wives, Mrs. Perlow uses nothing but Rinso on washday. A little Rinso gives rich, lasting suds that soak out dirt. Clothes washed this safe, gentle way last 2 or 3 times longer. Rinso makes dishwashing quick and easy. Kind to hands. Wonderful in washers. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute.

Unconquerable Africa!

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

ITALY demands $44,900 indemnity from Ethiopia for the deaths of Italian colonials in recent border clashes in Africa.

Mussolini seeks satisfaction from the kingdom of black men in some sort of humble gesture, perhaps a salute of the Italian flag at Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia.

Il Duce, it is hinted in dispatches from Rome, wishes to push the frontier of Italian Somaliland 93 miles into Ethiopia, so as to include valuable water wells and rich farm lands.

But Italy and its dictator, in their dreams of a broader empire, should not forget the lessons of Dogali and Abba Garima. It was at the first named place 48 years ago last January that an Italian force of 500 men under General Gene was surrounded by hordes of Ethiopians screaming for blood. More than 400 of the soldiers of Italy on that fateful day of 1887 were put to death. And on March 1, 1896, at Abba Garima, near the city of Adowa in Ethiopia, a still greater catastrophe overtook an army under the banners of Italy. Colonel Baratieri's forces, numbering in all 13,000 men, were battered and crushed by 90,000 Ethiopians under King Menelik II. The Italians lost 7,600 in killed and wounded, and nearly 3,000 more were captured by the Africans.

So runs the story of Africa. The scene of tragedy shifts from time to time, and time itself moves on, but the story is unchanging except for details. Those reverses suffered by the Italians in another generation serve to point out the futility of all alien efforts in the most inhospitable of continents. The land that in the last three thousand years has thrown back successive waves of Syrians, Assyrians, Phœnicians, Persians, Greeks, Romans, Vandals, Crusaders, and Turks is not likely to change its nature completely and yield permanently to or take into itself graciously the Italians.

Africa of sun-scorched desert, of steaming jungle, of throbbing war drum and devil dance seems to be dedicated until judgment day to its swarms of black men—doomed to eternity as the abode of savagery. Those familiar with geography and modern history may take exception to this statement, calling attention to the fact that in some sections of Africa in recent years white men have been successful at colonization, that much of South Africa is settled farming land; that in East Africa, especially in Kenya Colony, there are wide and fertile plateaus where conditions are favorable for permanent settlement. This exception admitted, one has only to view in his mind Africa as a whole, its vast Sahara desert as great as all the United States, its wide central belt of equatorial forests, to understand in a measure why civilization never has and probably never can make a great impression on it.

Africa, with its 140 million Negroes, is mysterious in a

D'Oyly Carte Operas, Drama About Jesuits

Chicago Stage Gets Two Important Attractions; Premieres Tomorrow.

By Charles Collins.

THIS is the week that brings the D'Oyly Carte Opera company of London, standard bearers of the Gilbert and Sullivan tradition for fifty years, to Chicago after a triumphant New York engagement. It is also the week that finds "The First Legion," a drama of unusual subject matter, established at the Harris theater as successor to the famous Abbey [Irish] Players, who left the city last night to continue their tour toward the Pacific coast. In other words, it will be a week of important playgoing.

The D'Oyly Cartes, also called the Savoyards from the name of their home theater, have already been introduced at length in these columns. Little remains to be said in advance of their première. Attention may be called to the fact that the overtures will begin at the old school time, 8:15 p. m., and that playgoers who wish to get full enjoyment out of Sir Arthur Sullivan's music will do well to be punctual. The orchestrations for these operettas were prepared by the composer himself and have never passed out of the possession of the D'Oyly Carte management. They are the real scores from the fountain source; all others that you have heard in American productions are pirated or mutilated versions of the compositions.

"The Mikado's" Fiftieth Birthday.

The D'Oyly Cartes will give Chicago four of the six bills in their repertory this week. The first performances will run in the following schedule: Tomorrow night, "The Gondoliers"; Tuesday night, "H. M. S. Pinafore," preceded by "Cox and Box," a one-act frolic representing the collaboration of Sullivan, not with Gilbert, but with H. C. Burnand; Thursday night, "Iolanthe," and next Saturday [afternoon and night], "The Pirates of Penzance," preceded by "Trial by Jury."

On Thursday night, March 14, the fiftieth anniversary of "The Mikado" will be celebrated. New costumes, designed in an early Japanese style much gayer than the customary kimonos, will be provided for the occasion. This event provides me with an excuse for Gilbertian antiquarianism. Here are the names of the original "Mikado" players in England:

R. Temple, as the Mikado; Durward Lely, as Nanki-Poo; George Grossmith, as Ko-Ko; Rutland Barrington, as Pooh-Bah; Leonora Braham, as Yum-Yum; Jessie Bond, as Pitti-Sing; Sybil Grey, as Peep-Bo, and Rosina Bandram, as Katisha. Of these creators of a great legend in Anglo-American theatrical history, two are still alive—Mr. Lely, retired and resident in Scotland; Miss Bond, retired and resident in London.

Drama About Community of Priests.

"The First Legion," opening tomorrow night, is a curiosity of the theatrical year. It represents a departure from the beaten paths of American drama; it leaves the world of penthouse amours, Freudian psychology, sociological problems, etc., far behind, and seeks its material in the religious temperament. The Roman Catholic order of priesthood called the Jesuits is its theme, and its story deals with a group of Jesuits in a cloistered house of study. The loss and regaining of faith by one of these followers of Loyola is the incident around which the plot takes form. All of the characters are priests except two, who are laymen.

Plays that deal exclusively with the religious life are exceedingly rare on the contemporary American stage. Siera's "Cradle Song," prominent in Eva Le Gallienne's repertory in New York but never acted in Chicago, and "The Kingdom of God," a fine vehicle for Ethel Barrymore about six years ago, are the only examples that come to mind. Moreover, as a play that devotes its full attention to the Jesuit way of life, "The First Legion" has no parallel.

"First Legion" Portrays Jesuits.

This play appears to have been received as a truthful and sympathetic interpretation of the Jesuit spirit and character by the order itself. At any rate, Father Francis Talbot, a member of the Society of Jesus, has commented upon "The First Legion" in a magazine article as follows:

"I read the manuscript with amazement, and with chuckles of amusement. I could name real Jesuits of my familiar acquaintance who were characterized or burlesqued. . . . Several of my religious confrères would not be convinced that any one but one who had worn the black robe for years could have pictured the Society of Jesus so accurately and so intimately."

Bert Lytell has the leading rôle in "The First Legion," and the other members of the cast are Charles Coburn, Whitford Kane, William Ingersoll, Thomas Findlay, Leonard Lord, Michael Worth, Dick Wallace, Sydney Riggs, Howard Miller, and Carroll Ashburn.

"MURDER ON A HONEY-MOON"

It's Lola Lane! We have not seen her for a long time! She has a featured role in "Murder on a Honeymoon." Showing at the Palace theater.

Cohan Revival

FOR its annual spring revival the Players' Club of New York has selected George M. Cohan's mystery farce of the 1913-'14 season, "Seven Keys to Baldpate." It will be staged during the week beginning May 27. Cohan will play the leading rôle taken by Wallace Eddinger in the original production.

Since 1922 when the custom of annual revivals by the Players was inaugurated, the organization has produced "The Rivals," "The School for Scandal," "She Stoops to Conquer," "Trelawney of the Wells," "Henry IV.; Part 1," "Julius Cæsar," "The Beaux Stratagem," "Becky Sharp," "Milestones," and "The Little Father of the Wilderness," "The Way of the World," "Troilus and Cressida," and "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Coward's Latest.

ONE of the shortest runs [55 performances] for a Noel Coward play on Broadway was recorded for "Point Valaine" when it closed its engagement March 2. Its cast featured Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne, Osgood Perkins, and Louis Hayward. In 1925 Coward's "Hay Fever" was performed 49 times.

Shakespeare Profits.

When "Romeo and Juliet" opened in New York Katharine Cornell stated that its run would never pay back the production costs. Now she cheerfully announces that it grossed $250,000, making a nice profit.

Jarrett in a New Show at College Inn

Eleanor Holm Makes Her Debut as Cabaret Girl with Her Husband.

ART JARRETT, movie actor and band leader, introduced a new cabaret show in the College inn last night. His wife, Eleanor Holm, the swimming girl; Chaz Chase, fire-eating comedian, and Olive Olsen, singing soubrette, are featured. This is Miss Holm's cabaret debut. The "Dancing Debutantes" and Dannie and Eddie are also active on the bill.

- The Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel has arranged a new entertainment in which Leonard Keller, "the tone poet," and George Nelidoff, artist-producer, combine their talents. The revue is called "The Carnival of Gypsies." Keller directs the orchestra and plays the violin. Nelidoff is a former member of the Imperial Opera company of St. Petersburg. In 1922 he organized the Russian revue company called "The Blue Bird" in Berlin. Cossack and gypsy songs and dances are given by the chorus.

- Supporting Lina Basquette in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel are Russell Swan, master of ceremonies and magician, and Eddie Noll, high kicking dancer, and his partner, Loraine. Keith Beecher's orchestra continues. Beecher's orchestra continues. Miss Basquette's engagement has been extended for another week.

- A "cabaret party" will be given in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel next Saturday night. Herbie Kay and his orchestra continue.

- L'Aiglon restaurant has Audrey Call, Bill Oluff, and Dan Devitts as its entertainers, and Jack Page's band for dancing. . . . The Club Minuet's cabaret show is given by Corlies and Palmer, the Ercelle Sisters, Helen Carol, Adelina Dossena, and Hope Parker.

- The "romance night party" at the Trianon ballroom last Wednesday was the first of its kind ever held. It was dedicated to the many couples that met at the Trianon and later married. Jan Garber's orchestra continues.

Warner Brothers Again Announce Making "Miracle"

THAT perennial favorite, "The Miracle," is announced again for probable production by Warner Brothers. Every year that company considers a revival of the picture as a vehicle for its No. 1 girl, this year Josephine Hutchinson. Last year Jean Muir was the candidate, and Barbara Stanwyck was named in the 1933 announcement. Loretta Young was the No. 1 girl for three consecutive years.

George Kelly's play, "The Torchbearers," has been renamed "Doubting Thomas" for the movie version. Will Rogers and Billie Burke have the leading rôles. The story is all about a husband who adopts drastic measures to halt his wife's "little theater" acting.

A third baseball story is on Joe E. Brown's picture schedule. It's "Alibi Ike," by Ring Lardner.

Engineers Fool Film Company on Boulder Dam Site

BOULDER dam engineers fooled a film company recently. Jimmy Cagney, who portrays a riveter in "Backfire," was to do a scene at the dam while the floor of the canyon was still dry. He and his employers awoke one morning to read that water already was splashing against the barrier. Cagney and company rushed to the location to do the best they could.

"SILVER STREAK"

Letter Box

To the Dramatic Editor:

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—As long as the drama continues in a state of comparative lethargy, why not utilize your influence to achieve a much needed reform relative to the stage presentation of our large "de luxe" movie theaters. I have reference to that horrible nuisance, the so-called public address system. Is it not enough that the public must suffer its radio and photoplay entertainment through the distortion of modern contrivances without having to bear the same hideous disturbance from flesh and blood performers? Personally, I have almost forgotten what an actor's voice—that is, his natural voice—sounds like. The shrill, blatant shrieking of the amplifier certainly lends no advantage to any performance.

MARTIN K. ASH.

Operettas for Chicago.

The Shuberts are said to be on the point of giving Chicago a musical stock company. "Beau Brummel" and "Cyrano de Bergerac," two operettas of superior musical value, will be staged if its project is put into effect.

Deluge of Plays.

Katharine Cornell averages thirty manuscripts of new plays each week. January is the heaviest month in the number submitted, while December is the lightest month.

Medal for Cornell.

The University of Buffalo has bestowed its Chancellor's medal on Katharine Cornell. This is an annual award designed to honor notable public service or distinguished achievement on the part of some citizen or former citizen of Buffalo. Her uncle, Douglas Cornell, represented her at the convocation.

Palace Gives Casino Revue; Variety Bills

IN place of its usual vaudeville bill, the Palace theater's stage program this week consists of "Hello Paris," the cabaret revue from the French Casino. The cast and chorus have been moved intact from the Casino, and the best of the various divertissements have been arranged into a show that runs from 60 to 70 minutes. Among the principals are Les Pierrotys, Robins, the Andrée Trio, Spadolini, Karen Zoska, Frances Aubert, Jacques Josselin, and Polly Frank. The Ballet Matray and the Ballet Komarova appear in dancing numbers.

The Chicago theater's current stage entertainment includes the three radio stars Jack Benny, Mary Livingstone, and Frank Parker. A few weeks ago they set a new attendance record for the theater in spite of subzero weather. Benny offers a new group consisting of the "Chicken Sisters," Tommy Martin, juggler, the Liazeed Arabs, and the Evans ballet.

The State-Lake theater's chief entertainers this week are Jackie Green and Sara Ann McCabe. The former does impersonations of Eddie Cantor, George Jessel, and many other stars. This engagement is his Chicago debut. Miss McCabe, a soprano, has been a radio and cabaret singer for a number of years.

Others on the vaudeville bill are: Carleton and Ballew, in a comedy act; Paul Nolan, called "The Jesting Swede;" Jack Joyce, one legged tap dancer; Georgette's Continentals, comedians; Verne Buck and the State-Lake dancers.

First Play.

Shaw's New Play Proves Puzzle to Theater Guild Audiences

Wise, Witty of Script, It's Still No Drama

'Simpleton of Unexpected Isles' Is Simply People Talking on the Stage.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The Theater Guild, stanch in its loyalty [and in its contractural obligations] to George Bernard Shaw, has produced the newest Shaw dramatic discussion, called "The Simpleton of the Unexpected Isles." It has proved a puzzling disappointment to its audiences, as all the later Shaw plays have done, but it has also given the Shavians something to warm to as a later day message from their ageing master.

There are flashes of the old Shaw in detached speeches of the new work, and a finer eloquence of phrase, as well as a greater gift of imagination and agility of mind, than any meat-eating 79 year old dramatist can produce to compete with this contented vegetarian.

The chief weakness of "The Simpleton" as playhouse material is that it does not add up as drama. Mr. Shaw is no longer interested in writing plays that hold together and tell anything resembling a straight story. He shakes his mind vigorously and out fall an assortment of characters which he proceeds to group on a stage and set talking.

Tropical Islands a Rich Setting for Fantastic Allegory.

In this instance, "The Simpleton" being a fairly elaborate and fantastic allegory, he uses the "Unexpected Isles" as the setting. They are a British possession in the tropics, but they in effect represent the new world.

Here the climate and the heavy food and drink are slowly driving the British agents to suicide.

One does shoot himself, having promised his mother that he would make the first pages of the newspapers as an empire builder or something. The other contacts an English girl tourist and these two go adventuring among the natives and find a couple of holy people, Pra, the priest, and Prola, the priestess, of an ancient race. Pra, realizing what is wrong with the Britishers, kicks the agent into the sea that he may be cleansed, outside and in, and he comes back a white and smiling male reborn. Enthused by the experience, the Britisher tosses his tourist friend into the brine that she also may start afresh.

Four Britons, Two Natives Produce Four Perfect Offspring.

Soon these four are joined by two other British tourists, who are immediately and unaccountably attracted to the native priest and priestess. Knowing that the British have but one conception of love, Pra and Prola are content to permit the newcomers to make advances to them.

And so it comes to pass that these four, being of inquiring minds and interested in experiment, agree to stop awhile with Pra and Prola, establishing a group of six that shall combine the best of eastern and western civilizations and develop eugenically a line of perfect descendants.

England Secedes from Empire Despite Ireland's Protests.

Twenty years later, when the play proper begins, four children have been born to the community, two boys, two girls; four physically perfect half-castes, blessed with amazing mentalities but little ambition. Here the experiment might have ended, but now there appears a timid little clergyman representing the Church of England. He has been left on the island by a band of pirates whom he had been serving as chaplain, and he is delighted to meet the charming islanders.

With some slight trouble they persuade the clergyman that he should join the experiment and marry the two girls. Thus will a way be provided for the creation of a second generation of perfect world citizens.

But, alas, time and experiment prove that he is but a useless simpleton, having been scientifically reared by a professor of mechanistic biology who had fed him nitrogen food, and there are no more descendants. All the church's representative has accomplished is to draw the battle fleets of the world, assembled either to correct this direful polygamous state that has been forced upon an English clergyman or blow the island out of the sea. But the admirals quarrel among themselves as to just what should be done with the bigamist, and while they are quarreling word comes from London that England has seceded from the empire, despite the objection of Ireland, and there are strange things happening.

Now "The Simpleton" takes another twist. The concluding act has to do mainly with the approach of judgment day. There is a long blast on Gabriel's trumpet and an angel comes floating down to announce that the time has come when all lives without meaning or purpose will fade out. The angels are about to weed the garden. Useless people, mischievous people, selfish people are to dissolve into space.

"Judgment day is the day of valuation. If the valuation is false civilization perishes, as all the ancient ones we know did," announces Pra. "We are not being punished today, we are being valued—that is the newest dispensation. What we have learned here today is that the day of judgment is not the end of the world, but the beginning of real human responsibility."

Astounding news comes over the radio from London. The house of commons is practically decimated. The house of lords can muster but fifty members, and none of these ever attended a meeting. Mayfair is a desert. Six hotels are left without a single guest. A crowded intercession service at Westminster abbey was brought to a close by disappearances in the congregation at such a rate that the dean was left preaching in the choir.

"At Royal institution, Sir Ruthless Bonhead, Egregious Professor of Mechanistic Biology to the Rockefeller Foundation, drew a crowded audience to hear his address on 'Whither Have They Gone?' He disappeared as he opened his mouth to speak."

The medical profession, continues the report, has disappeared almost en bloc. Lawyers and clergy fared much better. More than a million people disappeared in the act of reading novels. The newspapers were denuded of their political writers. One paper was left with but a single editor, and he was interested in agriculture."

Now the experimental colony begins to vanish. The four useless children are the first to go. The others follow variously. Finally, only the priest and priestess remain.

"We shall plan commonwealths when our empires have brought us to the brink of destruction, but our plans will still lead us to the Unexpected Isles," says Prola. "We shall make war because only under the strain of war are we capable of changing the world; but the changes our wars will make never will be the changes we intended them to make. We shall clamor for security like frightened children, but in the Unexpected Isles there is no security, and the future is to those who prefer surprises and wonder to security. I, Prola, shall live and grow because surprise and wonder are the very breath of my being and routine is death to me. Let every day be a day of wonder for me and I shall not fear the day of judgment."

"The Simpleton of the Unexpected Isles" may be, undoubtedly is, "a rustling of words in the wind," as Richard Lockridge wrote of it. But match me a dramatist who can bring a fantasy to its close with more fascinating words than these and I shall be content to admit G. B. S. is through.

The Guild has staged "The Simpleton" in Lee Simonson settings of a fanciful design, warm, tropical, and a little daft. Harry Wagstaff Gribble has done the directing, bringing as much order out of the welter of words and ideas as seems reasonable to expect.

The players are happily chosen. Alla Nazimova and McKay Morris are the priest and priestess, and both eloquent in being true to Shaw. Romney Brent, the only Mexican actor who has ever made the first line in the American theater that I know of, plays the timid clergyman perfectly. Leon Janney, late a wonder of the movies, is one of the handsomer half-castes. Lawrence Grossmith and Rex O'Malley are two of the more important Britishers.

IN DRAMA OF JESUIT ORDER

"The First Legion," which comes to the Harris theater tomorrow night, is a drama dealing with a community of Jesuit priests; therefore it has no heroine nor any other woman character. This scene, showing a group of the priests at a game of chess, contains the following players: Bert Lytell, Carroll Ashburn, Sydney Riggs, Howard Miller and Charles Coburn.

New Work by Rachmaninoff Is Recorded

Victor Adds Rhapsody, Composed Last Summer, to Masterpiece Set

By Edward Moore.

IT was told in the musical columns last fall that Sergei Rachmaninoff had come back from Europe bringing an important composition with him as the result of his spring and summer vacation. This was afterward identified as a Rhapsody for piano and orchestra, and he presented it for the first time on any stage in Baltimore with the Philadelphia orchestra, under the direction of Leopold Stokowski.

The trouble with getting it known by the public was the fact that it probably would not be heard except in such cities as had engaged the composer to play it with their own symphony orchestras. This would be a slow process. But Victor stepped in and saved the day.

In a volume just released, "Musical Masterpieces M-250," Victor has put out the work just as it was played in Baltimore, the composer at the piano, together with Stokowski and the Philadelphia orchestra. This is a kindly act for those who love brilliant piano playing, for the chances of any one else taking up the burden of learning the solo part would seem to be remote.

Rachmaninoff Takes Tune Once Used by Brahms.

It is the most dazzling piece of virtuosity that has come to these ears in a long time. Rachmaninoff has taken the perky little tune out of the Paganini Caprices, the same one upon which Brahms once composed twenty-four variations of heartbreaking difficulty, and has written twenty-four others that are somewhat more heartbreaking. None of them sound in the least like any of the Brahms experiments except for the original theme. Some of them are slow, sustained, lyric, others are gay and coquettish, most of them are examples of bravura skill such as only a composer would care to get into his fingers. At that, they are striking and immensely effective. It would seem to be a truly Rachmaninoff touch that here and there he adds the "Dies Irae" theme out of the Gregorian collection, sometimes banged out by the piano, sometimes blared out by the orchestra, thereby giving a somber touch to the unbelievable fireworks of the rest of the work.

You may, if you like, buy the music and set to work. It will keep you busy for some little time. But for immediate enjoyment, you will do better to buy the records.

Schnabel and Three Others Play Mozart.

Piano playing of another type will be found in Victor's next volume, M-251. Here Artur Schnabel and Messrs. Onnu, violin; Prevost, viola, and Maas, cello, of the Pro Arte quartet, play the Mozart quartet in G minor, Koechel 478. Seldom will one hear any more expert Mozart playing, or more affectionate regard for the notes set down. It is a performance that comes nearer to being inspired than the music itself. For this is Mozart in a highly respectable mood, discursive, learned, sometimes a bit too lengthy, and not always with the warm glow that was in his music at its best.

The Rachmaninoff number covers three full records, the Mozart four, though the fourth side finishes before it is entirely filled. Both are triumphs of the technical art of recording.

ART JARRETT'S HAPPY HOLM

Eleanor Holm, prettiest of the famous swimming girls, is making her debut as a cabaret entertainer in the College Inn under the direction of her band-leading husband, Art Jarrett. Their marriage was an aftermath of the Olympic games at Los Angeles, Cal.

Hollywood Happenings

Shades of the gay 90s stalk about the set at Universal where the life of Diamond Jim Brady is being filmed, with Edward Arnold in the rôle of the famous bon vivant. Research for the film divulges that Brady paid $220,000 for the reconditioning of his stomach, said to be six times as large as that of an ordinary person, because of the constant stuffing of unbelievable amounts of food.

Ralph Bellamy is having backfiring trouble with his own-your-own-home-in-every-state campaign. Word comes through that his Connecticut farmhouse has been badly damaged by the cold and resultant snow and ice; the Palm Springs place is damaged by wind and rainstorms of severity that have swept that section recently. And the Beverly Hills house suffered so severely from rains that storm drains are now being constructed.

Victor Presents

in his own "Rapsodie for Piano and Orchestra" on a Theme of Paganini, played by the composer, Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra

THIS is an historical document. For it is less than four months since the world's premiere of Rachmaninoff's latest work.

Yet here it is, ready for you to hear in your own home, in a superb new Victor Higher Fidelity Recording, exactly as played at the original performance—by Sergei Rachmaninoff himself as the soloist, with Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra.

In its twenty-four exquisitely melodic variations you will find gayety and melancholy, stateliness and charm, almost every mood and modulation of which the piano keyboard is capable under one of the world's most famous pair of hands.

Hear this delightful masterpiece at your local Victor dealer's. Three records, six sides, in album, with explanatory booklet.

Ask to hear also:

Mozart—Concerto in D Minor—(Piano). Edwin Fischer and the London Symphony Orchestra.

Bach—Anniversary Album. Stokowski and the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra.

Strauss—Tod und Verklarung. Stokowski and the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra.

THE GOOD FAIRY

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD Morning!

Well, I suppose all God's chilluns got opinions on which were February's six best movies. Such being the case—I throw in my oar with the following selections:

"THE GILDED LILY" was aces as entertainment and received the following notice in the movie column: "A bright, actionful little comedy drama. . . . Claudette Colbert at her prettiest . . . devastatingly charming in her romantic moments and sparklingly clever in her humorous ones . . . two honest to goodness he-man heroes—Fred MacMurray and Ray Milland . . . a gay and different little plot with plenty of love interest and suspense to sustain it . . . good, snappy dialog, smart cast acting, and evidence throughout of intelligent direction . . . a finale to set young pulses throbbing and make old blood warm . . . in short—or in long—'The Gilded Lily' is no slouch. . . ."

"MAN OF ARAN"—"Wonderful—WONDERFUL photography in this picture. . . . A saga of a man whose only master was the sea. . . . Like a parade of splendid paintings, scene of rare beauty follows scene of rare beauty and by the time the film is over you are fairly groggy with the loveliness your eyes have drunk in. . . ."

"THE GOOD FAIRY"—"Movie is an adaptation of Ferenc Molnar's stage play in which Helen Hayes captivated her audiences. The cinema version is light, bright, and continuously entertaining. And again Miss Margaret Sullavan makes us grateful that she saw fit to disport herself under the Kleig lights . . . plot is amusingly worked out. . . . The picture moves with speed under the most intelligent of direction and the dialog never misses goal.

"DAVID COPPERFIELD"—"Cinema version of the beloved classic is something to Egad about . . . they have kept the complicated, many charactered story intact, and this, not only without wearing you out BUT keeping your interest and sympathy alive. Hugh Walpole, brought over to adapt the tale, has kept complete faith with the author . . , outstanding performance probably is W. C. Field's portrayal of Micawber . . . staging, photography, costumes are marvelously effective, and a laurel should adorn the brow of George Cukor for his direction. . . ."

"THE COUNTY CHAIRMAN"—New Will Rogers piece—"is an adaptation of George Ade's stage play of 1903. It abounds in whimsy and amusing situations and gives Rogers the sort of rôle he needs to bring out the best in him. . . . The picture opens on a laugh and closes with one. . . . The cowboy philosopher is at his dry, lovable best. . . . Nice picture. Don't miss it.

BitsaBOUTem.

EDWARD G. ROBINSON will have the leading rôle in "Napoleon." Emil Ludwig, famous modern biographer of the great emperor, chose Robinson to play the part. BETTE DAVIS will appear opposite Mr. Robinson in the leading feminine rôle, that of Empress Josephine. . . . JOE MORRISON, one of the newest singing stars in Hollywood, spends a great deal of his time, when he can get away from work, singing for an elderly woman who is critically ill. She lives in a little home in the rear of a roadside café, and the only enjoyment she gets out of life are those few moments when her favorite movie star and singer comes to see her.

CHARLES BOYER, young leading man from France, who has just finished "Private Worlds," opposite CLAUDETTE COLBERT, has replaced FRANCIS LEDERER in the new KATHARINE HEPBURN starring film, "Break of Hearts." Miss Hepburn will appear as a modern young girl in this picture. . . . The RKO-Radio studio has given a number of veterans of the silent movies a break in several new pictures. JACK RICHARDSON, who entered movies in 1909 and was one of the silent screen's most famous villains; MARY McLAREN and EDGAR LEWIS, actor-director, well known for his work in the silent films, "The Barrier" and "The Great Divide," have minor rôles in "Roberto."

"RUGGLES OF RED GAP"

Cornell's Plans

BURGESS MEREDITH has been engaged by Katharine Cornell to appear with her this spring in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," "Flowers of the Forest" and "Candida." In the first named play he will have the rôle of Octavius Moulton-Barrett, in the second he will have the rôle played by Stephen Haggard in London, and in the third he will play Marchbanks.

J. WARREN KERRIGAN, one of the most famous stars and "hero" two decades ago, was given a small part in "The Informer," starring VICTOR McLAGLEN. Mr. Kerrigan's last starring rôle was in "The Covered Wagon" in 1923. PAULINE GARON, once popular in the silent pictures, and wife of the late Lowell Sherman, will have the rôle of Fifine, the French maid, in "Becky Sharp." MIRIAM HOPKINS plays the title rôle.

SLIM SUMMERVILLE and PAUL KELLY have signed long termed contracts with Fox Film. . . . "Safe in Jail," a newspaper comedy-drama, has JAMES DUNN and MAE CLARKE in the leading rôles. This film is adapted from the Sidney Skolsky-Claude Binyon story "Tabloid." Miss Clarke was chosen for the rôle after a long search to find somebody suitable to play the part of a newspaper woman. . . . As soon as GINGER ROGERS finishes her work in "Star of Midnight" she and her new husband, LEW AYERS, are leaving on a long delayed honeymoon. They plan a four weeks' yachting trip.

See you tomorrow.

The Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply, please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I went to see the "Mighty Barnum" with great expectations. I saw a splendid show. But as a show, showing the life and times of P. T. Barnum, it was a failure, and I am astonished that the movie folks should so depict the great Barnum. For he was one of the greatest men of his day. A dignified man, and not an ignoramus. A man who could have been just as great as a politician, railroad president, or manager of a great mercantile establishment. Barnum found young Stratton, an obscure midget who had never been exhibited, and made him the greatest of all midgets. He did not find Barnum. Barnum gave him the name he bore through his career, Tom Thumb.

To place the Jenny Lind and Jumbo period together was quite ridiculous, as they were 25 or more years apart.

At no time was he dejected. He heard of Jenny Lind as the greatest singer of Europe. When all Europe looked upon us as unsophisticated as to music and culture, she and her friends held the same opinion, so when asked to name her price she named $1,000 per night for fifty nights or performances. Barnum accepted her price. Then to try and wriggle out of it she said the $50,000 must be deposited in the Bank of England to her credit. After some of the bankers had been asked for a loan to make up what Barnum did not have, they said: "Why, Mr. Barnum, you won't take in enough at a performance to pay her $1,000." Yet, at the opening night at Castle Gardens, the receipts were over $12,000. At Baltimore some $13,000. Seats by first, second, and so on choices were auctioned. First choice, $600, bought by a prominent hatter. That fact made him the leading hatter of New York and a fortune for him. Is such a man a bungling ignoramus?

So many incidents in his life there were to have made a great drama. But the Hollywood crowd knows it all.

Hope I haven't bored you.
N. W. ABBOT.

Editor's note: You haven't bored me—far from it. But it is well to remember that writer and producer announce frankly that "The Mighty Barnum" is largely fiction.

Only Active Movie-Going Will Bring Clean Films.

Dear Mae Tinée: For about nine years I have been reading your reviews and sharing your enthusiasm for films and now for the first time I would like to voice some of my opinions on the movies. The recent campaign for clean pictures is a fine idea, but I wonder if it will produce lasting results. If it fails to do so I feel that the campaigners themselves will be largely to blame for the simple reason that many of the supposedly enthusiastic members of the Legion of Decency are really indifferent as regards movie going. Denunciation of indecent films is useless unless accompanied by active support of clean films. Recent reports of New York columnists seem to indicate that "What Every Woman Knows" and "Anne of Green Gables" are not boxoffice hits. (I have seen both of these movies and enjoyed them very much.) Now if the Chicago campaigners for good films pass up these pictures and decide to read a good book instead the producers will have a good excuse for discontinuing the production of wholesome films. Sincerely, M. G.

Editor's Note: Now is the time for all good fans to come to the aid of their party. . . . !!

"Chu Chin Chow" Wins Praise and Approval.

Dear Miss Tinée: This is the first time I have written to you, but I really would like to see my letter in print, especially in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

I am writing to you about the picture "Chu Chin Chow." When I went to see it the theater was only half filled. I don't know if the people did not like the sound of the name, or because of the picture being made in England. The acting and the scenery in the picture were wonderful. John Garrick, who played Ali Baba's son, sings and looks like John Boles. But I fell in love with the villain.

George Robey, who I believe played the part of Chu Chin Chow and Abu Hassan, is a great actor. I don't think any American actor has ever inspired me so. He was a rogue, but even handsome John Garrick couldn't make up for him.

Couldn't you please tell me if his name is George Robey, and where I could get his photograph. I would be much obliged. H. Z.

Editor's note: Fritz Kostner—not George Robey—played Abu Hassan. George Robey was Ali Baba. You might write requesting a photograph, addressing Mr. Kostner in care of Gaumont-British corporation, 226 West 42d street, New York.

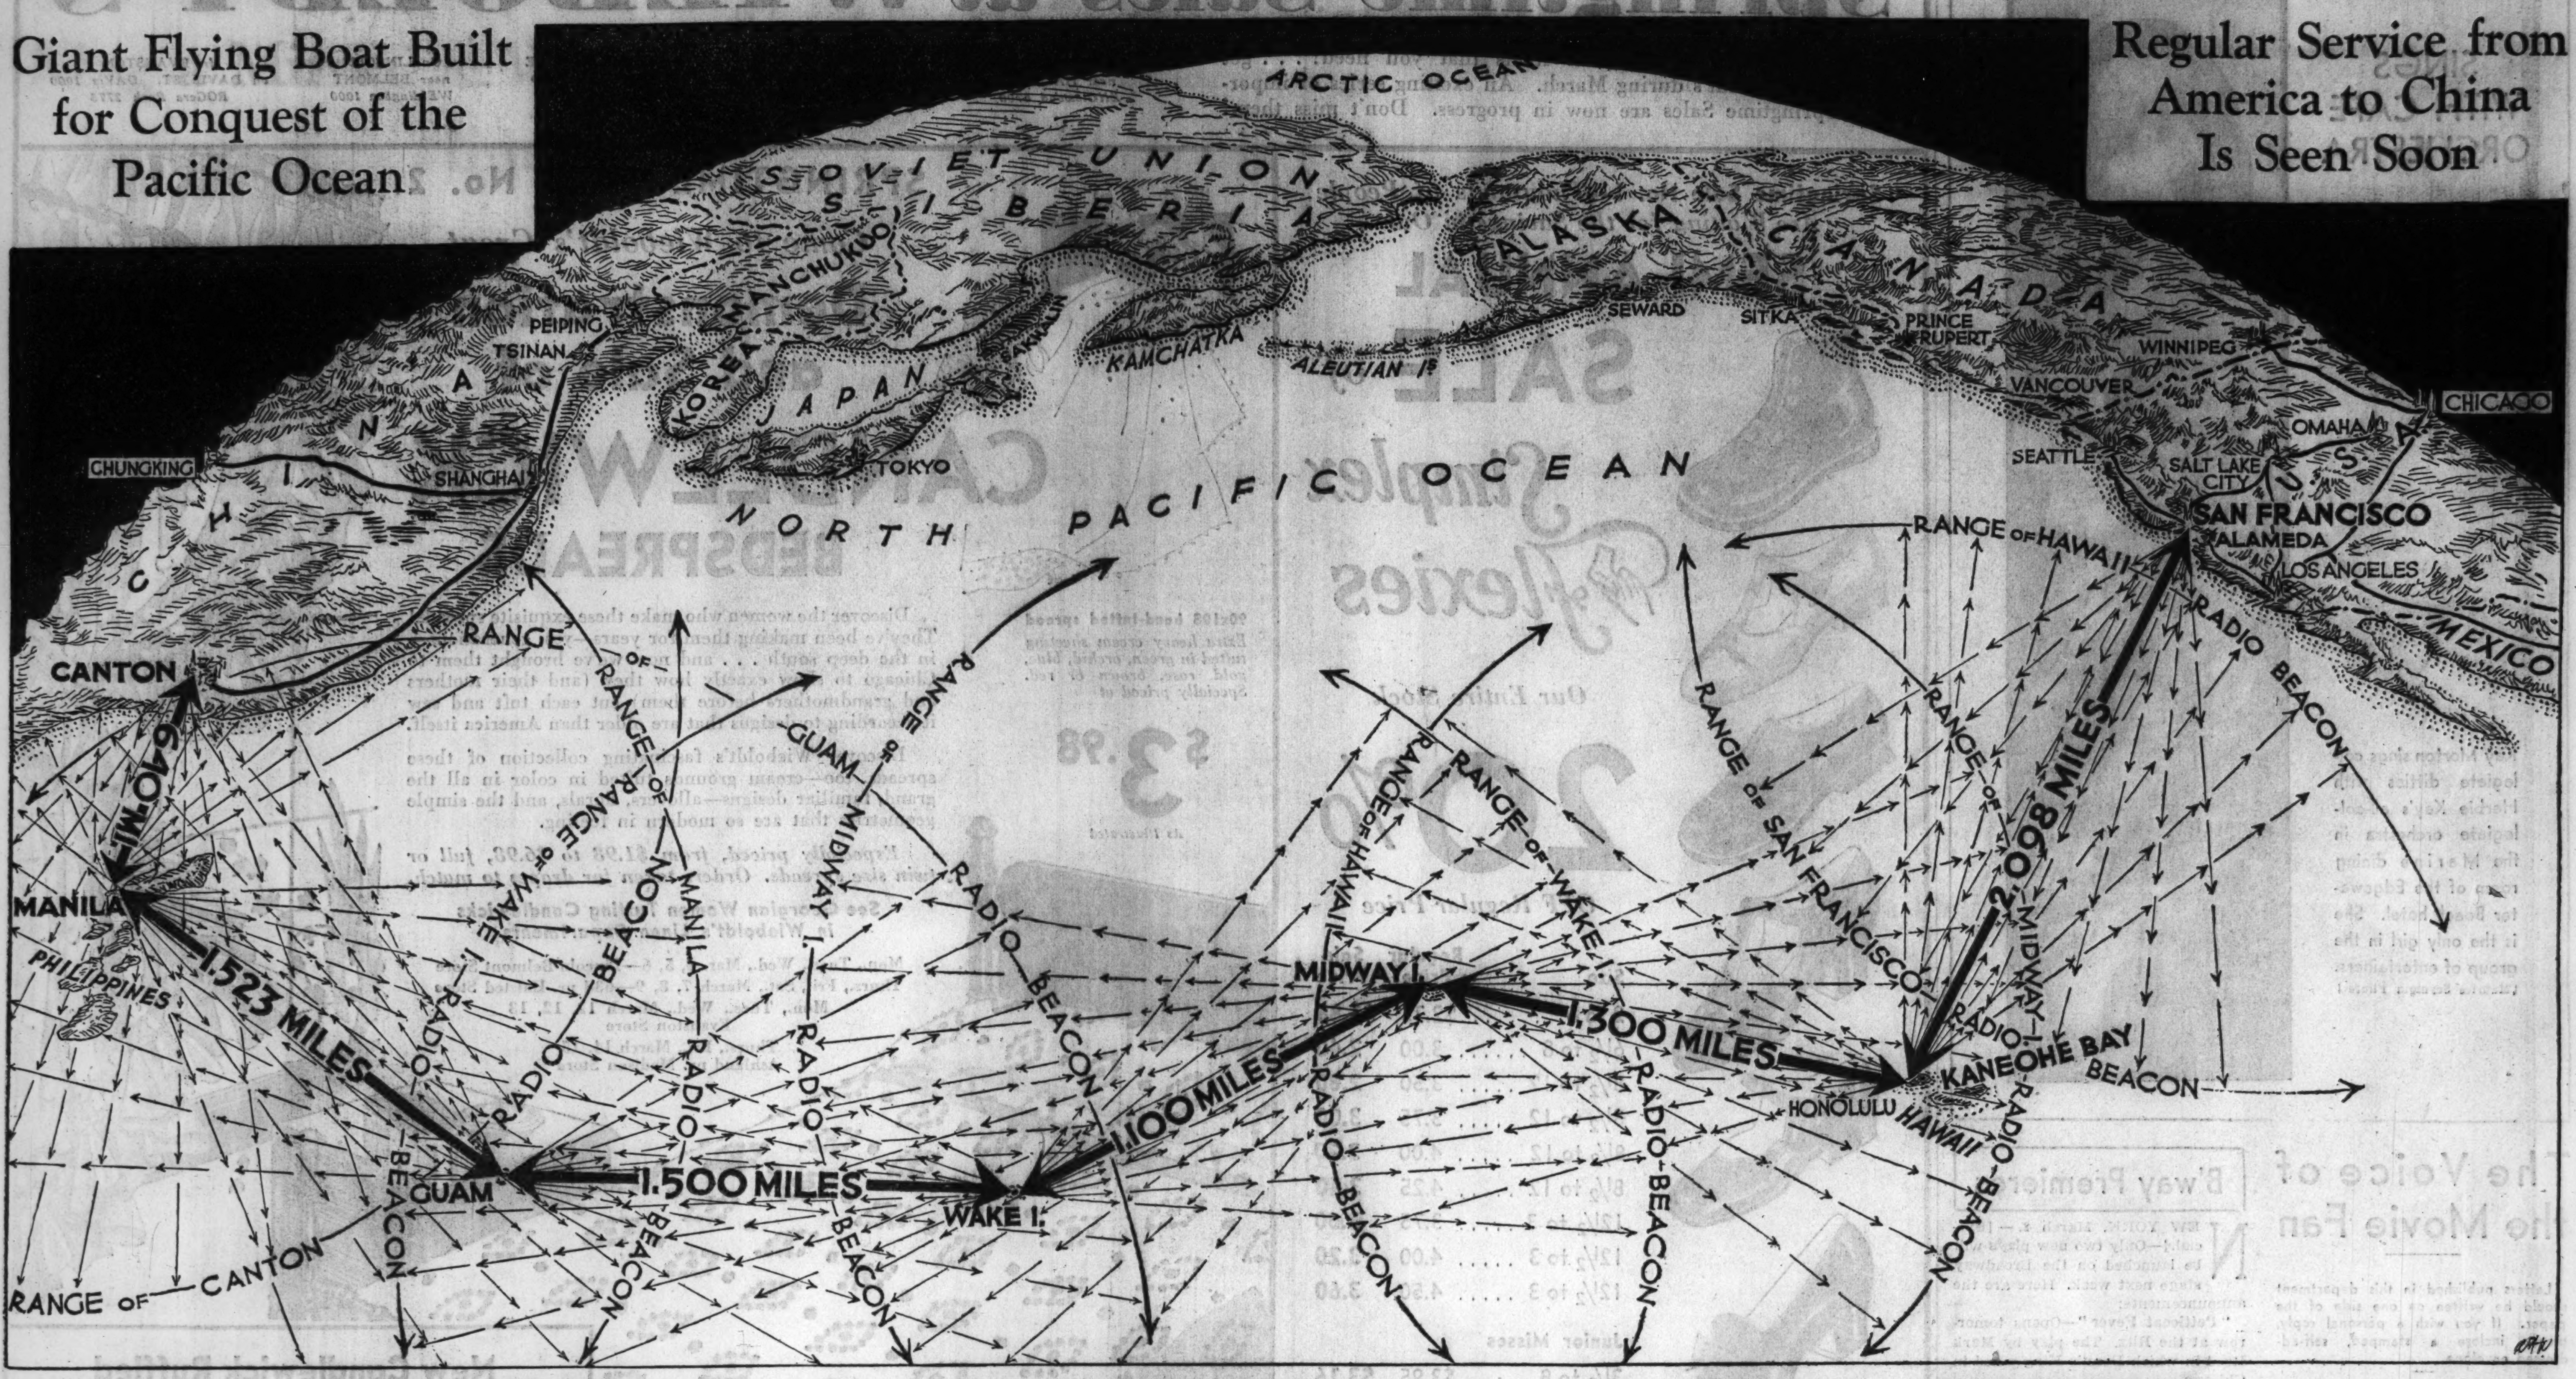
What's New in World of Airplanes and Air Transportation

Giant Flying Boat Built for Conquest of the Pacific Ocean

Regular Service from America to China Is Seen Soon



Map of proposed Pacific air route from San Francisco to Canton, China, showing various bases at which planes will land and overlapping radio beacons radiating from each. The route is covered by at least two beacons at all points except for 200 miles west of San Francisco.

By WAYNE THOMIS

SOME evening within the next sixty days Pan American Airways' new Clipper Pioneer, a 38,000-pound flying boat, will slip down its ramp into San Francisco harbor. Its four engines, capable of developing 2,800 horsepower, will hum as the crew of nine men goes aboard.

Nosing out from the shore, the big boat, laden with nearly 3,500 gallons of gasoline and oil, will taxi into the wind. Then the hum of the motors will become a roar as each turns up to 1,900 revolutions a minute. The four giant propellers in low pitch position will sweep the ship across the water and lift it clear.

The Clipper Pioneer will bank away over the Golden Gate. Its course will be west-southwest. It will be out on the first leg of its first 8,000-mile journey to Canton, China.

When the ship takes the air it will be a momentous occasion in more than six years of effort by American designers, airplane manufacturers, engine builders, and pilots to make the ocean air line an accomplished fact. Into that plane has been built the solid strength and high speed attained from construction of planes flown more than 100 million miles by American pilots on American air lines during the last decade. In the training of the men who will guide it over the ocean has been concentrated the skill in flight and in avigation accumulated from more than a million hours spent aloft by American airmen. On this solid background directors of Pan American Airways base their plans for flying passengers, mail, and express cargoes from California to Asia in 70 hours. Now the trip takes 20 days by express steamer.

Regular Service Across Pacific to Be Established

The first trip, of course, will be an experiment. Within a few weeks after the experimental flight the company expects to establish regular mail flights over the route. By the time pilots and operations officials have gained six months' experience on the mail flights, passengers also will be carried.

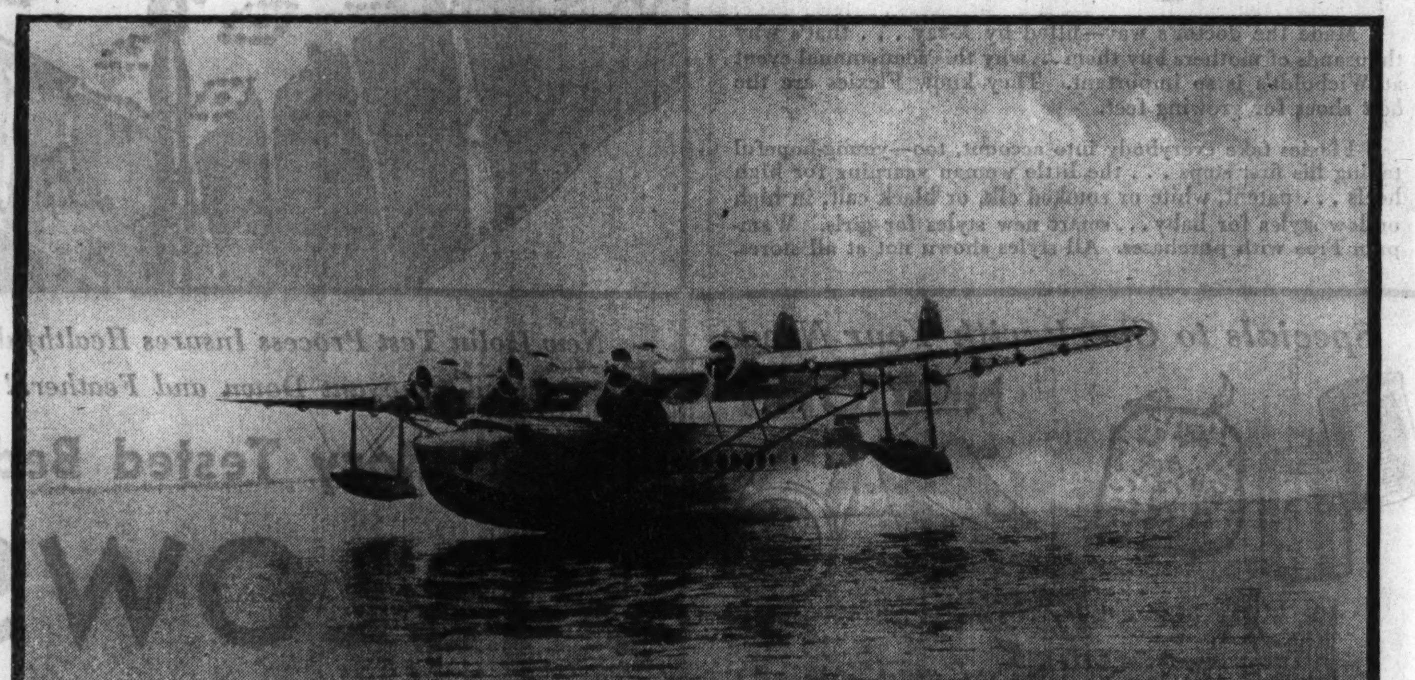
Igor Sikorsky, designer of the Clipper Pioneer.

No actual pay load will be carried on experimental flights, and in the S-42 type boats the pay load from the California mainland to Hawaii will be limited to one ton. Consequently the S-42 type probably will be used only on the shorter hops of the route from Hawaii westward, on which two tons of pay load can be carried. On the long hop the Martin 130 type boat, which has a 3,000-mile range with 14 passengers and a ton of mail and express, probably will be flown.

Indications at this time are that Pan American will establish bases at Alameda, Cal., at Kaneohe bay in the Hawaiian Islands, on one of the Midway Islands, at Wake Island, and on Guam, an American possession in the Marianas group. Still another base will be built at Manila in the Philippines, and the Asiatic base will be at Canton.

Several factors caused the route as indicated on the accompanying map to be chosen. One of the most important was its proximity to the Tropic of Cancer. In that latitude weather is uniformly good. Another factor was location of islands which permit a flight to be broken into hops of 2,000 miles or less. The longest hop will be 2,098 miles, from San Francisco to Hawaii. From there to the Midway group is approximately 1,300 miles. From the Midway Islands to Wake Island is 1,100 miles, and thence to Guam is 1,500 miles. Guam to Manila is 1,523 miles, and from Manila to Canton, the final short jump, is 640 miles. All these distances are in nautical miles.



Sikorsky S-42 type flying boat, chosen for inaugural flights over Pacific air lines. This plane is the Brazilian Clipper, first of the type. Its sister ship, Clipper Pioneer, identical in external details, but fitted with special tanks and instruments, soon will make its first trip.

Keeping on the right course over large expanses of water always has been a major problem in transoceanic flying. Particularly is this true when the destination is a small island. It is essential that calculations be exact, for a minor error at the beginning becomes a critical matter at the end of a 2,000-mile journey to an island group of less than 100 miles in diameter.

In preparation for the opening of this ocean airway, radio experts of Pan American Airways developed a radio range beacon of such strength as to make ocean avigation no more difficult than that over the department of commerce airways in the United States. Radio beacons on department of commerce airways have a range of only 150 miles, but the Pan American beacons will have a range of 1,800 miles. Development of this direction-finding device was announced on Feb. 8 of this year when the department of commerce made public an application by the company to build stations at each of the bases in the Pacific.

Calculations Can Be Checked Against Signals

With these beacons in use there will be ample overlap of signals on even the longest hop. Thus pilots and navigators will be able to check their calculations against the radio signals. The long-range beams will operate on short waves with frequencies as high as 6,000 kilocycles.

The Clipper Pioneer is a sister ship of the Brazilian Clipper. Both were built by the Sikorsky Aviation corporation from plans drawn by Igor Sikorsky to specifications of Pan American experts, one of whom was Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. Clipper Pioneer has a few minor refinements not present in the first ship, which holds ten world's records for speed and weight-carrying. The Pioneer, named for its work, is fitted purely as an experimental ship. Two-thirds of its useful load of 18,000 pounds will be gasoline and oil. It also will be fitted with the latest type radio, navigating instruments, and engine instruments.

The four engines will be of a Pratt & Whitney Hornet type later than those used in the Brazilian Clipper. The new engines develop slightly more horsepower and have special automatic lubricating devices incorporated in them. The ship will also have automatic variable pitch propellers, while the Brazilian Clipper has only two-position variable air screws. Thus equipped, the new boat should cruise at 62.5 per cent of full throttle at 145 miles an hour for 3,000 miles. The longest leg on its journey will be about 2,000 miles, so that the extra gasoline carried will enable the ship to fly 1,000 miles off the set course—should this become necessary—with safety.

The Clipper Pioneer otherwise is identical with the older boat. Its wing span is 114 feet 6 inches, and the combined boat hull and fuselage is 67 feet 8 inches in length. It is built entirely of metal and equipped with a landing brake in the form of a flap along the trailing edge of the single wing. The four motors are faired into the leading edge above the hull.

At no time on the trans-Pacific flight will the ship be called upon to perform beyond its known capabilities. For four months the plane has been put through preparatory tests, one of which included flying nonstop for its maximum range of 3,000 miles over the Caribbean sea.

When first taken from the Sikorsky factory at Bridgeport, Conn., the ship was flown nonstop to the Pan American base at Miami. Several speed and weight tests were run off Miami, then nonstop flights of 1,200 miles were undertaken. These were from Florida to Porto Rico. The first flight was run in daylight, the second at night. Both flights were made over the open ocean out of sight of land or guiding lights. The pilots used celestial sights and dead reckoning on the flight, but their calculations were checked against radio signals during the whole journey. The company announced that the differential between the two systems was less than one-tenth of one per cent.

Ship Flies 300 Miles Through a Cloud Bank

On the daylight flight the altitudes varied between 500 and 10,000 feet. The night flight was made at high altitudes. Two hours of the flight were flown completely blind when the plane entered a cloud bank that extended for 300 miles at 8,000 feet.

Test flights served not only to train the crew but to test a new-type drift sight, a new-type octant and sextant used in navigation, and a special meter installed on each engine to register the exact flow of gasoline. This instrument was developed to determine the range of the plane.

A crew list of first, second, and third pilots, a navigation officer, an engineer officer, and a radio officer has been decided upon for the trans-Pacific service. In addition to this regular crew the first plane probably will carry official observers, one of whom may be Colonel Lindbergh.

After the flights aforementioned the Clipper Pioneer was taken through its 3,000-mile nonstop tests and was placed in the machine shops at Miami to receive a thorough overhauling and complete instrument installation. It will be flown to San Francisco within a month.

Pan American Airways, according to reports, is to receive an indirect subsidy from the postoffice department to support the ocean air line. In addition the company has been given financial assistance by a Pacific steamship line and by a group of Hawaiian financiers. Details of these agreements never have been made public, but President Juan J. Trippe of Pan American spent nearly a month in San Francisco during the latter part of 1934 in executing these contracts.

At the terminal in China, Pan American engineers have been busy for three years. A modern flying field has been constructed just outside Canton on the banks of the Chukiang river. The river itself, or the sheltered waters of the natural harbor formed from the river, will be used as the landing place of the flying boats. This flying base already is used by the China National Aviation corporation planes. Its line links Canton with Shanghai, Peiping, Nanking, Hankow, and with cities as far west as Chungking, and is a perfect feeder line for the trans-Pacific planes.

There are still those who may ask, "Why develop ocean air lines?" It was Kipling who in the last century preached, "Transportation is civilization," and he was quoting statesmen who won appropriations from Roman consuls and the Roman senate to build the highways that held the Mediterranean empire together for 700 years.

Today transportation means passage by air at speeds of 150 miles an hour or better. History shows that wealth was gained by the major nations through trafic with their frontier territories. China is the world's last frontier, and the trans-Pacific line will bring the United States close.

Trans-Pacific Service Seen as Aid to Peace

But, entirely aside from the economic value in the future of the Pacific line, it is justified as a potent factor in the maintenance of peace in the eastern hemisphere. With Japan openly wielding the imperialistic fist and eyeing longingly the Philippines, war prophets seemingly have had more than usual basis for predictions that a clash was inevitable. With Manila only three days from California instead of three weeks, and every air mail base a military strong point, there is less likelihood that American territory and American interests will be threatened seriously from Asia.

England feels that air power in Asiatic waters will balance the man power and ship power of Japan, which in case of hostilities would have the enormous advantage of operating comparatively near the home source of supplies. This is why the British are extending their imperial airways to Australia. England's action is an excellent reason why the United States should follow suit.

British Loyalty to Royal Family Puzzle to Americans

King a Mirror in Which Briton Sees Himself

By JOHN STEELE

King George V., who soon will have reigned over the British empire for twenty-five years.

London, England.

IN MAY next King George V. will have reigned over the British empire for 25 years, and great preparations are under way for celebrations by his loyal subjects which will eclipse in splendor and color anything that has ever been done before even in England, the home of pageantry. It is intended to make the royal jubilee the occasion of a great outpouring of loyalty which will prove to the empire and the world that whatever may happen in the rest of Europe, royalty still is alive in England and likely to continue long after some of the more ephemeral republics have disappeared.

Just what this loyalty is and to whom it is rendered is one of the hardest things for an American to understand. I was about to say for a republican to understand, but I am more and more convinced after a long residence in Europe that there are no republicans outside America. France and Germany are republics in name, it is true, but they have preserved the aristocratic tradition and have been all along too close to monarchies to lose all touch with the monarchical idea. In all European republics there are strong monarchist parties. America alone has been a real republic, altogether divorced from kingship, for 150 years, and Americans, therefore, more than any other people find it difficult to understand what this loyalty to a king means. Europeans may find it hard to understand this particular kind of loyalty, and to this particular king, but they know something of the thing in general and therefore are not so surprised as they might be.

There is a very general impression both outside England and in some circles in England that all the pageantry of monarchy is definitly part of a plan to sell the monarchical idea to the people. There is no doubt that it has that effect, and also no doubt that a number of the shrewder politicians realize this and at least don't discourage the pageantry, but in spite of a good deal of wishful searching I have never been able to find any evidence of a definite policy or plan in this direction. Like a great many other things in England, it is instinctive, but the effect is the same as if it were part of a carefully planned policy. So far as the pageantry itself is concerned, it would be there if there were no king. The English people like to see the king and queen in golden robes riding in a golden Cinderella coach and escorted by scarlet and silver clad troops. It brings color and joy into rather drab lives.

The pageantry of royalty, however, has more in it than that. It affords the Englishman an opportunity to pour out the very real loyalty which he feels toward the office and in this case the person of the king. Loyalty to the actual king has not always been known in England. There have been unpopular kings who were hooted in the streets of London, but the institution of kingship suffered little from that. George V., however, enjoys a deep personal popularity which might almost be called love.

So far as I can figure it out it is based on the fact that the common Englishman sees in the king himself with all his own failings and virtues, at least as he likes to imagine himself. Thus George V. is not a very subtle or brilliant person. Neither, the common Englishman likes to think, is he. The king is a man of plain common sense, a good but not too sharp business man, a good husband, and a good father—in short, a good example to his family which is spread all over the earth. These are the qualities that the common Englishman likes to think he has, and in the king he sees himself. In adoring the crown or its temporary wearer he is really in some anthropomorphic manner adoring himself.

He is also—and here is another paradox—paying tribute to democracy; and here it must be emphasized that democracy and republicanism are two very different things which are often confused. Republicanism is a form of government. Democracy is a theory of human relations. There can be aristocratic republics and democratic monarchies. Britain is the latter, and the crown is the great bulwark of democracy—so thoroughly recognized as such that the Socialist Labor party long ago abandoned theoretical republicanism and became more monarchist than the tories because it saw in the crown the germ of all socialist institutions in Britain.

It is a mistake to suppose, as many do, that the king is the head of an order of aristocracy. Kingship can and does exist in Europe without a titled aristocracy, and in one or two countries there is still a titled aristocracy without a king. The British constitution recognizes three estates of the realm—the king, the lords, and the commons—and the king is just as distinct from and as far above the lords as he is from the commons. Much English history is based on the struggle of the commons, mostly supported by the king, to gain rights and privileges held by the lords; and in every real struggle of that sort the influence of the crown has been on the side of the commons. Of course, that was wise of the crown, but it is the fact, and may to some extent explain the instinctive devotion of the common Englishman, who personally never has seen the king and never may see him, to the institution and to his person.

There is also the feeling that the king represents the country and to a less degree the empire, for the empire cuts a very small figure in the eyes of the British clerk or working man. Every nation must have a symbol of patriotism. To Americans it is the flag. Britons don't go in for much flag wagging and rather despise the worship of a bit of bunting, but they make up for it in the worship of a very ordinary kindly gentleman who happens to occupy the throne of his ancestors and who probably would be a great deal happier and more comfortable if he did not. He certainly would be richer, for in spite of the huge civil list voted him by parliament, he has to spend a lot of his private fortune to keep up the state and dignity expected and demanded by his loyal subjects. The people know this and appreciate it. They are getting their show for nothing, or at least at a cut price, and they are grateful to the king for putting it on.

These are undoubtedly some of the more abstruse reasons why the throne is in these days of revolution and upset more popular than it ever was.

Another is the personality of its occupant and of his family. George himself is a man of sterling common sense without brilliancy, of great industry, and a high sense of duty. He works hard at his job. He keeps in closest touch with public affairs, and although in accordance with the constitution he never interferes publicly, his advice is always at the service of his ministers, and, as he has been continually on the job for 25 years, his experience is valuable. His intervention on more than one occasion has stopped trouble or prevented trouble developing, and he has the confidence and respect of politicians of all parties. He is generally credited with insisting on the settlement of the Irish rebellion and later with suggesting the setting up of the present national government with the Socialist Macdonald at its head.

Sovereign Looks Upon His Subjects as His Children

It was no mere figure of speech when he said in his Christmas broadcast that he was speaking as a father to his family. He meant it, and most of his subjects who listened undoubtedly felt that way, too.

George V. has been fortunate in his family. If he can call himself the father of his people, Queen Mary can call herself their mother. As her husband is the typical English country gentleman, she is the typical British housewife. She loves playing the lady bountiful. There never has been a breath of scandal at her court. She frowns on extremes in dress and behavior and so pleases the good British bourgeois and his wife. Her daughter was married to an Englishman, and one of her sons married a Scottish girl, and in spite of all the artificial ballyhoo over the recent marriage of the duke of Kent to a Greco-Danish-Russian princess, there is no doubt that the marriages of the duke of York and the princess royal have been much more popular in England.

The sons of the king and queen also have given them little anxiety. There have been stories, of course, about the prince of Wales, but no serious scandals, and none at all about his three brothers. They are all hard-working young men. Any one of them is ready at any time to go on a trip to the ends of the empire, or the ends of the earth, which is the same thing, the real object of which is to sell British goods, to increase British prestige, or to clinch the loyalty of some far-flung possession, and it is hard work. The common British man therefore feels that he is getting value for his money out of the royal family.

Devotion a Compound of Practicality and Mysticism

To sum it all up, therefore, the devotion of the common Englishman to the throne seems to be a compound of practicality and mysticism, with mysticism perhaps predominating. That it is deliberately fomented by the authorities for the purpose of bolstering up the institution I don't think is true, because it is unnecessary. That it is taken advantage of to set an example to other countries where communism and Fascism are real dangers is undoubtedly the fact, but this is done in an unorganized and haphazard manner that often defeats itself. An instance of this was the recent wedding of the duke of Kent to Princess Marina of Greece. Never was there such an outpouring of sickly, washy sentiment, particularly difficult to understand because the bridegroom was the youngest son of the king, with hardly the slightest chance of succeeding to the throne, and the bride a very minor ex-princess. However, every organ of publicity in England—newspapers, films, radio, and all the rest—pitched in as if mobilized and everyone drew the moral that, whatever happened elsewhere, England was a monarchy and would continue to be so until the end of time. Newspaper men from all over the world poured into London to describe the ceremony and then were not allowed to do so. The astonishing decision was arrived at that the foreign press couldn't be interested in the abbey ceremony, and only a half dozen seats were set aside for foreign reporters. Instead, however, of boycotting the event, as might have been expected, the press of the world surpassed even the British press in slavering sentimentality over the wedding.

This is one of the facts that lead me to the opinion that the British ballyhoo of royalty is instinctive and not planned. Everything is left to chance or to the stupidity of some minor official. Perhaps the higher-ups trust the instinct of the people for loyalty and pageantry and deduce that to cater to them consciously is a waste of effort, but the fact is that they do not. During and for a few years after the war there was a real press agent at Buckingham palace. He was an Englishman who had spent some years in American journalism and understood publicity. There wasn't much he could do, but what he did he did well. Then he died and the job was given to a minor civil servant who regards it as his duty to suppress all news of the royal family and its movements except what is contained in the court circular. The court circular, however, is only given to the London Times and Reuter's agency. That the court news man has decided in his wisdom is enough. The Times, of course, is the Times, and any other paper or agency, British or foreign, which doesn't subscribe to Reuter's is just out of luck. That doesn't look much like conscious propaganda.

At first the foreign correspondent who gets up against this sort of thing boils over with rage at what he feels is deliberate insolence. It isn't insolent, however. It is just English.

Some of Monarch's Most Loyal Subjects in U. S.

And, after all, can Americans sneer greatly at the British for their devotion to British royalty? For the British it can be said that it is their own royalty. What about the hundreds of American women who fight, intrigue, plot, and pull wires every year for the chance to dress up with feathers in their hair and curtsy before the British king and queen at one of the three or four annual courts? Hundreds, even thousands, apply, but only about fifty can succeed, and that is just ten times as many as women of any other nationality. The British have been forced by constant American pressure to increase the American ambassador's allowance of presentations every year. Of course, they laugh, and so do the ambassadors of others nations, who have no such problem, but the pressure continues. And what of the state department, which in effect has made presentations at the British court part of a senator's patronage—not officially, of course, but effectively just the same? Some of the king's most loyal subjects are in the United States of America.

Mysterious Africa—Often Invaded, Never Conquered

Italy Challenges Fate in Ethiopian Crisis

primitive way, because the mental plane of its natives is so far removed from that of Europeans and Americans that it is revealed to those enlightened peoples much in the manner of a distant and impenetrable fog.

(In respect to the distribution of the 140 million Negroes, the map on page one of the northern part of Africa reveals in shaded portions those areas in which people of negroid blood predominate.)

Africa for the most part has a climate that saps the energy of white men and wrecks their ambitions. It is teeming with bugs that bite and sting and spread diseases that incapacitate and kill. It has thousands and thousands of miles of jungles in which dwell in the fashion of beasts the lowest forms of mankind. It has impassable mountain ranges, almost impassable wastes of sands, swamps, canyons, and ravines, and rivers that in the rainy season turn in a twinkling from tiny brooks into raging floods.

It is a combination of these all—its people, its terrain, its climate, and its fever-bearing insects—that makes it unconquerable Africa.

Not purely, of course, in a military sense is the continent unconquerable. Modern troops in many cases can thrash simple savages soundly and with dispatch once and twice and many times. It is what happens after invaders are victorious that spells the doom of conquest there. The subtle and insidious forces that make Africa so mysterious, so inhospitable, then set in. The white man implanted in Africa, in all but the most favorable spots, goes backward. The dry rot of degeneration gets him, even if the assagai, the poisoned arrow, or the tsetse fly pass him by. Should he be strong enough to remain and multiply, his descendants are not his equal; the decline becomes more perceptible with each generation. Finally comes a time when the influence of the desert or the jungle triumphs.

So it really matters not in the end whether alien designs on Africa are blighted in a bloody massacre, such as that at Dogali in 1887, or frazzle out in a prolonged surrender to the inevitable—the story is the same except for details.

Take the case of the country which officially is Ethiopia and geographically Abyssinia—the country that has refused to quake in fear at the thunder of Mussolini's voice. Its people are a union of Semitic and Hamitic stock, with an admixture of Negro. How strong the Negro blood in them really is can be seen in their color, ranging from a hue slightly lighter than chocolate to a pure ebony. That shows in itself what happened to the ancient Semites who settled there in the long ago. Ethiopia (a name connected with antiquity and applied in modern times to the only independent state in Africa with the exception of little Liberia) is an old land, so old, indeed, that it is mentioned frequently in the records of ancient Egypt. There were periods in which Ethiopia and Egypt were ruled by the same king.

The Ethiopian tradition of the queen of Sheba who visited King Solomon and bore a son by him (Menelik), from whom the later kings claimed descent, and the legend of Prester John, the mysterious Christian king, date the last remaining independent kingdom in Africa as a land of great age. Christianity was entrenched there before Mohammed was born. The Ethiopians once surged into Arabia in a conquering tide, only to ebb back before the Moslems. Subjects of Negusa Nagast (Ethiopian king of kings) have clashed with Portuguese, French, and British, and still they are unconquered. And now their interests conflict with those of the Italians, who appeared upon the scene only yesterday—in the seventies, to be more exact.

Egypt, at present under the domination of Great Britain, reveals in its past more completely, perhaps, than any other division of the continent how ineffectual and temporary have been alien aims in Africa, how unconquerable Africa actually has been throughout recorded history.

Egypt as a nation arose before the beginning of recorded history Even at that early date its people were cultivators, builders, artisans, and priests, and not to be confused, because they were Africans, with the simple savages that still inhabit the jungles. This likewise holds true for a considerable proportion of the people of Ethiopia of the present day, who are on a higher plane than the witch-ridden folk of the interior.

The dawn of Egypt is shrouded in myths of fearful gods and goddeses, but it is known to be a fact that the nation was an old one when King Sneferu built the pyramid of Medum, possibly as early at 4750 B. C. King Menes, founder of the first dynasty, was born many centuries after the establishment of kings and their kingdoms in the valley of the Nile. It is nearly 3,500 years since there reigned in Egypt the great King Thotmes III., who conquered Palestine and Syria, overthrew the Hittites, and placed his nation at the height of its power. Rameses II., who lived in the thirteenth century before Christ and also subdued Palestine and Syria, is believed to have been the Pharaoh of Israel's oppression. And Moses led the children of Israel out of Egypt 500 to 650 years before the legendary founding of Rome by Romulus and Remus. These men and events are mentioned in order to permit the reader to establish clearly in his mind the great antiquity of a land that dates back in history and prehistory at least as far as that other ancient land, Mesopotamia.

Syrians from time to time overran Egypt in the misty long ago. But it was not until about 670 B. C. that Assyria, under the king Esarhaddon, annexed the country of the Nile. No sooner were the Assyrians cast out than the Persian hordes under Cambyses rolled into Egypt in rumbling war chariots. The Persians held the country interruptedly from about 525 B. C. to about 373 B. C., when Pharnabazus, Persian general, executed his historic retreat from the Nile.

Because of the Assyrian and Persian tyrannies the Egyptians should have been pretty well fed up with alien ways. But when Alexander the Great (his route is shown on the map on page one) appeared upon the scene in 332 B. C. they welcomed him with open arms. For three hundred years then Egypt was under Grecian domination under the reign of the Ptolemies, from the first Ptolemy, one of Alexander's trusted generals, down to the glamorous Cleopatra, charmer of Cæsar and Antony.

In 30 B. C. Augustus took Egypt, and from that time on for more than six hundred years the country was under the rule of Rome, the rule of Christian Copts, or under virtually no rule at all. In A. D. 639 a new wave of foreigners bent on conquest swarmed into the land. Soldiers under the banners of Omar, the second caliph of Islam, took Alexandria, a city founded by Alexander the Great, on Nov. 8, 641. They founded another city in the region, the start of the present modern city of Cairo.

From 639 to 968 Egypt was a province of the eastern caliphate. In 969 the Fatimites won the country. And in 1171 Egypt again was absorbed into the Abbasid empire by Saladin, the Kurdish adventurer. In 1517 the land of the ancient Pharaohs was swallowed up by the Ottoman empire, the seat of government of which was Constantinople. Various groups of Mohammedans, including at the last the Turks, thus held Egypt with brief interruptions from 639 to 1914, when Turkish suzerainty was abolished and a British protectorate proclaimed.

French designs on Egypt were nipped quickly in 1801 when Napoleon's invasion ended so disastrously.

While this history of failures at conquest was being made in Egypt, similar history was in the making along the whole northern coast of Africa. There were the seafaring Phœnicians, who appeared in the picture as early as 1000 or 900 B. C. and settled along the Mediterranean coast; the Greeks, who made colonies not only in Egypt but to the west of Egypt; the Romans, who at one period in their history controled almost all of the continent known to man at that time; the Vandals; the eastern Romans; the Portuguese; and in modern days the Spaniards, French, Italians, and Turks.

Carthage, one of the wonder cities of all times, was founded in northern Africa by the Phœnicians in 822 B. C. Its ships sailed to all parts of the known world. Its navigators, including Hanno, who sailed from Carthage around the west coast as far as Sierra Leone in 520 B. C., were the first of the great discoverers. Three costly wars with the Romans, a serious revolt by mercenaries in the pay of Carthage, and trouble with savages in bordering lands finally spelled the doom of this great city and its tributary lands. As a Carthaginian city it ceased to exist after the third Punic war.

Some time in the spring of A. D. 428 Gaiseric, chief of the Vandals, a mixture of Teutonic tribes, assembled his people on the shores of Andalusia and conveyed them (80,000 males, history says; females not mentioned) in ships lent by Bonifacius, count of Africa, to the shores of northern Africa. On Oct. 19, 439, Gaiseric seized the rebuilt city of Carthage, then a Roman city, third in size in the whole of the Roman empire, and sixteen years later captured and looted Rome itself. Excesses of his men in Rome were responsible for the term vandal being attached to those who destroy wantonly. It was a famous Roman general, one Belisarius, who finally overthrew the Vandal empire in 533.

The western Roman empire in Africa succumbed to the wave of Moslems that swept westward from Arabia. By A. D. 750 Mohammedanism was firmly implanted in the whole of northern Africa and had reached up into Spain. Virtually all known areas of the continent, therefore, were in the grip of Islam when the age of discovery dawned. The Portuguese and the Spaniards pushed over into Africa and founded a few insignificant colonies, finally sailing their ships around the Cape of Good Hope. But the discovery of America took European minds away from the great continent at the south. It was not until about the beginning of the nineteenth century that Europe again became interested in Africa.

The nineteenth century and a few years preceding it were the era of exploration in Africa. Beginning with James Bruce and Mungo Park and including Dr. David Livingstone, Henry Stanley, and many others, some of whose routes are shown on the map on page one, explorers traced a network of paths over the sprawling continent.

French acquisition of Algeria in 1848, their seizure of Tunisia in 1881, their establishment of a protectorate over Morocco in 1912, and the extension of their influence over the western half of the Sahara in recent years are matched in a way by Italian exploitation in Tripolitania and Cyrenaica and the formation, by uniting the two regions, of a new Libya—a country that even today is not completely resigned to the Mussolini form of domination. Madrid's ambitions in Africa have been fading since the fairly recent and fatal experience of a Spanish army with the terrible Riffs. France hangs on around a sizable part of the whole fringe of the continent. England, in the typical English way, controls the lion's share of Africa. Germany and Turkey are completely out since the World war. Belgium has the unhealthy tropical Belgian Congo. Portugal, with small possessions, nowadays plays a minor rôle on the continent. Italy seeks expansion there. And still left as independent states are the kingdom of Ethiopia and little republican Liberia.

How Glass Is Molded to the Modern Age

By Thomas M. Beck

ON THE whole nature was very kind in endowing mankind with useful and necessary materials. But she overlooked giving us a plentiful supply of a strong, transparent solid. Of course, there are diamonds and quartz and rock crystal, but they are too scarce and too hard to work with to supply our need for such a material. So it was up to man to find a way to meet this deficiency, with the result that glass was invented.

The Egyptians, who probably invented glass, simply molded it into the shapes in which they desired it. The Romans developed the art of glass blowing and attained a craftsmanship that scarcely has been equaled since. During the middle ages the art was revived in Italy and central Europe, and the practice of using glass in windows first appeared, although the windows usually consisted of small pieces of glass leaded together, since the glass workers had not learned how to form the material into full pane sizes.

The word glass has two different meanings. In a broader sense it takes in all hard, brittle, noncrystaline substances that do not melt sharply, but soften gradually on heating, and includes even such organic products as certain resins. In its more limited, commonly accepted meaning, however, it refers to the various mixtures of certain minerals used in the fabrication of such divers articles as spectacles, bottles, and window panes.

It usually surprises most people to learn that such a hard substance as glass is not a solid, strictly speaking. A true solid should have two characteristic properties—a crystaline form and a sharply defined melting temperature, above which it is defintly a liquid and below which it is unquestionably solid. Glass does not have either of these properties. It is more like an extremely thick-flowing liquid. Sometimes, when softened a little by heat and subjected to mechanical strains, it partly crystalizes. However, this is to be avoided, since it detracts from both the appearance and the strength of the glass.

Glass is made by melting certain minerals. Its exact composition varies according to the purpose for which it is intended, and in spite of similar outward appearances, different kinds of glass may differ greatly from one another in respect to ingredients. Ordinary window or bottle glass, which is much the same as that used by the ancients, is made by fusing a mixture of about six parts of silica (otherwise known as sand or quartz), one part of soda, and one part of lime. Potash glass, used for fine tableware, contains potash instead of the soda. A mixture of four parts silica, one part potash, and two parts of lead oxide gives lead glass, a soft, weak, low-melting glass which because of its clearness and sparkle is used for such decorative objects as cut glass and imitation diamonds.

It was not the cost of the materials that formerly made glass a luxury, however. Since it is hard and brittle in the solid state and a thick, molasseslike fluid when heated, it cannot be cast, nor bent, nor forged into desired shapes. It must be blown, and this used to require the hard labor of many highly skilled workmen. At present, while the better grade of goblets and vases and such still is made by hand, machines have taken over the manufacture of the less delicate but more utilitarian articles, such as milk and beer bottles.

Such a bottle-blowing machine is a fascinating thing. It dips a thick steel tube into a crucible of molten glass and sucks up enough of the liquid to form a bottle. When this hot, viscous fluid has cooled enough so that it can just support its own weight it is removed from the tube and placed in a mold of the desired shape and then inflated with air until it takes the shape of the mold.

Glass panes for windows are made by dipping a horizontal metal rod below the surface of the molten glass and raising it upward. The glass adheres to it and is drawn out in the form of a sheet. Plate glass, which must be free from bubbles and surface imperfections, still is made by pouring molten glass on a flat surface, rolling it into shape, cooling and annealing it, and then carefully grinding and polishing the surface.

One of the chief drawbacks to the use of glass for building purposes is that, while relatively quite strong, it yields to excessive stresses by shattering into dangerously sharp fragments. This problem has been solved to a fairly satisfactory degree by the development of shatterproof glass. Of course, such glass is by no means a new thing. It has long been customary to reinforce certain kinds of glass with woven chicken wire, but panes of this type were decidedly less beautiful than useful. The present-day shatterproof glass consists of two pieces of plate glass between which is sandwiched a thin sheet of tough, transparent resinous material. A pane like this will break as easily as any other kind of glass, but the sheet of tough binding material keeps the glass fragments from flying.

Bulletproof glass is a laminated material of much the same type. In addition to the other components mentioned, however, it has an unusually thick layer of plate glass sandwiched inside. This layer is too thick to be pierced by a bullet, and the binding material keeps it from being shattered.

Glass bottles for milk are cheap and thoroughly sanitary, thus providing a safeguard of public health.

It is possible that our civilization might still endure without such relative luxuries as windows, bottles, or even bulletproof glass. It is inconceivable that it could do so, however, without optical glass. Modern medicine could not have come into being without the microscope, and modern science and technology are completely dependent upon a number of similar instruments.

Optical glass is the most expensive made, since much care must be used not only in its manufacture but also in the selection of the materials from which it is made. There are many different kinds of optical glass, divided into two main classes, the crown and the flint types. The necessity for these two types is due to the fact that a pure glass lens not only bends the light rays passing through it but also separates them to a slight extent into their component colors. The result is that the image from such a lens has blurred and colored outlines. Now, the ratio of this color-dispersing power to the bending power is considerably different for the crown and the flint glasses. Consequently it is possible to make a composite lens of the two kinds of glass, so arranged that one cancels out the other's undesired dispersion but not its focusing power.

One of the chief objections to glass for many purposes is that it cannot be heated. This is because the heated part expands, thereby setting up strains that the brittle glass cannot withstand. Glass of the type used for cooking, containing borax and more than the ordinary amount of silica, has a much lower expansion when heated and as a result may be subjected to much greater temperature changes without danger of breaking. Thick-walled articles can be made from it more easily, since it does not need to be annealed as carefully as ordinary glass.

If an increased silica content brings all these benefits, why not try using pure silica? It has been tried, and laboratory utensils made from it can be heated red-hot and plunged into ice water without cracking. Unfortunately, silica has such a high melting point that it is a highly expensive matter to make such articles.

Various metallic salts may be added to glass to give it color. For example, it can be colored blue by cobalt, red by copper or gold, and green by iron. If it were within our power to see those two invisible colors, the infrared and the ultraviolet, we would say that ordinary glass is colored infrared. In other words, glass lets much of the infrared through but is opaque to ultraviolet. This state of affairs is hardly an unmixed blessing, since the infrared makes its presence known to us sometimes by a feeling of unnecessary warmth. Moreover, it sometimes is necessary to have a glass that is permeable to the ultraviolet, for such purposes as lenses for high-power microscopes or bulbs for ultraviolet lamps. This failing has been corrected in the former case by the use of certain special glasses containing iron, which takes out the infrared.

For the ultraviolet it has been found that the more silica the glass contains the better this radiation comes through. Consequently pure silica is used instead of glass for many purposes, and there are now on the market certain high-silica glasses for use as window panes, so that lovers of indoors need no longer be deprived of the health-giving ultraviolet rays from the sun. This last constitutes a real advance in science, as it makes sun baths available to even the most prudish.

Scientific Queries Answered

Mr. Beck will be glad to answer questions of scientific nature. Address Thomas M. Beck, Graphic Section, Chicago Tribune. For personal reply, inclose stamped, addressed envelope.

I have often heard, "It is too cold to snow." Now, just how could it get too cold to snow? Isn't a low temperature necessary to form these crystals?—E. S., Chicago.

Of course, snow could not be formed at a temperature above 32 degrees. But snow is the result of water vapor being cooled below this temperature before it has time to condense to a liquid. The capacity of the air to hold water vapor increases very rapidly with rising temperatures. Consequently very cold air has very little water vapor in it; and while it is not impossible to have snow under such conditions, it is not particularly likely. The best condition for snow is a relatively warm, moist atmosphere being suddenly cooled by a change of wind.

Hollywood's Latest Dance Hit—It's Called the Viennese

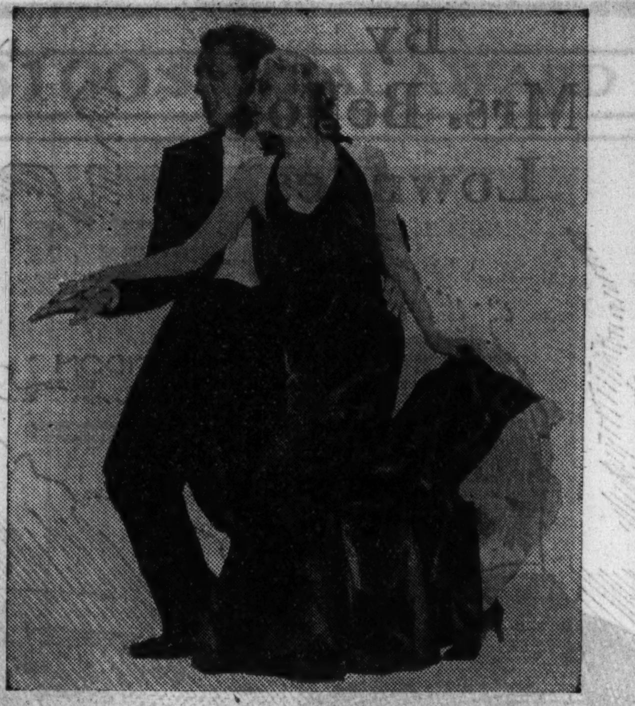
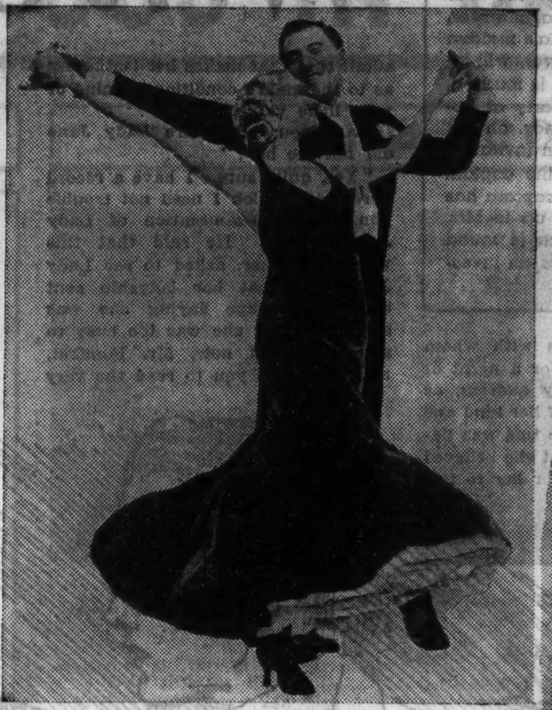
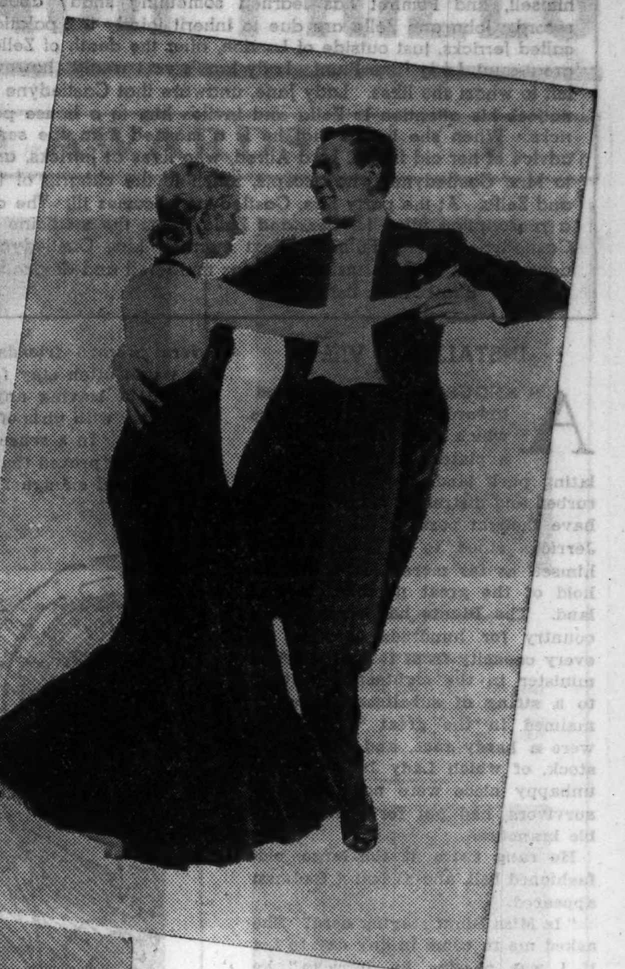
2 In this position they waltz in a circle for eight measures, right arms extended and dipping every third beat.



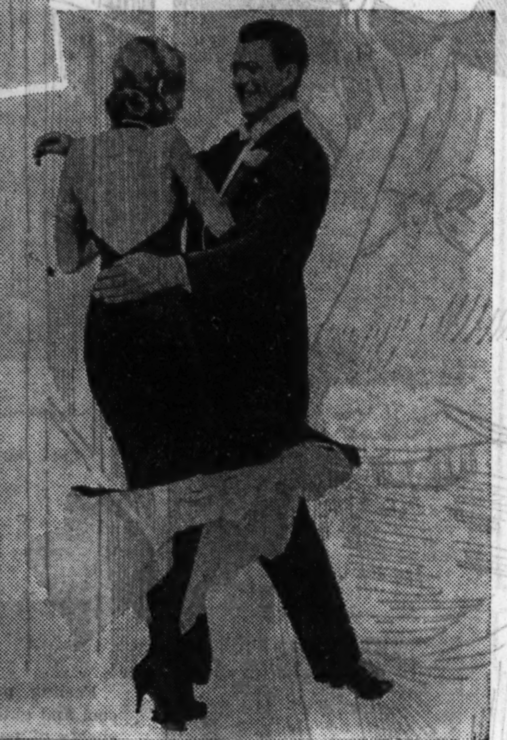
3 Conclusion of eighth measure. The dancers bend opposite knees. The man slowly turns his partner from his right side to his left in this position.



4 Girl glides in front of her partner and they sweep in a huge circle for eight beats, arms dipping in time to the music.



5 They then dance in a straight line down the floor, turning their bodies from side to side in opposite directions to give a grapevine effect, for four or eight measures.



6 Music turns to definite Viennese. The dancers circle the floor. On each measure the girl turns, while the man changes his arm to alternating waist positions on each measure. The girl turns to the count of one-two-three, the man remaining on the inside of the circle, finishing the eighth measure in regular dance position.

8 In this position, the conclusion for ballroom, the dancers fall into conventional position, the girl bending back and the man finishing the movement leaning over her.

Something for Nothing, the Bait Used in Superswindles

Story of Drake Estate Fraud and Others

By JOSEPH U. DUGAN

ELUSIVE as the fabled pot of gold at the end of the rainbow is realization of the average human being's desire to get something for nothing. The old gold brick swindle today is considered a joke. Yet, incredible as it seems, thousands of Americans have contributed literally millions of hard-earned dollars to swindle schemes quite obviously as absurd.

For many years the most successful—to promoters—of such schemes in this country have been the numerous and usually profitable efforts of unscrupulous attorneys, genealogists, and other individuals to organize the "heirs" of supposedly fabulous estates for the purpose, ostensibly, of obtaining through litigation legal titles to the billions allegedly contained in the estates for the "heirs."

Most gigantic fraud of this nature in terms of the number of victims and the amount of money they lost was the Sir Francis Drake estate swindle. There is evidence that as early as 1847 gullible Americans, persuaded that they were descendants of the famous Elizabethan admiral, paid fees and contributed money toward "cost of litigation" in the vain hope that they would share in millions of dollars of money and property supposedly contained in the estate of the early British naval hero.

In the last fifty years promoters of this scheme have been active in almost every state of the Union. Hundreds of victims who could claim no kinship to the Drake family were induced to buy "shares" of the claims of so-called legitimate heirs.

In spite of repeated official denials in England of the existence of a fabulous Drake estate, the promoters of the scheme in America continued to do a flourishing business. They told victims and would-be heirs that official denials were made merely for the purpose of raising legal barriers and that in spite of them the Drake property and millions "held in escrow" by the Bank of England soon would be distributed among the "heirs" and shareholders.

Then during the ten years between 1923-1933 operations of Drake estate promoters, chiefly in the middle west, reached fantastic proportions. So many letters of inquiry, most of them from persons who had been victimized, reached the British government and the American embassy at London that official notice of the matter was taken by the two governments. A joint investigation was begun by Scotland Yard and representatives of the American state department.

This inquiry revealed the "brains" of the swindle to be one Oscar M. Hartzell, former Iowa farmer, resident in London. In ten years Hartzell's agents had sent him approximately $1,300,000. When it is considered that the agents, too, were making a good living out of the fake promotion, the total sum taken from the victims may be imagined. After completing its investigation the British government ordered Hartzell deported as an undesirable alien. Once back in the United States, he was arrested on a federal charge, tried in Iowa, and convicted and sentenced to serve ten years in Leavenworth penitentiary. An appeal was denied.

It was shown at Hartzell's trial that every promise made by the various promoters of the Drake estate swindle was false. The great Elizabethan admiral died childless, hence he had no direct descendants. His widow and a nephew inherited the estate, which since has been legally handed down to descendants of the nephew. Today the estate, heavily incumbered, is estimated to be worth less than $200,000. The statement that the Bank of England held

How Chadwick Woman Duped Ohio Banks

"millions in cash" belonging to the estate was branded as pure myth. The Bank of England never has held unclaimed funds of any estate.

In view of the publicity given this and other similar schemes, it would seem unlikely that anyone ever again would contribute money toward any effort, organized or not, in the hope of getting a huge return on such a chimerical speculation. Surprisingly, that is far from the case. For several years authorities of New York state were deluged with letters from persons who claimed to be interested in the "$850,000,000 Buchanan estate," which they understood was about to be distributed to the heirs. No such estate ever existed, but hundreds of persons gave promoters good money in hopes of sharing in the mythical millions.

No fewer than 15,000 persons, all believing themselves to be descendants of Charles Christopher Springer, an early settler of Wilmington, Del., were interested not long ago in a scheme to obtain title to Wilmington property which they valued at $500,000,000. The attempt, like the others, was a failure.

Another "estate" made famous by the numerous futile attempts on the part of organized "heirs" to obtain it is known as the Aneke Jans Bogardus and as the Bogardus-Webber-Edwards estate. Claims of various groups of "heirs" to this fabled estate have been denied repeatedly in the courts, but today large groups of persons in the United States and Canada still persist in the belief that they will gain great wealth through their claims. The "heirs" believe their representatives can prove they are the rightful owners of the property of Trinity church, New York, which owns valuable real estate in downtown Manhattan. The church's title to its land, a direct grant from Queen Anne in 1705, has been held unassailable.

Only a few years ago scores of Chicagoans were duped into believing that they were the rightful owners of a large part of the city of Montreal, Canada, as descendants of Lieutenant Tessier-Levigne, described as one of the founders of the city. Their hopes were soon dashed.

Another large group of "heirs," desiring the so-called Edwards estate, in addition to claiming the property of Trinity church in New York also believe they are the rightful owners of Central park, the large wooded area in the heart of that city.

Trinity church, New York City, the property of which has been used by swindlers in duping various groups of "heirs."

Few if any of these organized "estate" fishing expeditions have had the slightest legal basis, and too few of them have resulted in criminal prosecutions of promoters. Most of the victims hate to admit even to themselves that they have been duped. They rely instead on a diminishing hope that some day they will come into their "inheritances."

Many other "estate" recovery schemes have been launched from time to time. Celebrated among them were the swindles known as the "heart of Philadelphia" case and the Mark Hopkins "estate" case.

The Philadelphia swindle was an effort to obtain possession for a huge number of "heirs" of the so-called Coates-Coppock estate, pictured to the victims as containing large tracts of the most valuable Philadelphia business property. Several of the promoters of this scheme were prosecuted. The Mark Hopkins case was similar. The promoters led the "heirs" of Mark Hopkins, an early California gold prospector, to believe that they were entitled to a gold mine once owned by their "ancestor." The mine, of course, was pictured as being worth millions.

Perhaps the most celebrated international swindle is that known as the old Spanish prisoner game. It has been operated at various times over a great number of years. Authorities of several nations have made vigorous but to date unsuccessful attempts to catch the swindlers, who are believed to be members of an organized gang. It also has been considered possible that several gangs have engaged in the same swindle, operating independently of each other. Their methods, however, have varied only slightly.

The selected victim, usually a well-to-do resident of a small city, receives a letter from Spain. The sender asserts that he is a distant relative of the victim and that he is in a Spanish prison for a political offense. He is in poor health and is fearful for the safety of his 16-year-old daughter. He has a comfortable fortune (from $100,000 to $250,000), at the moment hidden in a secret place. If the victim will take care of his sweet and helpless daughter the prisoner will gladly give him a fourth of his fortune. The victim is then directed to send his answer to a certain Spanish address, where the letter will be recived by a friend of the prisoner, who will smuggle it to him. If the victim replies he receives in time a second letter. This purports to come from a priest, who informs the victim that the poor prisoner is dead. Inclosed is a note from the 16-year-old daughter, tearfully pleading for protection from her dear "relative." The priest offers to bring the girl to America and to recover from its secret hiding place the deceased prisoner's fortune. In order to arrange all the details, however, he must have an advance of $1,500. When the victim sends the money it is the last he hears of the affair. Hundreds of victims in this country, England, Holland, Germany, and other countries have been swindled through this scheme.

Another swindle having an international aspect is the cable racket. The racketeers select as the victim a wealthy business man known to be in Europe. His secretary in this country receives a cable, supposedly sent by the business man, which informs the secretary that a Mr. Jones will deliver certain merchandise to the office. The secretary is instructed to accept the merchandise and to pay Mr. Jones.

Mr. Jones, who, of course, is a member of the gang, delivers a bulky package and presents a bill, usually for $1,000 or more. If the secretary pays him the swindle is completed. The package contains only trash.

Many gangs of swindlers have used women as lures for their intended victims, but seldom has a woman become independently a major criminal figure. Perhaps the most notorious woman swindler of all time was Madame Humbert of France, who swindled millions from men of great wealth and high rank. America, however, produced a woman swindler whose exploits were generally compared with those of Madame Humbert. She was Mrs. Cassie Chadwick, who amassed several million dollars dishonestly before she was caught and convicted of forgery. She died in prison in 1907.

Mrs. Chadwick posed as a clairvoyant and was twice convicted of forgery before she was married to a respectable Cleveland physician in 1896. He was Dr. Leroy Chadwick. Soon after this marriage, her third, Mrs. Chadwick began her questionable ventures into high finance.

On forged notes amounting to $1,250,000 (she signed the notes with the name Andrew Carnegie) Mrs. Chadwick obtained huge loans from a bank in Oberlin, O. The bank was wrecked. Similarly she almost wrecked another bank in Cleveland. From several eastern financiers she obtained other huge loans on fictitious collateral. Some of the loans were partly repaid, but most of the money was spent by Mrs. Chadwick on clothes, jewelry, extensive travels, and luxurious living. At the time of the Oberlin bank crash in 1904 she was arrested and at the subsequent trial in Cleveland she was convicted and sentenced to serve ten years in the Ohio penitentiary, where she died.

Who Rides On a Tiger

By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

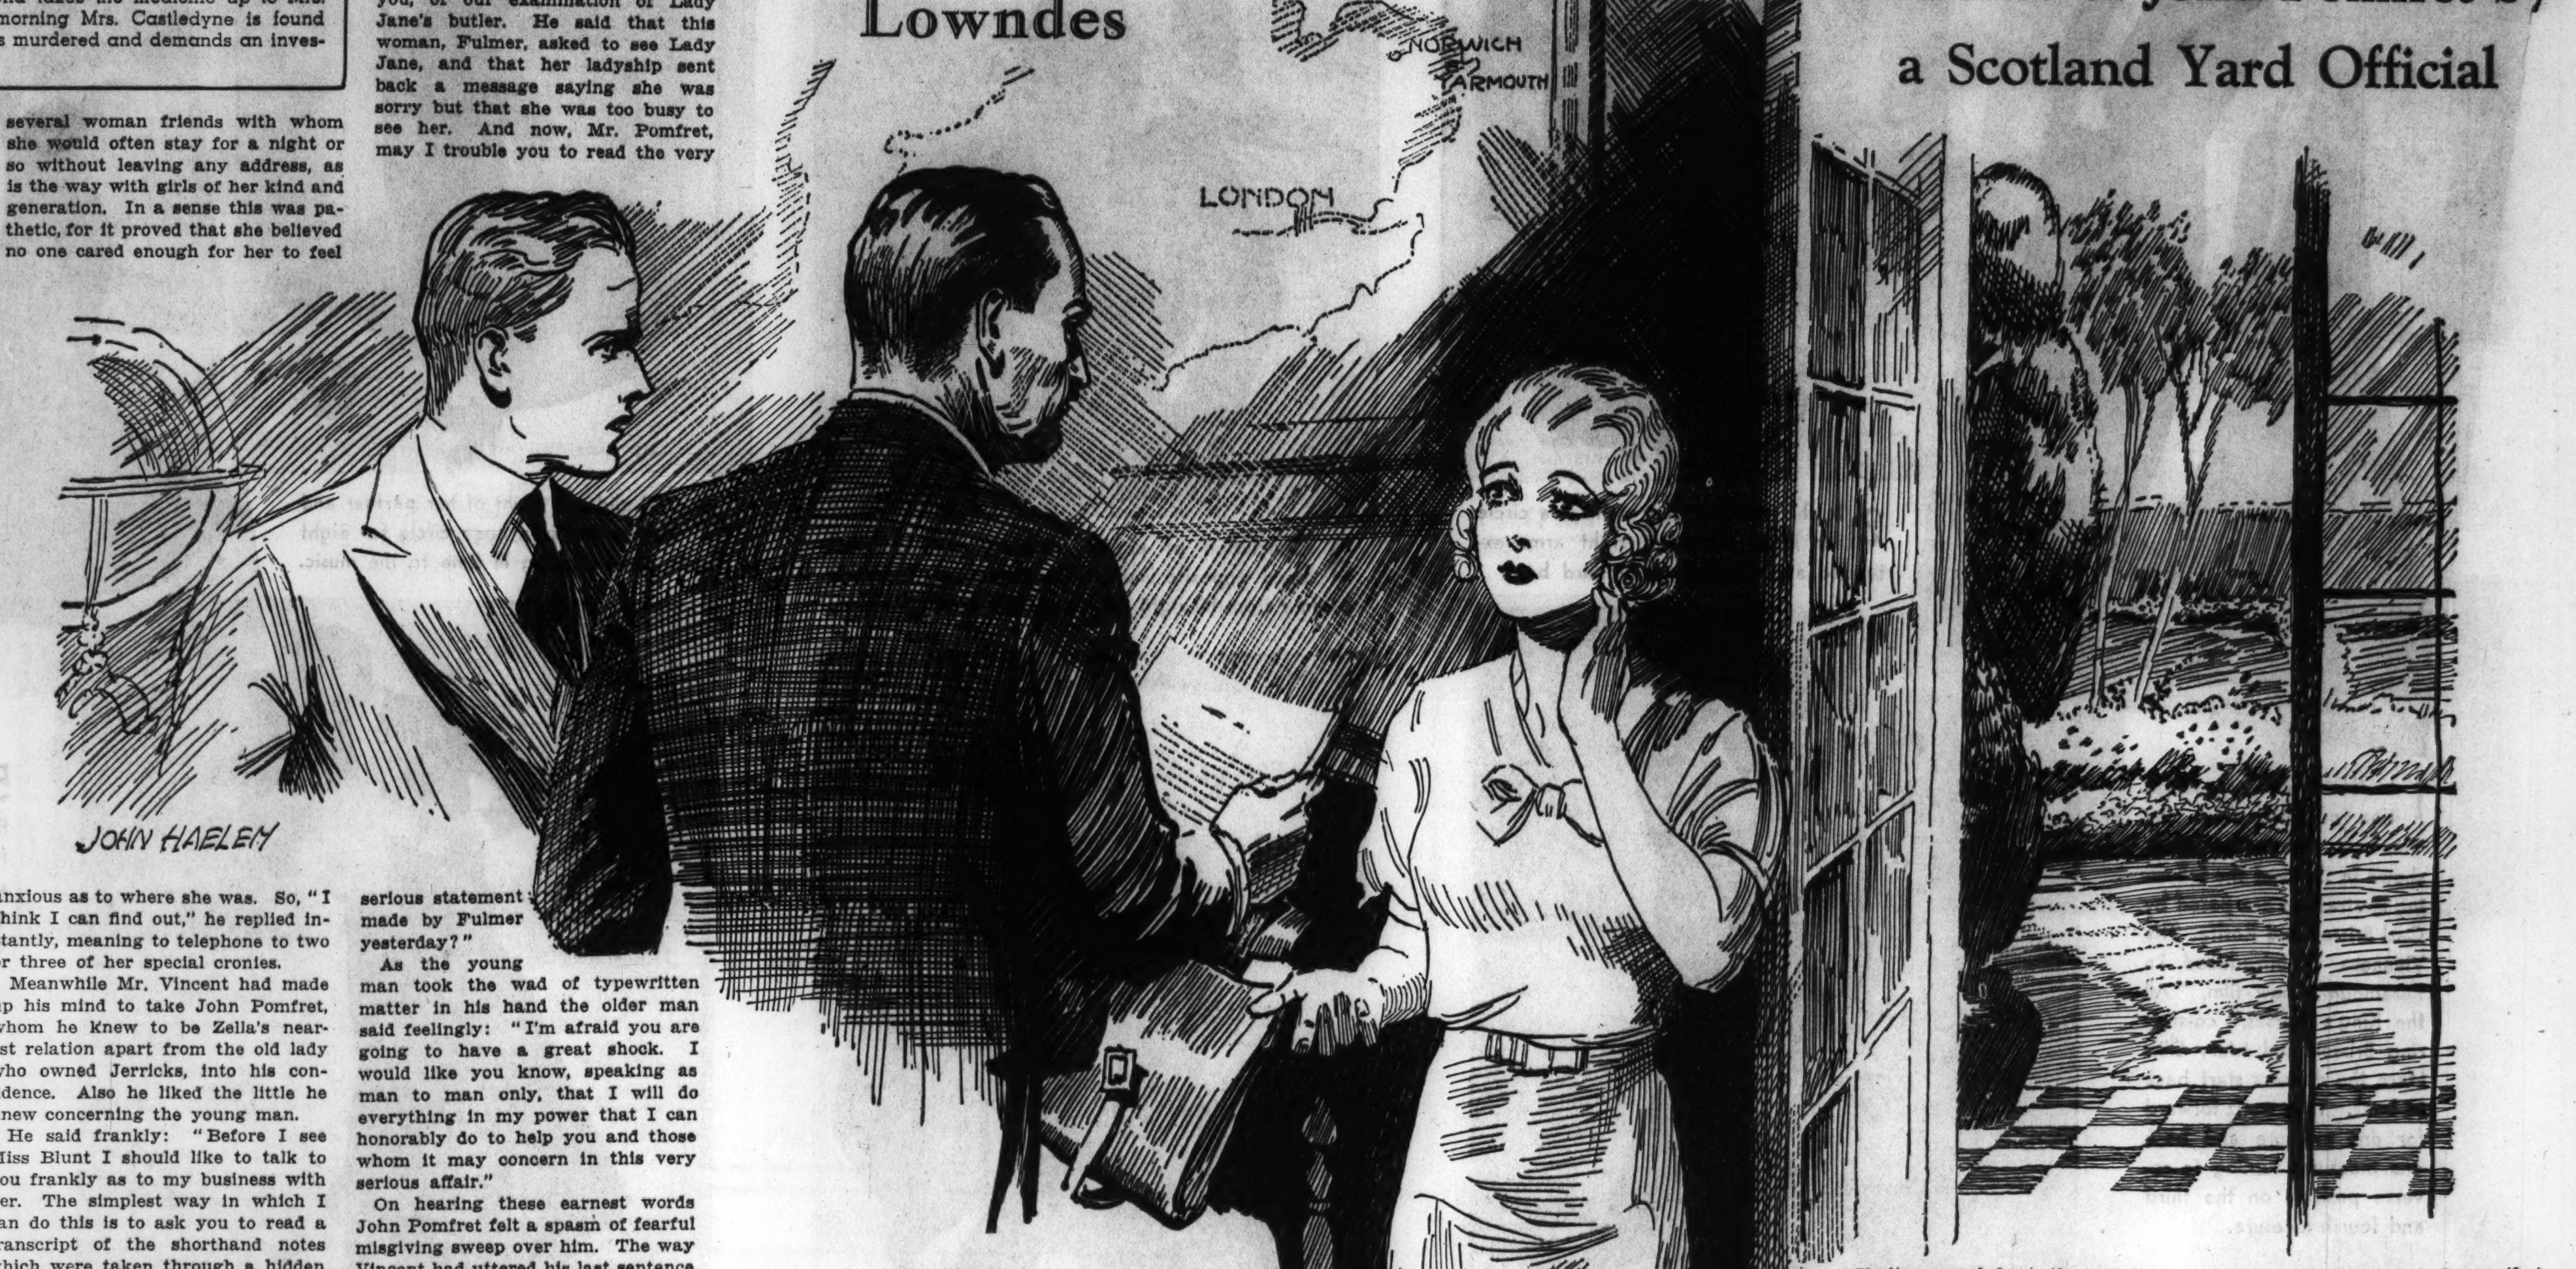
THE STORY TO DATE

Zella Blunt is warned by her older second cousin, John Pomfret, against Capt. Broke Castledyne, who has been escorting Zella about London. Castledyne is married to a wealthy woman years older than himself, and Pomfret has learned something shady about his war record. John and Zella are due to inherit jointly the palatial mansion called Jerricks, just outside of London, after the death of Zella's maiden great-aunt, Lady Jane Blunt. Lady Jane's vast wealth, however, will be left to whom she likes. Lady Jane, unaware that Castledyne is married, notices his attention to Zella and invites him to a house party at Jerricks. When she learns that he is a married man she sends, on the advice of her old friend, Lord Alfred, who lives at Jerricks, an invitation to Mrs. Castledyne, who accepts, much to the chagrin of the captain and Zella. At the party Mrs. Castledyne becomes ill. The captain has a prescription filled for her, and Zella takes the medicine up to Mrs. Castledyne's maid, Fulmer. Next morning Mrs. Castledyne is found dead in bed. Fulmer insists she was murdered and demands an investigation. She blames Zella.



"Before I ask you certain questions, Miss Blunt, read this statement."

INSTALMENT VIII.

AS ANGUS VINCENT motored toward the huge house which rose four-square on a plateau above the undulating park lands he felt more disturbed and distressed than he would have thought possible till yesterday. Jerricks stood to such a man as himself as far more than a stronghold of the great nobility of England. The Blunts had served their country for hundreds of years in every capacity from that of a prime minister in the eighteenth century to a string of subalterns killed or maimed in the great war. They were a hardy race, and the parent stock, of which Lady Jane and her unhappy niece were now the only survivors, had put forth innumerable branches.

He rang twice at the large, old-fashioned bell, and at last a footman appeared.

"Is Miss Blunt staying here? She asked me to come in any day to tea if I was passing by Jerricks," he said pleasantly.

"Miss Blunt is in London, sir. But we expect her this evening. Her ladyship is away, too."

He felt keenly vexed, and also vaguely surprised. A call had been put through to Jerricks in a woman's voice, asking if Miss Blunt would be in that afternoon. And the answer, after some delay, had been "yes."

Had the girl committed the fatal mistake of trying to hide herself? If so, the press might have to be asked to help. Indeed, she would even maybe hear herself described as "missing and wanted" over the radio. Her one chance was to pose as the victim of an extraordinary chain of unfortunate coincidences, in which the chemist who had made up the prescription might be made to play a part. Though Fulmer's piece of white wrapping paper with that clean slit through the fat blob of red sealing wax was very, very ominous.

"Would you like to see Mr. Pomfret, sir? He's going to London, but he hasn't yet started. In fact, he's just going to have tea served in the smoking room."

ANGUS VINCENT'S face cleared. Come! This was a bit of good fortune not only for him but for the girl he could not help wishing to save from the frightful alternative fate of being "hanged by the neck until she be dead," as the legal phraseology has it, or of spending twenty years, that is, the whole of her youth, in prison. For his part he would prefer the gallows tree.

"A gentleman to see you, sir. He expected to find Miss Zella here."

Now, though the whole place was seething with the excitement of what was already called in more than one of the popular papers "the Jerricks mystery," it never occurred to the young footman that this pleasant looking friend of Miss Zella's could be even remotely connected with the inquiry now going on into Mrs. Castledyne's death by poison.

John Pomfret knew at once why Angus Vincent had come to Jerricks this afternoon, for he was aware of the visitor's post in the C. I. D. But he was shocked, indeed horrified, to hear that Mr. Vincent had come here to see Zella.

"Can you tell me, Mr. Pomfret, where Miss Blunt is staying in London? It is urgent, in her own interest, that I see her as soon as possible."

Pomfret's forebodings turned into acute fear. Then she was going to be dragged into this most horrible affair? Unfortunately he had no idea where Zella might be now. She had several woman friends with whom she would often stay for a night or so without leaving any address, as is the way with girls of her kind and generation. In a sense this was pathetic, for it proved that she believed no one cared enough for her to feel anxious as to where she was. So, "I think I can find out," he replied instantly, meaning to telephone to two or three of her special cronies.

Meanwhile Mr. Vincent had made up his mind to take John Pomfret, whom he knew to be Zella's nearest relation apart from the old lady who owned Jerricks, into his confidence. Also he liked the little he knew concerning the young man.

He said frankly: "Before I see Miss Blunt I should like to talk to you frankly as to my business with her. The simplest way in which I can do this is to ask you to read a transcript of the shorthand notes which were taken through a hidden microphone of an interview which occurred at Scotland Yard yesterday between the late Mrs. Castledyne's confidential maid and myself."

"I am grateful to you for allowing me to see these notes, but before I look at them may I tell you that Lady Jane Blunt, who is a very intelligent and shrewd woman, is convinced that this maid—her name, I think, is Fulmer—is suffering from a painful and dangerous delusion? We know she was convinced from the first that someone in this house poisoned her mistress. Mrs. Castledyne's doctor told Lady Jane that this was so on the very morning following Mrs. Castledyne's death."

"Unfortunately," observed Vincent quietly, "the woman happened to be right when she asserted her mistress had died an unnatural death. No one then believed her, not even Dr. Holland himself. I have had that from his own lips."

"That's true, Mr. Vincent. The poor woman's conviction that Mrs. Castledyne was poisoned turned out to be true. Where she went wrong was declaring that Mrs. Castledyne's death was brought about by someone belonging to this house. She told the doctor she believed she knew who the person was, but she obstinately refused to reveal the person's name. I thought she suspected the captain," continued Pomfret. "But she told some of the servants that she did not suspect him."

"All you say is known to me, and I am making a note of Lady Jane Blunt's impression as to the woman's mental condition," said Vincent.

He waited a moment. "I believe I am correct in saying that, unfortunately, Lady Jane never actually saw Miss Fulmer. I think you will admit that that makes her testimony as to the maid's condition of mind of very little value."

"Are you quite sure Lady Jane did not see her?"

"Yes, quite sure. I have a record here, with which I need not trouble you, of our examination of Lady Jane's butler. He said that this woman, Fulmer, asked to see Lady Jane, and that her ladyship sent back a message saying she was sorry but that she was too busy to see her. And now, Mr. Pomfret, may I trouble you to read the very serious statement made by Fulmer yesterday?"

As the young man took the wad of typewritten matter in his hand the older man said feelingly: "I'm afraid you are going to have a great shock. I would like you know, speaking as man to man only, that I will do everything in my power that I can honorably do to help you and those whom it may concern in this very serious affair."

On hearing these earnest words John Pomfret felt a spasm of fearful misgiving sweep over him. The way Vincent had uttered his last sentence showed how strongly he felt the position with regard to Zella Blunt.

HE WENT across to the one wide window which lighted the gloomy smoking room, and there he stood for a long time, reading silently to himself the long verbatim report of all that Mary Fulmer had asserted to be true.

When he came back the other man saw with a sensation of intense sympathy that all the color had left Pomfret's face. Indeed, he looked ten years older than when he had turned away a few minutes ago to walk across to the window.

His first utterance took Vincent by surprise. "Is it true," he asked abruptly, "that the paper in which the bottle of medicine was wrapped had undoubtedly been tampered with?"

"Yes, there is no doubt of that. I have not got it, for, of course, it is being carefully preserved, with a view——" and then he stopped short.

"With a view to what?" asked John Pomfret in a harsh tone.

"To its being produced as an important exhibit at the trial for murder—should such a trial take place, as I fear is now inevitable."

"Does that mean that my cousin, Zella Blunt, is going to be arrested?"

"You ask me a question which it is impossible to answer. Our investigations into this curious and, I still consider, mysterious affair are not yet completed. But, yes—if I am to be honest with you—I do think that Miss Blunt is in grave danger, and not only of arrest, unless she can give some reasonable explanation of the state in which the bottle of medicine, and the paper in which it was wrapped around and sealed, was in, when it reached Mary Fulmer."

"May I be present when you examine my cousin?" asked Pomfret in a feverish tone.

The other hesitated. "I will stretch a point and allow you to be there, though as a matter of fact the only person who has a right to be present, Mr. Pomfret, would be Miss Blunt's lawyer."

"Zella Blunt has not even got a lawyer," said Pomfret quickly.

"I am sorry to hear that. And yet perhaps it is not so very unfortunate after all. The kind of family lawyer Miss Blunt would naturally be in touch with would do no good at all in this sort of serious case. You must get hold of one of the great criminal lawyers, and he on his side must lose no time in briefing the best man possible to defend Miss Blunt. Money plays a part in every trial for murder. And the prosecution—that is, the crown—has limitless resources."

"This means that you regard her arrest as certain in spite of what I have told you?"

"Well, yes, I do," said Angus Vincent reluctantly.

A groan escaped John Pomfret. No physical pain could have racked him as he was now being racked.

"There may be a natural explanation behind this story!" exclaimed the other in a moved tone.

The telephone bell rang in the hall, and a moment later the door opened.

"Miss Zella forgot to take up a book she'd promised to return tonight, sir——"

The old butler looked at the stranger. "I was wondering if I might make so bold as to ask this gentleman to drop it?"

"Where is she staying?" asked Pomfret in what he hoped was a careless tone.

"At Kent house, Mr. John, with Lady Toria Lelant——"

"Is she holding the line?"

"Yes, sir."

He looked at Vincent, and the other nodded. "Say you have to see her, and that it's urgent. We'll go straight to Kent house."

The young man rushed into the telephone box. "That you, Zella?"

"Yes, of course it is. I've got to get that book, John. It's a review copy. I can't let the girl down——"

"I'll bring it to you myself. I'm just off. And Zella, darling?"

THERE was a pause. Every man she knew called Zella Blunt "darling" except her cousin, John Pomfret. So she felt really much surprised.

"Yes, John?"

"Don't go out till we've met. I've got something to see you about. Something urgent——"

"All right, I'll wait. But drive fast, won't you?"

Even so there was a wistful tone in her dear voice. He suspected that she had felt—was feeling—all that had happened in the last few days far more than she would have admitted even to herself.

As the two men were leaving the hall for the front door the telephone bell rang again.

A sudden sensation of foreboding swept across John Pomfret. He hurried back into the box, and then he exclaimed, "It's for you, Mr. Vincent."

The Scotland Yard official was fully five minutes talking to London, and when he joined the other he looked downcast and uneasy. "I'm sorry to say I'm asked to go straight to the Yard. Nothing to do with the Castledyne affair."

"That means, of course, that you can't go to Kent house till later in the day? I shall be ready any time."

"Well, no, Mr. Pomfret. I shall have to ask you to take one of my colleagues, Maj. Waite, with you there. He's a clever chap, but life hasn't been too kind to him, and, frankly, I regret that it is he and not I who will interrogate Miss Blunt today."

AS THEY were on their way to London, Angus Vincent spoke again of his colleague. "I'd like to put you wise as to one thing. And I must ask you to keep what I am going to tell you to yourself."

There followed a pause, and then he went on: "I fear Maj. Waite has already made up his mind that Miss Blunt——"

And then again he stopped, and John Pomfret said bitterly, "You mean he has already made up his mind that my cousin poisoned Mrs. Castledyne?"

"I won't go quite as far as that. But he heard everything Fulmer asserted when she was questioned at Scotland Yard, and it has left a very ugly impression on his mind. He was not in the room, but he heard everything through a microphone. In fact, he took down in shorthand the statement which you have read."

John Pomfret suddenly exclaimed: "I know a man who has a very bad opinion of Castledyne. They were together in the war, and it was something that happened then that made him think so ill of that chap. I suppose in my place you would try and find out what that man knows?"

"Though I don't suppose anything that happened during the war would in the least affect this case, I personally would leave no stone unturned to find anything you can to that man's discredit. To my mind, the fact that Castledyne married a very rich woman much older than himself, then made love to a young girl, also a considerable heiress, are both reasons why he should be under suspicion. But there is as yet not one single reason strong enough to cause him to be arrested."

MAJ. WAITE looked what he was—arrogant, clever, and ill-tempered.

Scarce acknowledging the introduction, and refraining from putting out his hand, he said abruptly: "I understand my colleague has informed you, Mr. Pomfret, that your presence at my interview with this girl, Zella Blunt, will be quite out of order?"

Pomfret bit his lip. But all he said was: "You are more likely to find out the truth with regard to this affair if I am present when you question her than if she were alone with you."

"Such is not our experience here at the Yard. However, as Mr. Vincent said you should be present when I see her, I have consented against my judgment to honor his promise."

During the short motor drive neither man spoke. But when the car drove up to the portico of Kent house Pomfret observed in a conciliatory tone: "Would you mind my giving my name instead of yours? I believe my cousin to be quite ignorant of the part she is apparently believed to have played in this terrible business."

"Have you been in communication with her today?"

"Yes," said the other frankly. "She telephoned from here to Jerricks about a book she wanted sent her, and I said that as I had to see her on business, would she stay in for me this afternoon."

"Did you say anything concerning this Castledyne affair?"

"No, not one word," and then, without giving his companion time to ask him anything else, he leaped from the car and rang the bell.

ZELLA shook hands with her cousin, then she held out that same little hand to the other man, and he, after a moment's perceptible pause, took it. As he did so he sensed with surprise that the girl's hand was warm and firm. He had expected it to be cold and even clammy. He also felt surprised at Zella's look of youth and fragility. But the fact that she was here, staying in Kent house, angered him. This man hated privilege and all that privilege can still do in Great Britain for those born within its magic circle.

As for Zella, she supposed Maj. Waite to be a lawyer, as now and again she had occasion to sign legal documents connected with the minute sum of money her father had left her.

"I think we had better sit down," said the major stiffly. "And before I begin asking you certain questions, Miss Blunt, it will be to your interest to read this statement." And out of his attaché case he took what, John Pomfret realized with a thrill of consternation, was a copy of Mary Fulmer's statement.

Feeling puzzled at the speaker's cool and cutting tone, Zella took the sheets of paper from his hand and placed herself with her back to the window.

Silently, at last, she put down on the table before her the typewritten sheets, and both men saw her hand was twitching.

"Now, Miss Blunt, though I must warn you that anything you now say may be used in evidence against you, it will be in your own interest to answer truthfully certain questions I am about to put to you."

She replied in a very low tone, "I am ready to answer any questions you put to me."

"Have you anything special to say, or to contradict, in connection with the statement you have just read?"

A HEAVY silence filled the pleasant room. It was as if Zella found it impossible to speak. But at last, to John Pomfret's horrified astonishment, she answered in a strangled voice: "All that is written down there is true, excepting that I did not heat a hairpin, as this woman suggests I did."

She waited a moment. "I never use hairpins."

Had Maj. Waite been alone with Zella Blunt he would have said harshly: "Come, Miss Blunt, be frank! What did you use if not a hairpin?"

But he stayed the words on his lips, for he knew he had no right, by English law, to force her to incriminate herself.

"Is that the only mistake you can point out?"

Zella took up the sheets of paper again, and this time she glanced through them with a certain care.

"No, there are several other mistakes. For instance, it isn't true that I went into my bedroom that afternoon. I came straight upstairs with the bottle of medicine and gave it at once to the woman."

"Do you positively deny having slit open the paper in which the bottle was wrapped?"

And then for the first time the girl showed spirit. "Of course I deny it. I have just said so."

"Indeed you have not."

"I told you just now that I did not go to my bedroom. Also that I had not heated any hairpin."

"I see. And now I ask you an important question. Can you suggest who did slit open the blob of red sealing wax which fastened and, indeed, held together the piece of white paper in which the bottle of medicine was wrapped?"

Zella Blunt looked straight before her, and for what seemed to John Pomfret an eternity of time she remained silent.

As a matter of fact, she had hardly gathered the sense of that important and, as any lawyer would have warned her, improper question on Maj. Waite's part.

What stood out in letters of fire before her was the passage which contained Mary Fulmer's description of the few moments she, Zella, had spent in the lobby with Broke Castledyne the night of his wife's death. The reading of those few plain-spoken lines had filled her with an agony of shame. She felt as if she had been stripped in public and as if all the world was now aware of the way she had responded to Broke Castledyne's passion.

With all her soul she hoped that John Pomfret had not seen that ignoble page which contained the lady's maid's record of what she had overheard of that poignant secret interview.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * *

Look for your birthday or the group in which it appears throughout the following notes—it may be mentioned more than once. Mark it with a pencil wherever you see it, and then heed the counsel given.

By WYNN

WHEN extravagance is mentioned the first thing we think of is money—which is, of course, all right so far as it goes; but we are only partly right if we stop there. For it is extravagant to offend those we care most for; it is extravagant to go without sufficient sleep for the sake of bootleg pleasures; it is extravagant to pay for more than we get on any of the four levels of our existence: physical, intellectual, emotional, and spiritual. And I am referring to payment in more than what we can put in a bank account.

This week is full of vibrations tempting us to promise to pay later, to sign without looking, to substitute hope for knowledge. On the other hand, if we can keep in command of the situations that arise, this can be made an excellent week socially and with the opposite sex generally.

Today and tomorrow: Continue to use care in matters involving the feelings and sub rosa affairs. Tuesday and Wednesday: Look at things from a personal angle; see how much you can do personally for others, and also how you can develop your inner qualities and talents. Thursday and Friday: Continue with personal development and attend to financial deals and plans. Saturday and next Sunday: Plan ahead generally.

Our Second Birth

The ancients have instructed us that there are two kinds of life among human beings—the ordinary existence of those who muddle along, eating, sleeping, buying, selling, and never suspecting where they came from, why they are here, nor whither they are headed; and the enlightened life of those who do all of these things, mingling freely with all beings, yet who at the same time have developed themselves to the point where they do know a good deal about the whence, why, and whither of life. This was symbolized in the old mystery instructions by the ceremony of rebirth, which taught that we can be born again while still in the flesh; that is, born mentally and morally into higher appreciations and understandings. This also is what many consider the inner meaning of the second coming of Christ—they believe the first coming is symbolic of our being brought to this planet to live and that the second is our realization of our true place in the laws of nature. This is, of course, in addition to the usual interpretation; and there are several others, also, for they say there are seven seals (interpretations) to all mysteries. Think all this over carefully, especially now if you were born Jan. 27-Feb. 7, Feb. 24-March 14, March 31-April 21, July 19-Aug. 4, or Sept. 20-29.

Your Future

You are a thinking, reasoning being, and nine-tenths of what is to happen to you will be caused directly or indirectly by you. The causes of all your effects will not be easy to perceive, but you will understand more of them if you will proceed on the basis that you are the one who started it, no matter what happens.

And there is a definite department of your chemical and mental organization in which you do those things symbolically that later will be expressed in the outer world where the rest of us can see them. I am referring to your imagination subdivision. Not speaking of what you dream with, but that part of you with which you make your inner picture—actually, what you pray with, for whenever you envision yourself in the future, you are truly praying.

Many of us pray for what we do not want, and get it. For real prayers are always answered. This part of our makeup can be controled. When we do control it we get good results.

Think of the next ten years and make prayers that you will like when they come true, and also take into consideration what will make others like them, too. This applies particularly for the coming year to those born Oct. 21-Nov. 11, Nov. 26-Dec. 16, Dec. 31-Jan. 22, April 16-May 3, and June 17-28.

GOT THIN FROM STOMACH SUFFERING

Many women would like to lose weight, but Mrs. Anna Janke, 212 Westerlo St., Ravenna, N. Y., was alarmed at the way she was losing weight. She was a stomach sufferer and couldn't sleep or eat. Kidney Acidity Curbed Quickly This Easy Way

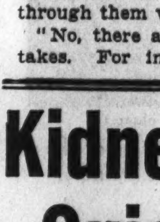
Doctors Praise Cystex—Brings Quick Help

Cleans Out Acids and Poisons —Purifies Blood—Brings New Energy in 48 Hours.

There are 9 million tiny, delicate tubes or filters in your Kidneys which must work every minute of the night and day cleaning out Acids, Poisons, and Wastes from your blood. If your Kidneys or Bladder do not function right, your body gradually becomes poisoned, you feel old and worn-out before your time, and may suffer from any of these energy-killing symptoms: Getting Up Nights, Loss of Vigor, Leg Pains, Nervousness, Lumbago, Swollen Joints, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Dark Circles Under Eyes, Headaches, Frequent Colds, Burning, Smarting, Itching, and Acidity.

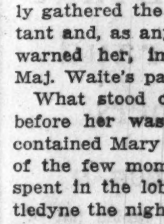
But you need not suffer another day from poorly functioning Kidneys or Bladder without the benefits of a Doctors' special prescription called Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex).



Dr. T. J. Rastelli

Dr. T. J. Rastelli, famous Doctor, Surgeon, and Scientist of London, says: "Cystex is one of the finest remedies I have ever known in my medical practice. Any doctor will recommend it for its definite benefits in the treatment of many functional Kidney and Bladder disorders. It is safe and harmless."

Cystex is not an experiment—it is quick and sure in action and has been tested and proved in millions of cases throughout the world. Because it combats and corrects many functional Kidney disorders, Cystex has gained a world-wide reputation as a successful treatment. Dr. T. A. Ellis, graduate of Toronto university, recently wrote: "Cystex's influence in aiding the treatment of sluggish Kidney and Bladder functions cannot be over-estimated. I have here a formula which I have used in my own practice for many years with excellent results. Cystex hastens the passage of over-acid irritants, thereby overcoming a frequent cause of burning, itching, getting up nights and frequent urination."



Dr. T. A. Ellis

Because it is a special prescription for poorly functioning Kidneys, Cystex works fast to tone and soothe sore membranes, and brings a new feeling of energy and vitality in 48 hours.

Dr. C. Z. Rendelle, well-known Physician and Medical Examiner of San Francisco, recently wrote: "Since the Kidneys purify the blood, the poisons collect in these organs and must be promptly flushed from the system; otherwise, they re-enter the blood stream and create a toxic condition. I can truthfully commend the use of Cystex."

Dr. C. Z. Rendelle

Because of its world-wide success, in even the most stubborn cases, the Doctor's Prescription called Cystex is offered to sufferers from poorly functioning Kidneys and Bladder under the fair-play guarantee to fix you up to your complete satisfaction or your money back on return of empty package. Get Cystex from any druggist and try it under the money-back guarantee. See for yourself how much younger, stronger, and healthier you will feel by using this special prescription. Cystex must fix you up and do the work to your entire satisfaction in 8 days, or cost you nothing under the money-back guarantee. Beware of substitutes and remember that the Kidneys are endangered by drastic, irritating drugs or neglect. Cystex is the only specially-prepared Doctor's prescription guaranteed for Kidney dysfunctions. Tell your druggist you must have Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex). Look for it in the black and red striped package.

Stars Can at Last Display Native Beauty

New Photography Does Full Justice to Black and Brown Haired Girls.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Platinum blondes, made up faces of the standardized sort, artificialities of all sorts are definitly on the way out in Hollywood.

If your sweetheart, girl friend, wife, daughter, or mother annoys you by aping the screen beauties of Hollywood with butterfly eyebrows, balloon tire lips, hair the color of nothing that ever grew on human head, thick, dark makeup, your hour of deliverance is at hand.

It's all going to stop with the advent of natural color photography, according to Rouben Mamoulian, now directing the first full length color feature, "Becky Sharp."

"The reason for the standardized type of hair and makeup on the black and white screen, the platinum blonde, the bleached blonde, is that in the black and white camera all shades of hair but bleached or extremely blonde hair register black. There is no variation for shading. The most glorious redhead photographs black. The color camera will give a variety of types as they are in nature, to a public bored with the same thing over and over again.

"Complexions can be natural before the color camera. In black and white a uniformly heavy, dark paste of makeup covered the skin, as the pink and white rose petal skin, the camellia white skin, the olive complexion, and the bronzed tint all photographed the same. But it is different in color films. Quality and tone of complexion show through the color film. Personality and individuality—the most valuable thing in the field of entertainment—can be shown with a portrait-like quality in color films.

Color Camera Shows Up Natural Beauty of Eyes.

"Eyes, too, have suffered from standardization in black and white films. A blue eye, a gray eye, of whatever shade, registers light in the camera. In color cameras one has the glorious shading of the eyes to light up the face, as in life. Interest and expression are enhanced.

When one realizes that ten feature films are now being made in Hollywood either all in color or with part color, and that Warner Brothers have been producing color shorts for some time, that Walt Disney is putting out his cartoons in color, it becomes apparent that the recent three color process, the first natural color photography used in films, may revolutionize many things in films. It is not a remote possibility that it will bring as many changes in personnel as sound did.

New Photography Erases Lines of Age.

As in the days when famous actors and actresses found their thrones tottering before the tiny microphone, present established stars who do not pass the test of the color cameras may soon find themselves slipping toward the discard.

Then another interesting angle arises. It has been discovered that the color camera tends to iron lines out of the face and produce a more youthful effect.

This may bring back some old favorites too aged for the hard black and white camera. A screen test of Mary Pickford in color shows her to look as attractive as she was in the days of her "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

Another one of John Barrymore doing a scene from "Hamlet" produces a most pleasing effect which may make it possible for the perennial profile to continue blossoming in the flowery fields of fame for some seasons yet.

Demand for Color Sense May Open Up New Jobs.

Color sense, according to experts in these things, is something one is born with, like perfect pitch in music. It occurs in strange places. For instance, one of the grips on the "Becky Sharp" set has been discovered to have a perfect color sense. This means a lot of openings in the technical and art departments.

One may see Hollywood night schools crowded with stars, directors and mechanics learning painting and color harmony, just as they all rushed to night school to learn language when the talkies, with their foreign versions, came in.

Earlier days saw elaborate and heavy makeup used for color photography. Intense lights were needed for these early color cameras and the heat was so great sets were stifling and continual delays were caused by the constant repairs to makeup necessitated by the damages of perspiration. The new, natural, three color cameras require no such makeup nor lights. White arc lights, which are cool, are used because the incandescent lights throw a yellow glare on the color film.

Texture Mercilessly Exposed by New Camera.

Many of the short cuts used in black and white photography will not suffice in color photography. For instance, the phony grass, laid down by the square yard in black and white films, photographs badly in color. Actual turf with real grass growing is the only thing that looks like grass in the color camera. Texture, too, seems more obvious in the color camera. Fabrics cannot be cheap nor imitation. The color may be right, but faulty texture will make the scene shoddy.

Going into the office of Robert Edmond Jones, color director of "Becky Sharp," working with Mrs. Natalie Kalmus of Technicolor, which firm owns the color patents, one finds an interesting state of affairs. Shelves of tube paints lie ready to hand. Costume sketches in color lie on the broad desk with samples of the fabric in all desired colors fluttering from the margin. Sets completely designed in color lie in another bundle.

The costumes are designed first and the colors for the set planned from them. In black and white films color is of lesser importance and line is the thing most emphasized. The new film in color will reverse this. All fabrics are tested under a miniature lens to determine photographic possibilities.

Jones, who comes from the New York theater with an enviable reputation as a craftsman as well as an artist, is famous for the three sets of stage settings he did for John Barrymore some years ago. "The Jest," "Redemption," and "Richard the Third," reached a height in stage craft never since equaled. Each summer it has been Jones' custom to go to the ghost town of Central City, Colo., and stage a production of outstanding artistic merit in the old mining town opera house. The Central City productions are eagerly aided and abetted by actors and actresses of distinction. Walter Huston played in "Othello" one season, Richard Bonelli in "The Merry Widow" another time and Lillian Gish in "Camille."

Jones emphasizes the possibilities of creating moods by the use of color both in costumes and settings. He advocates the use of gelatin lenses, such as are employed to produce the blue moonlight, green "horror" effects, and such things on the stage, for the same purpose.

"Times of day can be presented with more reality by use of colored gelatin slides diffusing an appropriate shade over the scene. The strong, yellow light of a noonday sun, the rosy glow of the late afternoon—these things help fix reality in a scene," says Jones.

It's amusing to note the color enthusiasm of those working on Mamoulian's set. The script girl thrills the eye with soft blue flannel slacks and shirt. Mamoulian himself has mustered up courage to wear a green shirt he has owned for a long time, and Christmas neckties bloom unashamed on manly breastbones of the crew.

Ballet Russe Returns for Three Days

Two New Dances to Be Included in Programs on March 8, 9, and 10.

By Edward Moore.

IN the recently published "Balletomania," a book passionately devoted to giving ballet its place in the sun, a casual opinion is offered that the world is divided into three classes: Russian dancers, other dancers, and the rest of the world.

You may or may not agree, but the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe is coming back to the Auditorium this week for another exceedingly brief engagement, Friday, Saturday, and next Sunday, with five performances crowded into three days.

They have been wanderers on the face of the western continent this season. Something like 20,000 miles have clicked off under the railroad car wheels since last September, when they opened the municipal opera house in Mexico City. California has seen them twice. They have doubled on their tracks south, west, and north, from Vancouver to Texas, from Boston to San Diego, and the end is not yet, though nearly so.

Dukelsky Composes for "Follies" and Other Revues.

Ten ballets, two of them new, will be presented in the five performances here. "Jardin Publique," to music by Vladimir Dukelsky, and "Le Bal" by Vittorio Rieti are the new ones. Leonid Massine has done the choreography of the one, George Balanchine of the other. Those that have been seen here before are "Aurora's Wedding," "Concurrence," "La Boutique Fantasque," "Three Cornered Hat," "Presages," "Union Pacific," "Prince Igor," and "Beau Danube." The two novelties will both appear on the opening bill, which, by the way, is for the benefit of The Bohemians of Chicago.

Dukelsky, composer of "Jardin Publique," is better known in the theater than in the concert hall. This is his second ballet. His name is prominent in music composed for the Ziegfeld "Follies," "Thumbs Up," "Garrick Gaieties," "Americana," and "Walk a Little Faster." He has done three London revues, a previous ballet produced in Paris, and is going out to Hollywood this spring to write the music for a picture to be called "April in Paris."

Monte Carlans Practice on Trains, Station Platforms.

Balanchine, choreographer of "Le Bal," is said to be doing big things in the east with the American Ballet company. He will be remembered here for what the Monte Carlo company does with "Concurrence" and "Cotillon." He is described as having a dual outlook, the superimposed fantasy of modern thought on dance classicism, and they say he has been producing remarkable results.

How the company has been able to get these two new pieces ready looks like a problem, but it is a problem they have solved. They have been experiencing a long routine of one night stands, and most of the time when they were not actually in performance they were on trains. New pieces need rehersals, but the answer is that these young dancers are indefatigable. They practice anywhere, on trains, on station platforms, before and after performances, apparently in their sleep. And active, healthy youngsters need sleep. But the pieces will be ready.

Public Inquires About Summer Symphony Concerts.

What follows is not so immediately in the future as the Monte Carlo ballet, but it seems a good time to make public an inquiry that has reached this desk regarding the possibility of summer music this season. It was asked whether such a thing as a post-season by the Chicago Symphony orchestra would be possible.

This department does not know, but the prospect looks inviting. Some generous philanthropists made it possible for both the Chicago and Detroit symphony orchestras to play a long season at the Fair last summer, and in view of the tens and hundreds of thousands of persons who attended, their action ranked as one of the good deeds of the year.

Nothing could be more attractive than a course of concerts with programs on the order of last summer's. Frederick Stock could start them, Eric DeLamarter could continue, and, as was the case last summer, there are several brilliant visiting conductors whose services could be impressed for a brief period.

Low Admission Fee Would Pay for Series.

When you come to look at the subject, it is not a highly expensive undertaking. A comparatively low admission fee could take care of the cost and make the series a going concern. This department believes heartily that there is enough of a music loving public to take care of the expense at not too high a rate.

There is no need at present for going into the other consideration, that an extra series of concerts is really due the men of the orchestra, though that side can well be considered, too. They are brilliant artists, the chosen few of their profession, and they are not highly paid. They have done great things for the cause of music, and if anyone deserved consideration for continued effort, they do.

But the chief point is the prospect of fine entertainment for the opportunities to keep Chicago ahead. Chicago public. Here is one of the

D'OYLY CARTE PRIMA DONNA

Dances of Two Foreign Lands Given Today

TWO dance recitals of unusual type will be going on at the same hour this afternoon. Carola Goya, remembered from three years ago as being extremely easy to look upon, will appear in Spanish dances at Orchestra hall, and Vytautas Finadar Beliajus and others will do likewise for Lithuanian dances at the Studebaker theater.

Miss Goya, who will be assisted by Norman Secon, pianist, and Beatrice Burford, harpist, is noted for the skill with which she clicks castanets and heels in her dances. She costumes them lavishly, she makes quick changes, and in the course of her program she presents a fairly general transcript of the art of dancing in Spain. Her appearance is being sponsored by the Chicago Bennett club, and the proceeds will go to the scholarship fund of the Bennett school.

Mr. Beliajus, who seems not to have appeared downtown before, will be assisted by the Lithuanian dance group and Michele Gamboni, pianist. He is the organizer and president of the Lithuanian Youth society, is publisher of the magazine the Furrow, and is well known among his fellow countrymen as an author. He has made an elaborate collection of translations of Lithuanian folk songs.

MISS LOMBARD IN THE BOUFFANT SILHOUETTE

Every once in a while Carole Lombard has her picture taken. Here she poses in a modernization of the Bouffant silhouette—which style experts say will be quite "it" the coming season.

Playing Bridge Good Practice for Directors

Alexander Hall Vouches for Game as Guide to Judging a Story.

HOLLYWOOD.—If you play bridge well, you could direct a motion picture—if given the opportunity. This is what Alexander Hall, who does both, believes, and he tells why.

A director studies the strength and weakness of his story as a bridge player determines the strength and weakness of his hand. A bridge player must apply psychology in working on the foibles and idiosyncracies of his opponents and learning the habits of his partner. The picture director, says Hall, studies his actors in the same manner.

Every Player Must Be Treated Differently.

"After you learn who your players are, you look them over and decide how to handle them," Hall says. "Some have to be cajoled, some babied, some stepped on, and some kidded. They all have temperament of a sort or they wouldn't be actors.

"One of the first things I do is try to impress them that we all should be working to make a good motion picture. As soon as they get the idea that I'm working for them, everything is swell. I don't try to be dictatorial. I'm willing to listen to reason and I can be convinced I'm wrong."

Director Hall and Lederer Are Compatible Workers.

Francis Lederer, whom some directors believe inclined to be difficult, got along perfectly well with Hall, who directed him in "The Pursuit of Happiness." Hall said he had to kid Lederer. Whenever the actor would say, "I think it should be done this way," Hall would reply, "Quit thinking, you might get hurt, and anyway we're going to do it my way." Lederer and Hall never had a fight.

Baby LeRoy was learning to talk when Hall had him in "Miss Fane's Baby Is Stolen." It required plenty of ingenuity to make the infant behave. Hall crawled on the floor, sang, cried, danced, and imitated birds to get LeRoy to smile at the right moment.

Making Shirley Temple Cry Offers Difficulties.

Once he wanted Shirley Temple to cry, but Shirley wasn't in the mood. So Hall went over into a corner and wept copious tears, telling every one Shirley had broken his heart. Shirley cried, too, when she heard Hall might lose his job. And then they made the scene.

Some players, of course, have to be handled with kid gloves and Hall has had his share of them.

A certain star and Hall get along because Hall calls him names; the star hasn't figured out yet whether Hall is serious or kidding. Another star, who has much to say about her pictures, invariably agrees with Hall, who always asks her opinion about his ideas. If he didn't, he's afraid she might kick up a fuss.

Drama in Dublin

A SEASON of Ulster drama is under way at the Abbey theater of Dublin. The first presentation, Feb. 18, by the Belfast Repertory theater of Thomas Carnduff's new historical play in 1798, entitled "Castlereagh," was well received. Carnduff, a Belfast shipyard worker, is the Ulster city's nearest counterpart to Dublin's Sean O' Casey.

Vitality Stays by May Robson at 70 Years

HOLLYWOOD.—For one approaching three score and 10 [she'll be 70 April 19], May Robson has amazing vitality.

She admits she's constantly "on the go." So much to see and so little time, she says, that one must be always busy. Even when she is engaged in making a picture this young-old woman stays up as late as the night's show or preview demands, yet she arises at 6 the next morning. She never, never gets tired.

Takes Little Exercise and Few Hours Sleep.

"No, I never take any exercise—though I should—and I get along fine on six hours' sleep," she says. "Why, I even ride to the corner to get a spool of thread, and I never, never walk to the closest movie, which is only a block and a half away."

When she's between pictures May Robson usually is busier than when she's working. She made a rush trip to New York to spend Christmas with her son for the first time in thirty years. The first night she was back, she worked. And caught severe cold. But because she had much to do during the ensuing week she threw off the cold in a day.

If Miss Robson can't find a show or a new picture to see, or rush away to San Francisco for a personal appearance, or attend somebody's dinner party or dress ball, she sits down and works on neckties. This last Christmas 186 gentleman friends received ties from May Robson.

Airplanes Frighten Veteran Actress.

"Fifteen and a half dozen I made," she says. "I start making neckties in January, and I have to average more than three a week to have enough completed by Christmas. O, certainly, I've bought all the silk for next year's ties already, and I've got a dozen of them cut."

Friends are always wondering why May, who has so little time to do so many things, doesn't make her frequent trips to New York, and even the shorter ones, by airplane.

"Not me, I'm too scared of them," she explains.

"I made my first and my last airplane trip over the English channel several years ago. My daughter-in-law, who was with me, had given me a crucifix. I held that in one hand and a bottle of smelling salts in the other.

"We hadn't been underway long when she nudged me and pointed. Great grief, I was smelling the crucifix and kissing the smelling salts.

"That was airplane trip enough for all time."

Movie Players Interested in Horse Racing

Hollywood Spends Great Part of the Winter in Grandstand Cheering.

SANTA ANITA PARK, Los Angeles, Cal.—If it isn't one thing that attracts Hollywood, it's something else. Right now the something else is the horse races. The movie crowd has been supporting the track splendidly. Socially as well as financially, we mean.

They're here this day in droves because there's a Hollywood handicap on the bill and an "Al Jolson" in the fourth race. Al ran second, by the way, disappointing many of his namesake's friends who had played him on the nose.

Ruby Keeler Wears Entire Black Outfit.

But let's not bother about horses when there are stars and styles to be seen. Ruby Keeler is here and she's the only Hollywoodite dressed in black—cloth coat trimmed with black fur and a velvet hat on the back of her head. Betty Compson (who passes up the plebeian $2 windows to make $10 bets) is wearing a brown silk crêpe dress, a smart little funnel shaped hat, a mink coat.

Dorothy Mackaill (escorted by ex-husband Neill Miller) is wearing a brown dress covered by a full length mink. (It was a bad year for the minks.) Doris Kenyon and Leila Hyams and Wynne Gibson and perhaps a half dozen others also have on minks. There's Fredric March, nonchalantly smoking a pipe, but seemingly very self-conscious in spite of it, wearing a suit that needs pressing badly. His hair hangs down, Weissmuller-like, over his collar, because he's growing it for a picture.

Ricardo Cortez Smokes Pipe Away from Noise.

Ricardo Cortez, dressed quietly in black, sits away from the crowd quietly smoking a pipe. Occasionally he visits the $50 betting booths. Jack Warner, with the former Mrs. Don Alvarado, is a $50 better, too. Wesley Ruggles is collecting bets, but he confesses they've been made by his wife, Arline Judge, who merely says "I'll bet on THAT horse," and for some reason "that" horse usually wins. Arline is wearing a yellow knitted sports suit.

Barbara Stanwyck, in a brown tweed fur-trimmed suit, stays in her box, but husband Frank Fay wanders around among the crowd wearing a most worried look. Charlie Chase, wearing the loudest checked sports coat we ever saw, seems always to be coming away from the $10 window with a handful of bills. Herbert Mundin is as happy as usual, so no one knows whether he's winning or losing. Herb used to be a jocky; that should help.

Gilbert Roland Sports Colors and Back Slaps.

Gilbert Roland, in the greenest sports coat and the tannest trousers in town (with which he wears a brown and yellow tie) is rushing about clapping people on the back. (Maybe he picked Jolson to "place.")

And here, ladies and gentlemen, is the fashion plate, Adolphe Menjou. Reading from bottom to top, he's wearing patent lether shoes, pearl gray spats, gray checkered trousers, black cutaway coat, gray stock tie (in which there is a small diamond horseshoe), and a gray derby. He carries gloves, a cane, and field glasses. Gene Fowler's comment is a dandy: "'Dolph," he said, "you seem to be dressed within an inch of somebody's life."

Next to Menjou is Pat O'Brien, who by comparison makes one think of the town's bad boy. He's wearing a cap, slouched over one ear, a baby blue polo shirt, a red muffler, black and white shoes.

Chicago Elite Hotly Debates Men's Fashions

Tails vs. Tuxedo Controversy Translated Into Action at French Party.

By Cousin Eve.

SOON we sail into Lenten doldrums. But Lent, for some reason, is never dull in Chicago. For the impending quiet season the Casino has come to the fore with Thursday night dinners—an attractive table d'hôte, food, wine, and amusing program all for a modest price.

Now that days are longer and lighter, Sundays at the Saddle and Cycle are once more in vogue. One sees one's friends there in an informal way at late luncheons. And people sit around the four-sided fireplace and rave about the New Deal, the national debt, and what have you?

Or they play contract, which, after all, saves a lot of breath.

Both Men and Women Have Dressed Quietly in Lean Years.

In a world of small things looms the matter of the white tie versus the black tie. When the dinner jacket, when the noble tails? Tiffany Blake seeks to lure me into statements on a subject of which I know little. All women consider most men handsome when arrayed in full regalia of the white tie and all that goes with it. At balls, formal dinners, and the opera one expects nothing else, including white gloves.

In the past lean years women have dressed quietly in rather dark clothes and men have done likewise. There is a divine fitness of things, and expense, too, was in the picture.

The other night at the France-America dinner for French Ambassador de Laboulaye there were scores of dinner jackets and black ties, when full dress was called for "with decorations" on the invitations.

Paris Considers Man in Business Suit Unpatriotic.

On top of this an amusing cable from Edmond Taylor, Paris correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Paris, it seems, feels that Frenchmen who wear business suits to the theater are unpatriotic. They are execrable, they are traitors to the patrie, they perpetuate the crisis even if they did not cause it. They keep travelers and pleasure seekers away from Paree, they cast a spell of darkness and gloom over the fair city. Pep up they must.

Personally, if every Frenchman in France wore tails and the white tie, I believe that Americans would still avoid Paris. The day has got to come when Parisians must admit that their policy toward Americans has been pure folly—from the days in 1928 when they booed and hissed our visiting war veterans in Paris streets to 1935 when there are no Americans left to boo and hiss.

I have a warm spot in my heart for lots of French people, and there are many in and out of Paris who have tried to offset this propaganda against us, and offer the most charming hospitality. But these are merely a few tiny olive branches in a hurricane of bad feeling.

Incredible, but there are still Americans in high places, as one discovered at the France-American dinner, who are more French at heart than Louis XIV.

At that dinner—apropos of masculine glad rags—a friend, wife of an army officer, was told that Gen. McCoy was to be presented. She was charmed and had much palaver with the delightful, handsome officer, rosy and bland, so apt at repartee and so splendid in full dress uniform. "General," said she, "I have heard so much about you." But after a while it turned out to be Rear Admiral Cluverius in full naval regalia—which was rather a slip for the wife of a military man—what?

Exhibit of Paintings Does Junior League Proud.

Among the interesting teas of the week a large vernissage at the Casino for paintings done by the Junior league. Mrs. Ambrose Cramer, already a hostess of charm and grace, promoted this year's show and was receiving. The walls of the fountain room were covered with the exhibit. Some good portraiture by Mrs. Franklin Clement. Elizabeth Paepcke had a blue still life that savored of the Munich school, and Jane Rogers had two still lifes. A lively tea was going on all the while with that handsome girl, Margot Atkin, presiding, and memories of the paintings would be clearer had there been less tea and less diverting conversation. There is much ability of all sorts in the Chicago Junior league.

"Woman Without a Shadow" No Song for Lotte Lehmann.

Of music, a morning at the Contemporary club listening to a program of two pianos. The large ballroom of the the Fortnightly was filled to hear Stell Andersen, a blonde Nordic, tall and highly gifted, and Silvio Scionti, a dark Italian, extremely brilliant, play as one artist. I had been told that it was a magnificent treat to hear Andersen and Scionti, and it was. This music was followed by an informal picnic luncheon all over the place at small tables.

Of concerts, the last Monday night concert at the Auditorium and that glorious Junoesque Lotte Lehmann, who never heard of a lettuce sandwich. I heard her in Salzburg last year singing in Strauss' "Woman Without a Shadow," not aptly named, for the handsome creature must cast quite a shadow. She sang a program of German ballads in a rich, warm, glowing voice that one wished might go on forever. A much applauded cellist, George Miquelle of the Detroit symphony, was the other artist. Many in the audience, Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, Mrs. Frederic Upham, Herbert and Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Mrs. Ralph James, Arthur Cable, Mrs. H. H. Shearson, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hinde, Sarah Hinde, Mrs. A. C. Callahan, Mrs. Rend Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Adlai Stevenson.

Music Again Lives Vividly at University of Chicago.

Music has come into its own at the University of Chicago. Or rather, since Prof. Carl Bricken took that department one hears of it. And the old William Gardner Hale house which now shelters music has come into its own again after a long, adventurous career. Built by Prof. and Mrs. Hale [he a famous scholar] half a century ago, it has fine paneled redwood walls, made for music to be played within them, and it was played, they say.

On Prof. Hale's retirement it was sold to the Theological seminary. Then the seminary decided to build, and the Hale house was to be destroyed to make room for its present imposing set of buildings. A faculty wife who loved the old house and the shape of its well built rooms intervened and saved it. So it was moved to its present location, and, becoming university property, opened as a clubhouse.

Hard times, and the Hale house was closed until the department of music begged the use of it for larger classes and rehersals. Now the joyous, charming Brickens entertain there. Again the walls resound to music and young voices, and it lives again. Its soul is reanimated. Fires flame on its harths.

On Friday evening, March 8, at Mandel hall, Mr. Bricken leads the University Symphony orchestra's quarterly concert. Soloists are Ruth Ray, violinist, and Marjorie Livingston, soprano. Many people of prominence are patrons. Among them Thomas E. Donnelley, Mr. and Mrs. James Douglas Jr., Mrs. Clyde Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Breasted, Mr. and Mrs. Fowler McCormick, Miss Gwethalyn Jones, Mrs. Walter Strong, Thornton Wilder, Mrs. Martin Ryerson, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Woodward.

Opera Comique to Open March 18.

The opera comique arrives from New York and opens at the Auditorium March 18. Few Chicago people know of this chic musical organization which has flowered in Gotham at the Heckscher theater for eleven years.

I was reading all about it in a little book. How it aims to be in New York and Chicago what Paris opera comique is to Paris, where light opera is on the same basis as grand opera. How there must be an established repertory of the past. Old musical loves go on, but new works are always desirable. Young singers are for opera comique. It needs their vitality and good looks, their exuberance. We have in America many beautifully trained voices, too light, but perhaps better as to quality and training than the heavier voices grand opera accepts.

Most of the works which fall to opera comique have spoken lines. It is important that these should be heard by every listener. Singers must sing and speak clearly in light opera. Their gayety must ring as true as grand opera's tragedy.

Opera Comique First Meant to Parody Grand Opera.

In 1714 at St. Germain fair, operas comiques had their birth. They were created to parody grand opera, which had flourished in France under Louis XIV., when works by celebrated composers with their ballets had been given in a gorgeous manner never equaled since. Great nobles of the court had their own theaters.

The success of operas comiques in the 18th century was tremendous because witty couplets were set to music already popular in the two preceding centuries and known by everybody. Soon what had been created "for the people" became so entrancing to court and nobility that the opera and Comédie Française were deserted. In order to prevent the ruin of the latter, operas comiques were suppressed by Louis XV. Finally they were revived to meet, alas! the rivalry of a troupe of Italian singers, which had become the rage with the entire public, playing light pieces, love episodes, and such. In 1762 the two troupes united and opera comique was instaled in Paris. Jean Jacques Rousseau wrote for it "Devin du Village," and all the great composers had pieces applauded there: Offenbach, Auber, Meyerbeer, Méhul, and later Gounod, Massenet, Debussy, Charpentier, Dukas, Messager, and others.

But enough of history. New York's opera comique, playing for five years at the Heckscher theater, has already been generously endowed. It has handsome costumes and stage sets, an excellent ballet. E. Roland Harriman is president, and A. J. Drexel Biddle Jr., Charles Steele, and John D. Rockefeller Jr. appear among the guarantors.

For the Chicago season we will hear three operas: "Tales of Hoffmann," in English; "The Gay Deceiver," "Die Fledermaus," and "La Vie Parisienne." A long list of Chicago patrons, headed by Arthur Cable, will soon appear. If successful, opera comique will return yearly to be a feature of our Chicago life in late winter.

Mrs. Morris Here on Vacation from Oxford.

Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, home on a short vacation from her studies at Oxford, has had amusing times of late. Never can she leave college without permission. It took a charming letter from Prince George of England to get her excused to come up to London for his wedding. Mrs. Morris was invited to the reception and preview of wedding presents at St. James's palace and had a long chat with the young royal couple. The duchess of Kent is tall, with a beautiful figure and delightful manner. The presents, hundreds and hundreds of them, were massively handsome but absolutely conservative. Tons of solid silver, magnificent books, porcelains, jewels, exhibited in a suite of drawing rooms.

Mrs. Morris took a house for the holidays at Kitzbuehel in the Austrian Alps with her son and his young family. It was a large house with many rooms. And their guests were twelve Oxford classmates who came down in relays of six for the winter sports.

Society in Palm Beach Goes In for Home Life

Leaders Declare 'Dining In's' the Smart Thing to Do in 1935 Season.

By Nancy Randolph.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

The social colony of Palm Beach has discovered that, after all, there's no place like home in which to live, and dine, and have a good time. A discovery that is causing much chagrin among smart restaurant and supper club proprietors.

Once Jessie Woolworth Donahue and her friends thought nothing of a dinner for 100 guests at a smart restaurant. Now they dine with Joe Widener, Mrs. Harrison Williams, or Laura Corrigan and then, two by two, invade a supper club for a cheering cup and a dance at 1 or 2 a. m.

Every one complains that the season is dull. It isn't—it's just different. The social set are eating just as much, as often, and as merrily as they did in the past, but they're doing it privately.

They're even swimming privately, at any one of the private pools of people like the Henry Carnegie Phipps, Harold S. Vanderbilts, Wideners, Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's, Mrs. Mrs. Margaret Emerson's [the Beverly Bogerts are there for the rest of the season], or at any of a dozen other big houses.

Palm Beach is no longer a small, intimate colony, but a rapidly changing resort with a half dozen clearly defined social circles.

The season got off to a start in November. Shops did ten times as much business as in any previous December. And then, with the sudden change in Palm Beach social life, business took a nose dive. It hasn't come out of the tailspin yet.

It's just a slow season at this resort's famous Casino. It's amazing to go there. The Casino is jammed this season, but one finds few of the old, familiar faces which once made it the most exciting gathering place down here. In the old days Flo Ziegfeld, J. Leonard Replogle, Birdie Vanderbilt, Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson, Arthur Lipper, Fifi Widener Wichfeld, and Herbert Bayard Swope frequented the big tables. Now Flo Ziegfeld is dead. Mrs. Vanderbilt has lived here quietly since the death of her son more than a year ago. J. Leonard Replogle is vastly interested in a game of his own invention. And the rest of the group are scattered hither and yon.

Swapping House Guests a Major Indoor Sport.

If you have any nice house guests to swap Palm Beach is the place in which to do it. The barter in house guests that goes on between the big villas is too, too confusing.

That champion diner outer, William Rhinelander Stewart, has joined Laura Corrigan's house party instead of the group at Villa Amada, the Charlie Munn villa. The jovial Will Stewart has only been one of us for the last two weeks.

Nino Lo Savio has replaced Mrs. Julian Allen in one of the best guest rooms at Capt. R. Amcotts Wilson and Mrs. Wilson's lovely residence. And Mrs. Allen has moved her trunk back to the home of Birdie Vanderbilt, whom she came to visit in the first place.

The Wilsons have Sir Humphrey de Trafford, too, but Col. and Mrs. Jacques Balsan got Lady de Trafford after both the De Traffords had been entertained by Joe Widener at his villa, Il Palmetto. The Rex Bensons of London, who've been in Mexico, joined the Wilsons a few days ago, thereby making a full house.

Rumors of Polk-Guest Romance Strengthened.

When Willie Stewart moved into Mrs. Corrigan's, Countess Edith de Zoppola moved out and went over to Capt. and Mrs. Alastair MacKintoshs'. And when the countess moved into the MacKintosh villa Nino Lo Savio moved out and went to the Wilsons'.

About every four to six days there's a new shuffle rather than a New Deal down here. The guests are all sorted out again and rearranged according to taste.

Lily Polk is still a guest at Villa Artemis, the home of the Hon. Mrs. Freddie Guest. So is Mrs. Guest's son, Raymond, thereby lending further credence to the report that this is a romance which will terminate in June wedding bells.

Mary Lansing and Peter Arno Much Together.

The Mary Lansing-Peter Arno romance has been transferred from the tropic setting of Nassau to the equally tropical setting of Palm Beach. And their friends do say that the daughter of the Cleveland Lansings and the famous cartoonist are so serious they mean marriage.

Anyhow, Peter and "Timmie's" apparent happiness is no picnic for a Palm Beach belle who has been regarding Peter with seriousness for some time.

Peter and "Timmie" flew here from Nassau, where "Timmie" has been at the Lansing cottage for several weeks, together with Betty Lawford and Priscilla McLardie.

Etiquet Volume Auctioned Off in Washington

BOTH the delicacies that pleased official palates and the etiquet that governed their official consumption in the Washington of post-civil war days are revealed in a dog-eared volume recently sold at an auction in the capital. The work is Mrs. Mary Henderson's cook book, published in 1876, and the auction was that of the Henderson castle.

Mrs. Henderson was the etiquet arbiter of Washington in the pompous days of Victorianism, when breakfasts were served in seven courses and dinners in sixteen and all the foods from crackers to desserts were fancy.

The relation of elegance to successful dining was a point strongly emphasized by Mrs. Henderson. "If one has nothing for dinner but soup, hash, and lettuce, put them on the table in style; serve them in three courses," is one of the rules of her cook book.

Others are:

"Never ring a bell for a meal. In private houses the ménage should be conducted with as little noise as possible."

"In well appointed houses a word is not spoken at the dinner between hostess and attendants."

But if Mrs. Henderson was a stickler for form she also was willing to be a revolutionist in changing it. In her day Washington dinners lasted from three to five hours. The etiquet general disapproved of this strongly and evolved "a practical drill exercise for serving at the table," which she hoped would speed up the dining process.

But in her taste for china Mrs. Henderson was a true child of her age. The auction crowd gazed in incredulity at the baroque dishes that comprised her collection and wondered what practical use they ever had served.

Mrs. Henderson's book, with its chapter on china entitled "The Ceramic Art," was eloquent on this point: "The selection of china for the table offers an elegant field in which to display one's taste. By far the most elegant arrangement consists in having different sets of plates, each set of a different pattern, for every course.

"The harlequin dessert sets are interesting, where every plate is not only different in design and color, but is a specimen of a different kind of ware as well."

Seashell Motif Prominent in Dishes of the Period.

The seashell so popular as mantel décore also was furnishing the motif for china. "A set of majolica plates, imitating pink shells, with a large pink shell platter, is very pretty and appropriate for almost any course," Mrs. Henderson wrote. And for those who preferred their shells au naturel she advised: "You can always serve oysters in their shells by once purchasing five large ones, cleaning carefully every time used, and they will be ready to be filled for the next occasion by suitable oysters from the can."

P.-T. A. Group Adds to List of Conferences

By Ruth DeYoung.

WITH women's organizations in a conference frame of mind this month of March, the Chicago affairs committee of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers announces a reports conference for all chairmen of parent-teacher activities in Chicago at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Stevens hotel.

Since there are more than 200 parent-teacher units in the city and more than twenty departments of activity, a large attendance is expected. The highlight of the day's program will be an address at 1:30 in the afternoon by Mrs. John H. Schacht of Moline, former chairman of social hygiene for the Illinois congress and now state historian for the congress. Mrs. Schacht will discuss "Social Hygiene—the Parents' Angle."

Will Display Posters Used to Publicize the Work.

Following Mrs. Schacht's talk there will be a parade of posters that parent-teacher chairmen have used to publicize their work during the past year. The best of these are to be sent to the state convention that meets in Peoria April 10 to 13. Howard K. Morse, Ray Phipps, Mrs. Gertrude Hadley, and Elmer A. Forsberg will judge the parade.

At the morning session Mrs. Frederic L. Holch, first vice president of the Illinois congress, who is in charge of reports and research, will meet with the presidents and instruct them in making out their annual questionnaire. The music for the conference will be supplied by the Chicago Mother singers under the direction of William Lester.

Mrs. Thomas B. Stephenson, chairman of the Chicago affairs committee, will preside at both sessions. Members of this committee include Mrs. James E. Grant, Mrs. Charles Clauss, Mrs. Frank A. Damm, Mrs. H. H. Siddall, and Mrs. Holch.

Plans are well under way for another important conference that involves the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers. The congress is sponsoring the first annual midwest conference on homemaking March 19, 20, and 21 at the Sherman hotel. Coöperating with the congress in the organization of the meetings are the Household Science institute, the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations and the parent-teacher associations, in Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Iowa.

A distinguished array of national authorities on home problems already have accepted invitations to appear during the three day sessions. The conference will mark the first step in organized effort on the part of these groups to promote recognition of home influence in national affairs. In connection with the conference an educational exposition of modern housekeeping methods and household equipment will be staged.

La Rabida Group to Have Annual Spring Luncheon.

With spring only eighteen days away, the La Rabida Jackson Park sanitarium is having its annual spring luncheon, card party, and fashion review at 12:30 Tuesday at the South Shore Country club. The models will be young women from the sanitarium's junior auxiliary, including Miss Bernice Adams, Mrs. Wilfred Combs, Miss Marjorie Roe, Mrs. W. E. Thoresen, Mrs. Charles Betts, and Miss Kathryn Alten.

Hostesses for the party will be Mrs. Cope J. Hanley, Mrs. Robert A. Black, Mrs. J. F. Wallach Jr., and Mrs. Ira C. Humphrey. The sanitarium provides free convalescent care for cardiac children between the ages of 4 and 12. Mrs. Clifford G. Roe is president of the board.

Mrs. Charles B. Spaulding, president of the American Friends of Writers, will be hostess at a benefit matinée of the Friends of Writers Thursday afternoon at the Goodman theater. The Goodman Players will present the clever comedy, "The First Mrs. Fraser." Proceeds will go to carry forward the cultural and philanthropic program of the organization.

Music Lovers Among Clubs Sponsoring Symphony Concert.

Music lovers in the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations, the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs, and the Society of American Musicians are sponsoring the fifth concert of the Woman's Symphony orchestra this season next Sunday afternoon at the Studebaker theater. Soloists will be the recent piano and violin contest winners in the recital of the Society of American Musicians.

For several weeks past Mrs. John Charles Carroll, a member of the board of directors of the Woman's Symphony, has been acting as the orchestra's spokesman before women's clubs. The orchestra will celebrate its tenth anniversary next fall. Miss Ebba Sundstrom is the conductor.

Rose Bampton, contralto with the Metropolitan Opera company, is to give her first Chicago recital this season at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon before the Musicians' Club of Women in the theater of the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street,

A FAVORITE SUBJECT

Lovely Mrs. Ewing Webb, with her brown curly hair and dark, velvety eyes, is a subject most artists want to paint. In the recent Junior league exhibit she was present not only in person but in a painting and a photograph. Mrs. John Satterthwaite did the oil painting of the former Elizabeth Jackson, and Mrs. Norman Pritchard took the stunning photograph that showed Mrs. Webb in a squash racquets costume.

Cousin of Roosevelt Will Make Her Debut in London

LONDON Miss Jean Martineau, one of the debutantes of 1935, who will be presented in March, has already had a season in Washington, where she had a dance given in her honor at the White House. Her mother is a cousin of President Roosevelt and recently gave another dance for her on this side of the water. Both her brothers were educated at Harrow and at Oxford and Cambridge, respectively, and both of them have married Americans and live in America. Her grandmother was Mrs. Price-Collier, author of "American Wives and English Husbands." She too lived in America. In London Miss Martineau and her mother live in Drayton place, near her uncle, Sir Philip Martineau, until recently president of the Law society.

On the occasion of the visit to England of the French cabinet members, M. Pierre-Etienne Flandin and M. Pierre Laval, the French ambassador gave a luncheon at which the Baroness Ravensdale was a guest. Save for herself and Countess Stanhope, all the other guests were cabinet ministers or ambassadors, which fact, when noticed, has some significance.

The engagement is announced of Paul Alfred Shinkman of New York, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Shinkman of Grand Rapids, Mich., to Miss Elizabeth Benn, elder daughter of Sir Ernest Benn and Lady Benn of Blunt house, Oxted. Sir Ernest Benn is a publisher and, in public life, a fiery, old fashioned propagandist for "individualism."

Mr. Shinkman formerly was on the London and Paris stafs of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Mrs. Virginia Pemberton, daughter of Mrs. Millett Calmer of New York City, is shortly to marry Roger Wright Rogers, late of the Grenadier Guards, younger son of H. E. Wright Rogers of Yarlington, Somerset.

When Coral Pinckard, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Pinckard [the latter of Cincinnati] married Mr. John Leslie, brother of Lord Rothes, a couple of years ago none of the Rothes appeared at the wedding, but the bride's father presented her with one of the most beautiful estates in England, 2,000 acres at Witley, with lakes and trout streams and home farms dotted around and a church which has, for generations, reserved its special peal of bells for great events in the Pinckard family, such as births, baptisms, marriages, etc.

Now Mrs. Leslie has put it up for sale, and the historic family seat will change hands. A son was born to the Leslies last November.

Clubwomen Say Conference Is Vital Chapter

Theme of "New Day" for World Delineated by Speakers at Sessions.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S second annual Conference on Current Problems may be a matter of history, but it's far from forgotten. Since Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Kathleen McLaughlin, TRIBUNE woman's editor, closed the final session at the Palmer house, letters and telephone calls by the hundreds have underlined its success and pronounced the idea "a new and vital chapter in the history of feminine organization."

"There is no doubt that a new day is facing the United States," stressed Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, in addressing the opening conference session. Assimilating the array of scholarly discourses on social and economic subjects, club leaders and their members are picturing the type of "new day," the kind of world projected at the two day meeting.

The picture begins with the development of an attitude of mind, the changes in the present day mind necessary to achieve a better world. Educating for character in youth was the appeal of the Rev. John B. Hubbard, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal church, Park Ridge. "I am anxious," he said, "that the public schools have definite experience-centered sources of character development."

A more intelligent parenthood, as the result of such meetings as THE TRIBUNE Conference, carried forward the idea of the improved mind. Self-discipline, the feeling of individual responsibility, is necessary to this, pointed out Rabbi Solomon Goldman of the Anshe Emet congregation.

Rabbi Goldman Advocates Benefit of Self-Discipline.

"To change, to improve, to better must be the order of the day, but in all our efforts let us search our hearts and see whether there is not room there for self-discipline, for the coöperativeness that will restore the home and social living," Rabbi Goldman said. Dr. Harold L. Hulbert called for a respect for fact and a reliance on it to curtail snap judgment.

In such an educated attitude of mind the "new world" would function on the coöperation urged for the 12,000,000 organized women in the United States by Mrs. Anna Steese Richardson of New York City, author and head of the Good Citizenship bureau of the Woman's Home Companion.

Mrs. Richardson Cites Individualism as Obstacle.

"United in a single objective they could work miracles," Mrs. Richardson said. "Perhaps the greatest obstacle in the pathway of our progress is individualism—individualism of groups and leaders."

Through coöperation with an improved mind the material results in the projected world would find expression in:

Equality of women, as urged by Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews of Washington, D. C., president of the National Association of Women Lawyers, and Mrs. Raymond S. Simons of the League of Women Voters, who debated the proposed equal rights amendment to the constitution. The debate, which showed the speakers well matched, was on method rather than goal.

Adult social security. This was treated by Mrs. Poole.

Speakers Recommend Some New Trends for Progress.

Improved employment for women, the theme of Dr. Mollie Ray Carroll, head resident of the University of Chicago settlement.

Increased public office as the reward for merit as stressed by Attorney Henry P. Chandler.

Improved radio, motion pictures, literature, and health education. These were the themes of the Rev. George McCarthy, Miss Dema Harshbarger, Mrs. Margaret Weymouth Jackson, and Dr. Charles Phifer.

Peace and democracy instead of Hitlerism. Prince Hubertus Friedrich Lowenstein spoke from the heart on this subject.

Conservation of natural resources, treated by E. W. Tinker, regional forester in Milwaukee.

An industrial art that will span the gulf between the capacity to produce and the ability to consume, the major point made by George Meyercord, president of the Meyercord company.

The elimination of slum areas and general improved housing conditions in large cities. Ernest Grunsfeld Jr. spoke on this subject.

Dudley Crafts Watson Paints Ideal Home Life.

And a modern home in which dusting and marking school paprs would be the only drudgery. This was the Utopia drawn by Dudley Crafts Watson of the Art institute.

Dwelling upon this "new world," many clubwomen already are planning meetings on its various phases. A number of THE TRIBUNE Conference speakers were besieged, before they left the Palmer house, for speaking dates at meetings throughout the midwest.

In another few months plans will be under way for the third annual Conference on Current Problems in 1936.

REAPING THE HARVEST IN SCENIC COLOMBIA

The banana harvest in Colombia. This northernmost country of South America was once one of Spain's treasure troves. It is as large as Spain and Portugal combined, and, like California, it can boast of every climate under the sun. From tropic lowlands its three Andean ranges rise more than 17,000 feet, and the fruits and grains are of torrid, temperate, and Alpine regions.

Visitors Swarm Over Miami in Real Comeback

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—The business district of Miami is jammed, beaches are crowded, night clubs are filled, and money is flowing freely at the dog and horse race tracks. It's the biggest tourist season in this city of 150,000 population that has seen some big tourist seasons, just before the land boom deflation in 1925-'26 and just before the stock market crash of five years ago.

Miami has come back. It isn't like the days when land was selling for $10,000 a front foot and the race track was turning over a million dollars a day. But the crowds are here. The city is on its feet again after taking it on the chin in the land boom crash, the hurricanes of 1927 and 1929, and the prolonged depression.

Advertising Is Strong Factor in Comeback.

Local residents believe they are receiving even more of an improvement in its resort business than is Florida generally. The entire peninsula is receiving more vacation dollars this winter than in any year of the depression. There is a popular sentiment that the depression is ended.

Advertising is credited as an influential factor in this comeback. The community is thoroughly sold on the value of space in northern newspapers. A tax is levied for this promotional enterprise.

To understand the local picture one must go back to 1930, when Col. Henry L. Doherty, multimillionaire engineer, industrial utilities magnate and director in more than 100 corporations, decided to realize in Miami a new and surpassing ambition; when Joseph E. Widener, internationally known turfman, decided to create at Miami the most beautiful race track in the world; when Everest G. Sewell, 37 years resident and present mayor of Miami, embarked upon a program for civic development which, in Washington and in Latin American diplomatic circles, is regarded as one of the strongest bonds between the United States and Latin America ever proposed.

Doherty Takes Over Failing Hotels.

Col. Doherty began this work in 1930 by taking over Miami's white elephant, the Miami-Biltmore hotel, from his friend, the late John Bowman, who built it.

For five years the hotel had been run at a loss. Since 1926, operating on a three months' schedule calculated to get the cream of the winter vacationist influx to Miami, its magnificent salons, its rare patio swimming pool and encompassing golf links had been practically deserted. At the height of the 1930 season there were often no more than fifteen guests.

Col. Doherty's next move was to buy the Roney Plaza, another huge, failing proposition, from N. B. T. Roney, its owner, for one million dollars.

His third stroke was the purchase of a tract of land on Key Largo, a strategic resort location 60 miles south of Miami, for vacationists preferring the tranquility and variety of an island life, where he founded the Key Largo Angler's club.

Col. Doherty then dedicated himself to the job of starting Miami as an all year round resort. He founded "Florida Year Around clubs"—the Roney Plaza Cabana Sun club, the Miami-Biltmore Country club, and the Key Largo Angler's club. These three commanding units were linked together by a private transportation system: a cabin autogiro, the first ever built, and built to his special order, and a $100,000 fleet of light, streamlined trailers drawn by automobiles.

Spends Half Million in Papers and Magazines.

His next job was to bring the crowds back to Miami. His code, "to provide every facility, every convenience, for every type of vacationist; to provide in Miami anything and everything that would attract tourists," had led him, in 1930, to endless conferences with people from all quarters toward the improvement of facilities and amusements. He had enlarged his scope to include agriculture, climate, soils, hydrography.

Col. Doherty's advertising campaign for Miami began in 1931. More than half a million dollars was spent in display advertising in northern newspapers and magazines alone. His hotels and clubs were thrown open to visiting celebrities from all parts of the world, and to his friends in the financial, commercial, and diplomatic worlds. In 1932 he brought to Miami by a special train from Washington a group of Latin American ambassadors to develop and further the interests between the United States and Latin America. And in 1933 he presented Miami with its first horse show, now an annual five day event at the Tropical Park race track, and drawing entries from the United States cavalry and from many of the finest stables in America.

The season of 1933 was the most prosperous Miami had enjoyed since 1925. The city was coming back, and as a mark of their appreciation the business and newspaper men of Miami and Miami Beach voted March 10 "Doherty day."

As an indication of the success of the present season, the Miami-Biltmore hotel, once Miami's white elephant, opened for business on Oct. 27—three months earlier than ever before—and is scheduled to remain open until July 6—three months later than ever before. It's a season unprecedented in Miami's history.

Mayor Sewell Leads Recovery Drive.

Meantime, during these three hopeful years of recovery, a slight middle aged Miamian had been making trips to Washington with a brief case stuffed with plans, and to Wall street, where he consulted bankers for loans for reconstructing the city's finances, deepening the harbor and other improvements.

This man was Everest G. Sewell, now mayor of Miami. With a devotion to public interests rare in politics, he has for 30 years been the greatest advocate of advertising, publicity, and civic improvement Miami has ever known. He has always wanted more for Miami than has anybody else. He has always believed more than anybody else. And in the long run he has done perhaps more than anybody else.

During the lean years following the collapse of the Florida boom Mayor Sewell lent his efforts to reconstructing the city's finances, and when Col. Doherty came into town prepared to spend millions the mayor kept up the city's end by advocating a special advertising and publicity fund. Since coming into office for his second term in June, 1933, he has obtained a government appropriation og $3,311,000—the city having already spent $4,000,000—for deepening the channel to the ocean to thirty feet, thereby admitting the largest seagoing vessels. An additional fund of $140,000 will be used to deepen the ships' turning basin at the city docks.

Proposes Permanent Pan-American Exposition.

Furthermore, believing in Miami's future as the business center for improved trade relations between the United States and Latin America, Mayor Sewell has proposed a permanent Pan-American exposition, to be constructed on an island in Biscayne bay, now thirty acres in area, but to be increased to ninety acres by dredging and fill ins. This exposition, the plans and proposals for which are now before the public works committee in Washington, will, if constructed, offer free sites to exhibitors of both United States and Latin American countries, and enable importers and exporters of both countries to place orders to be filled by plane or steamer.

Widener Acts as His Own Architect.

A third share of the laurels for having brought Miami back to prosperity goes to Joseph E. Widener, wealthy Philadelphia art collector, philanthropist, and the dominating influence in thoroughbred horse racing in America. Mr. Widener was induced to come to Miami and to reorganize Florida racing according to his own standards of sportsmanship by Barclay H. Warburton, head of the organization that in 1929 bought the Miami Jocky club from Joe Smoot, who started horse racing in Miami in 1924, and who was the Miami Jocky club's first president.

In 1930, despite the fact that there was no promise of legalized pari-mutuel betting in Florida, Mr. Widener visualized the creation of Hialeah Park out of the existing Miami Jocky club track. And in 1931, financing 75 per cent of the $2,000,000 venture out of his own pocket, he began the construction of his dream.

He was largely his own architect, the experience of more than fifty years spent in studying the faults and virtues of the famous race tracks of the world in the light of their contributing to the development of the thoroughbred racing breed was employed.

Through Mr. Widener's influence, pari-mutuel betting was legalized in 1932, and upon the park's opening, the Florida racing commission checked a gate attendance of 13,138 and pari-mutuel receipts of $255,717. For the 1932 season the mutuels were $6,242,685; for the 1933 season, $8,381,643; for the 1933-'34 season, $11,692,599, an increase of 45.5 per cent.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

THE world is getting ready for the greatest organized travel movement in history. Bureaus sponsored by governments, territorial sections, municipalities, steamship lines, railroad associations, and hotel organizations are combining efforts to exploit their advantages and get in on the money.

From Turkey, Egypt, Jugo-Slavia, and Hungary westward special "tourist dollars," transit and hotel reductions, rebate visé charges, reduced customs, free admission to galleries, concerts, spas and baths, along with the welcoming amenities of officialdom, are being formulated. A notable instance is the program being mapped, with the encouragement of the French government, to bring the Americans back to Paris and the provinces.

● All this is set forth by Douglas Malcolm of the Travel Service in his March report on tourist tendencies. The whole industry is cheered, says Mr. Malcolm, by the return of early bookings for summer European travel.

In the cruise programs March holds record distinction by the large number of sailings to the Caribbean, West Indies, gulf ports, and South America. From Atlantic ports special and regular sailings number 109 for the month, as against 100 for February, exceeding by 23 the events of the corresponding month of last year. From European countries the same ports will receive seven additional cruises, giving the coastal Atlantic its greatest cruise calendar month and its largest number of visiting trans-Atlantic liners. The Mediterranean will be visited by eight cruises from America and six from Europe, with advance reservations averaging 25 per cent over March of 1934.

From Pacific coast points cruise schedules exceed by three the number of last March, with a substantial increase in advance bookings to Hawaii, South seas, and the orient.

● Egypt is preparing its first organized summer attractions, with special trains and reductions of fare to all points of interest. Britain, which entertained 28,082 more holiday visitors than last year, including 56,339 American tourists, will, through organized factors, increase its tourist appeals. Turkey, beginning this month, will embark on a five year tourist program with government aid. Hungary has announced a newly formed organization and will, beginning May 1, exploit its advantages.

Italy will start its first special "land cruise" train from London April 20, beginning the summer season of special trains, many scheduled over other countries' roads to Italy's points of interest, with rail reductions of 70 per cent. Germany's rail reductions of 60 per cent to foreign visitors will be accompanied by large special programs of events now being arranged. Scandinavia announces 72 special summer tourist lures, with accompanying reductions and excursion features. Poland is outlining its first great tourist program, with a view of capitalizing on its new steamship facilities. Canada is organizing to advertise its many nearby advantages on a larger scale.

American railroads are preparing summer programs to include the largest itineraries of "Seeing America First" ever scheduled by domestic transportation systems.

Mardi Gras Draws Chicago Throngs

NEW ORLEANS' Mardi Gras, which began Friday and will come to a close Tuesday, is attracting four times as many visitors from Chicago as it did last year. J. V. Lanigan, passenger trafic manager of the Illinois Central system, estimated yesterday that between 600 and 700 persons would go by special trains. This is in addition to the large number traveling by regular trains. Mr. Lanigan said that more than half the visitors would use sleeping cars instead of hotels during their stay in New Orleans.

Hotel New Yorker Takes Safety Prize

WILLIAM P. McFARLAND, Chicago representative of the Hotel New Yorker, received word yesterday that the hotel had been awarded first prize in the safety competition among the group of ten larger hostelries in New York for the last quarter of 1934. The actual award will be made at the national safety conference Tuesday. The contest was decided on a frequency and severity basis, with the contestants grouped according to the number of man hours worked.

Bons Vivants Go Flying by Proxy

SENIOR PILOT HARRY BITTERMAN of the United Air lines will take Chicago steamship and travel agents behind the scenes in modern aerial navigation tomorrow evening at the Hamilton club. The occasion is the monthly dinner of the Bons Vivants. The members will fly by proxy around the West Indies and South America in a Pan-American clipper ship, with the whole trip shown in motion pictures.

Chicagoan Has Swell Time Viewing Three Tragedies on the Japanese Stage.

By Mason Warner.

TOKIO.—Among the things they "do differcnt" in the orient is the selling of seats for the opening production of star actors in a first class theater. "First nighters" enjoy a discount of about 30 per cent from the regular prices. Perhaps they should be termed "first dayers," for the curtain is drawn to the side, not rolled up, at 2:20 in the afternoon, and the program is not concluded until 11:10 o'clock at night.

The Kabuki-za theater is a huge and handsome structure, an excellent example of architectural art limited to three stories in height. Restful lounges, dining rooms, tea rooms, smoking rooms, and well stocked tobacco shops are housed in the building with the theater. Mothers can check their children free at a well appointed nursery.

There are 200 men in the Kabuki company of players. There are no actresses in Japan. The actor's training begins at 3 or 4 years of age. Men play women's characters, and look and act more feminine than the women one sees on the street. They are not female impersonators, but actors who play any part they are assigned — a swashbuckling samurai warrior in one play and a simpering geisha girl in the next, all on the same program.

Three Plays and an Interlude.

The performance I saw consisted of three plays and an interlude, called "A Formal Address," a time honored ceremony of the Kabuki company, in which the young son of one of the stars made his first appearance, and the announcement was made that another of his sons had succeeded to the name of "Royen" and in the future would be billed under that name. Thirty leading actors were seated on the stage during the address, and the audience was asked to give its approval and support to the two promising young actors. Their reception was warm and friendly, if not enthusiastic.

The first play was a classical one in three acts and six scenes; the second was a tragedy in three acts and four scenes, and the third a romantic play in three acts and eight scenes. All dealt with medieval Japan under the shoguns.

The scenery was superb, surpassing that of many Broadway productions which have been press-agented to the skies. The stage is about 120 feet wide, and this width is extended by runways built along the theater walls on both sides, permitting spectacular entries and exits of soldiers, highwaymen, peasants, and similar groups coming from afar.

The settings were elaborate and the costumes beautiful and costly. The lighting effects were reminiscent of Belasco. Scenes were set on a revolving stage, and the whole performance moved briskly under capable stage management.

They Go for Sadness and Tragedy.

The Kabuki-za theater does not seat more than 1,800, with a top price of about $2.35 and a low gallery admission of less than 25 cents. The programs run only about four weeks, and I do not see how they manage to make the income exceed the expense. The scenery and costumes of the three plays I saw would permit billing in New York or Chicago as "a million dollar production" — and probably would cost from $200,000 to $300,000 in either American city.

An English libretto is furnished if requested, and I had no more difficulty in following the story of the play than I have at an Italian opera. The plots are all sad and tragic.

The tragedy presented the trials, troubles, and final peace experienced by a Japanese father. He was a famous painter, named Soun, attached to the court of the shogun, but he believed the reins of government should be restored to the emperor. His wife's family was on the side of the shogun. His only son was an attendant at the shogun's temple.

Though loyal to the mikado, Soun was under suspicion by other loyalists, who came to his studio to kill him. However, his earnest attitude toward the mikado's cause and his willingness to contribute the proceeds of the sale of his pictures to raise war funds saved his life, and they departed in peace.

But Soun's only son took the side of the shogun when the battle began between the armies of the shogun and the mikado. While fighting, the son awakened to the sanctity of the emperor, who never should be opposed. Soun's son stopped fighting and deserted from the shogun's army. His fellow soldiers then regarded him as a traitor and searched for him to take his life. Now he could neither change front nor remain as he was. At the end of his tether, he took his way out by the accepted way of the Japanese gentleman whose honor is tarnished. He committed suicide.

Women Have Many Good Weeps.

The libretto thus describes the final scene: "The painter, who has been taking his son's participation in the shogun's army to heart, is greatly satisfied when he receives word that the son killed himself out of self-accusation. His mind is serene after its secret pangs of these months."

Japanese women enjoy their theater. They had many good weeps during the plays, especially at a scene where one devoted heroine wife was beheaded by her husband in spite of her heartbreaking protests and pleas for mercy. She was accused of having insulted the chief retainer of the shogun by throwing dirt on his ceremonial dress in the confusion of a festival. To make the story more sad, after the husband takes her decapitated head [carried by the long hair] to the chief retainer, he learns his wife was not guilty of the charge against her. All he can do then is return to Yedo and resume the wayward life he led before his marriage.

I thoroughly enjoyed the nine hours at the theater; also the good Japanese dinner in one of the five restaurants in the theater building during the 6 o'clock intermission. Altogether it was something like going to see "A Strange Interlude" in the States.

The Japanese have a dramatic art of their own—different, strange, stately, formal, but still it is art, and I think good art.

Lively and Bustling After Dark.

I went for a stroll along the streets of Tokio. I walked and walked. Every step was interesting. Tokio after dark is lively, bustling. The streets are thronged with people, the shops are crowded, and business is brisk.

Many shops display multi-colored banner signs, narrow and long, hung perpendicularly. Their swaying and billowing adds movement to the scene. The streets are literally drenched with floods of red neon lights. Electric spectacular signs abound, and forked-lightning effect of the Japanese letters and characters give a particularly dazzling, glowing, glittering effect.

Ginza is the principal retail shopping street. The stores crowded with eager bargainers are supplemented by miles of booths lining the curb. All sorts of small merchandise are displayed—hosiery, jewelry, toys, clothing, household utensils, cutlery, rubber goods, toilet articles, cosmetics, foods—a bewildering, amazing "cash and carry" mart. The toys are in countless varieties. Many are new and ingenious, but they are made to sell cheap, and lasting quality is lacking. Durability is not the only quality missing in most of the merchandise offered. Japan is after the markets of the world on a low cost basis, and the home folks evidently have to put up with the same products that are shipped abroad.

No Idle Dreamers There.

The jostling crowds are smiling and pleasant faced, eager to see and be seen. There are no idle dreamers among them. Every one is interested in something, all alert of eye and keen of ear. Native costumes for men and women add color to the gay ensemble.

The Japanese are proud of the Tokio subway, but they hold their enthusiasm under control and give it only limited patronage. It runs now from Ginza to Asakusa, about four miles, and extensions are under way. It was started in 1924 and is owned and operated by a private corporation.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address querries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations, to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped.

Do the immigration laws make any distinction as to people on the basis of their place of birth, their relationship to others in the United States, their purpose in coming, and the period they intend to spend here?—G. M.

Yes, three wide distinctions. The law classifies aliens [1] nonimmigrants, [2] nonquota immigrants, [3] quota immigrants. All others not mentioned in these groups come within the quota. This is so because they intend to reside in the United States permanently and there is no special merit in their particular case that takes them out of the quota class.

What is the supposed location of the Fountain of Youth? C. L. M.

"STOP AND GO" SIGNS COMING ON CARIBBEAN?

THE day when there will be stop and go signs blazing signals to ocean liners in the Caribbean, with maritime trafic cops speeding about in police yachts, may not be far off if the present business keeps up. This winter there have been scores of steamers of all nations making regular cruises there and to Panama and South America.

Yesterday three large cruisers, the Cunard-White Star's Georgic and Carinthia and the Panama Pacific's Columbia, steamed out of New York harbor carrying large parties for the tropical waters.

Among the Chicagoans aboard the Columbia were Mr. L. E. Arnold, Miss Louise Kleppinger, and Miss Natalie Gould. On the Georgic were Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Giles and Mr. and Mrs. Marc Goldsmith.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. O'Kelly and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Meloy, all of Chicago, left New York Thursday on the Furness liner Nerissa for the Virgin Islands, Windward and Leeward Islands, and South America.

Among the middle westerners on the Italian liner Rex when it sailed for the Mediterranean Wednesday were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Cargill of Madison, Wis.; Mrs. Leona Kurth Moore and Miss Ethel Moore of Milwaukee, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Schwartz and G. J. Stansbury of Chicago.

Mrs. J. William Hudson, Mrs. J. Dorr Bradley, and William A. O'Grady, all of this city, were on the French liner Champlain when it set sail for Europe.

Caribbean Travel Heaviest in Years

PASSENGER travel over the United Fruit company's lines from New York and New Orleans in 1934 was the heaviest since 1929. January and February of this year also showed a decided improvement, and present advance bookings indicate that the spring and summer travel this year will be far heavier than last year's.

This was related last week by W. M. Penick, passenger trafic manager for the company. With H. C. Hicks and W. M. Gause, Mr. Penick was in Chicago for a conference with General Passenger Agent L. J. McCalley.

"Travelers now realize that cruises to the Caribbean and West Indies are no longer limited to winter travel, but are recognized as year-round vacations, with climatic conditions favorable at all times," he said. "That these trips appeal especially to Chicagoans is shown by the heavy bookings from this territory."

Baby Named for Saar.

BIELEFELD, Germany.—(AP)—A new Christian name, "Saarfried," has obtained official recognition. On the day of the Saar plebiscite a boy was born here to parents who, out of sheer patriotic joy, named the baby "Saarfried." The official registrar raised no objection.

"FUN MAKER" IN DOLDRUMS

"Fun Maker," by Walter Krawiec, to be seen in the Chicago Artists and Vicinity exhibition current until March 10 in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. This particular "Fun Maker" seems to be taking time out for private troubles.

Critic Clarifies Her Position on Institute Show

Summarizes Both Praise and Criticism of Chicago Artists' Exhibit.

By Eleanor Jewett.

A READER sends in a note that is rather pertinent. She writes: "I do not want to be impolite or critical, but would you kindly answer in next Sunday's TRIBUNE this question? Why did you change your opinion of the art exhibit that is now on view at the Art institute? The first Sunday you wrote on it there were hardly enough favorable adjectives to express your appreciation; after a week's lapse you wrote again and this time that same show 'lacks the touch of genius, offers no commanding canvas, etc., etc.' Will you please tell us why the change of heart?" Signed MARIE L. HARRIS.

The Chicago Artists and Vicinity exhibition is, obviously, the one to which Miss Harris refers. The first story was written after a preview of the show; the second after several deliberate inspections. There are a number of people who credit me with a natural passion for destructive criticism of any enterprise centering in the Art institute. The contrary is true. From preference nothing but approbation would flood this column from week to week. Each exhibition is anticipated eagerly in the hope that this time there will be something shown about which an honest enthusiasm can let loose torrents of laudatory adjectives. The character of the Art institute exhibits through the last decade has been decidedly modern. There has been more than a tendency to promote the bizarre in painting and sculpture at the cost of the sincere.

This Year's Show Refreshing Change from 1934's.

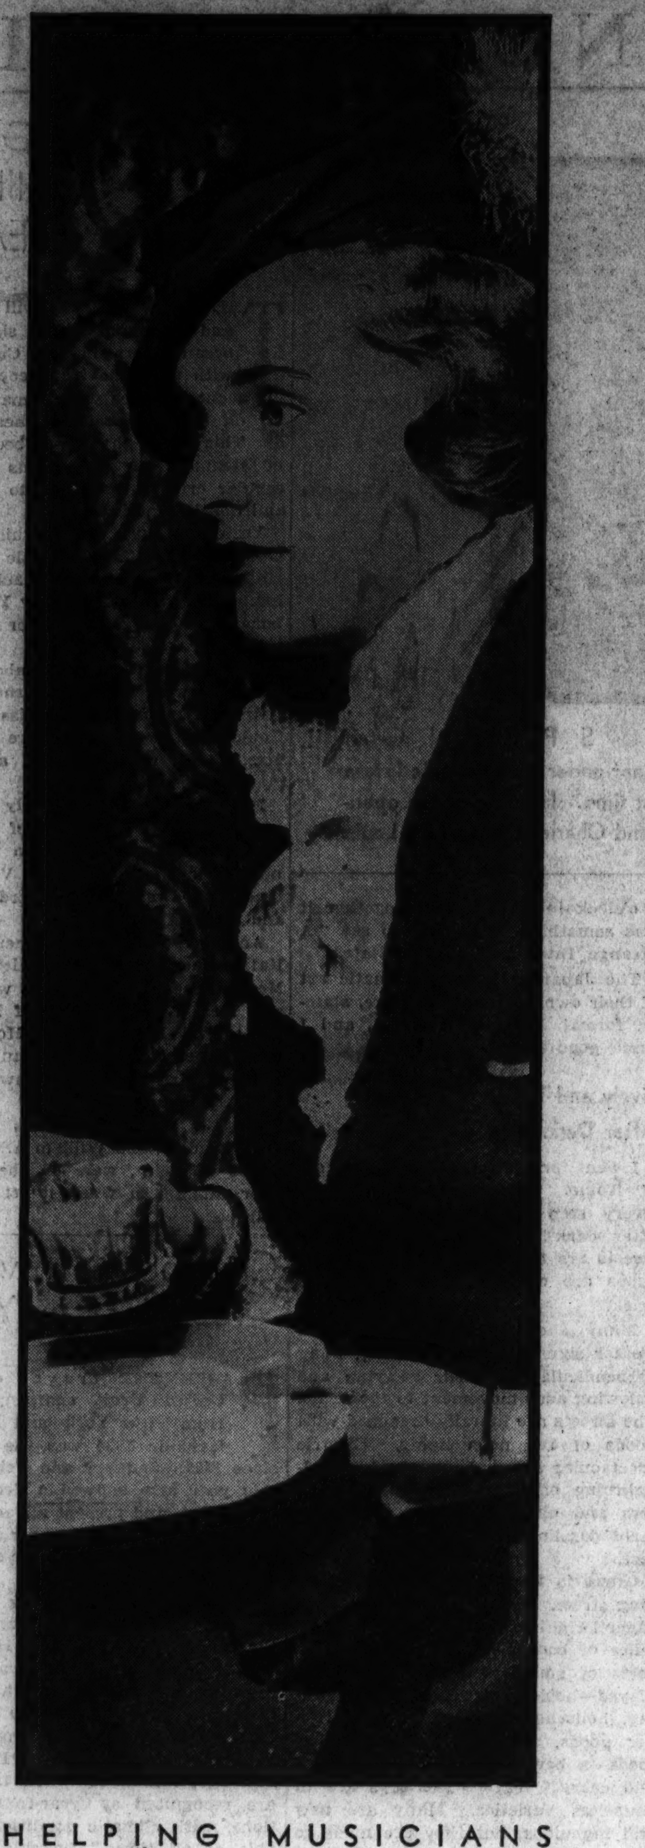
The path of the Art institute has not been entirely strewn with roses. It has met with opposition. Last year the Chicago Artists exhibit raised the greatest storm of disapproval in the history of the show. This year great pains were taken to improve the quality of the pictures. The effort succeeded and it is a much better exhibit than that of 1934. A first walk through the galleries is a delight. There are color and humor and craftsmanship exploited to some degree in every room. Enough good paintings have been admitted to swing a favorable balance in a quick summary. After a more careful inspection one realizes that the merit of the show lies with the presence there of some twenty canvases. It also lies in the gay color scheme of the less important paintings and in the delicacy and beauty of the sculpture.

Abusing exhibitions is not entirely amusing. One would much prefer to find exhibits inspiring and thrilling. There is more joy in one fine piece of art than in a hundred mediocre. Modern art has run itself into such a rut that the average exhibit of modernists is known by rote even before one sees the show. Color and drawing are invariably bad, and the significance of the composition is usually banal or degenerate.

"American Scene" Covers a Multitude of Artistic Sins.

A pet phrase has sprung up within the year: "The American Scene." It has no more to do with good art than the other terms which preceded it had. What did Winslow Homer or George Inness or Twachtman or Chase or any of our artists paint but the "American Scene"? It did not need capital letters to lift it from obscurity. Today those capital letters and that emphasis are sheltering the unpracticed arttists who two years ago were protected in no matter what miserable work they turned out by the cabalistic defenses of modernism.

Is the letter answered? If not, in short, the answer is here. The current Chicago Artists show is better than that of last year because of the presence of a number of beautiful and balanced canvases. Subtract them and substitute some of the modern rejected and you would have as discouraging an exhibit as last year's. In spite of the favorable impression made by the presence of the good work, there is no great painting in the exhibit.



HELPING MUSICIANS

Mrs. Philip Pillsbury, who came to Chicago from Minneapolis as a bride last fall, is actively interested in the Bohemians. She already has made plans to be at Orchestra hall the evening of March 8, when the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe will open another engagement. The opening night will benefit the Bohemians.

ART NOTES

The Municipal Art league has announced the ten paintings from which one will be selected by postcard ballot to receive its purchase prize in the current Chicago Artists exhibition. The paintings are "Spring" by Karl C. Brandner, "Mexican Market" by Charles P. Killgore, "Still Life" by Joseph Lane, "The End of the Hunt" by Dale Nichols, "Mornin' You All" by Holger W. Jensen, "Still Life" by Leslie Binner, "South of Polk Street" by Marshall D. Smith, "Summer Storm" by Frances Foy, "Fun Maker" by Walter Krawiec, and "Old Ed, Lumberjack" by Elmer A. Forsberg.

The Municipal Art league in 1901 voted to establish a municipal art collection to be formed of works by artists who are or have been active in the artistic life of Chicago, the object being the encouragement of works of art worthy to be in a public gallery. For this collection a prize purchase is made each year from a special picture fund to which contributions are made annually by the clubs affiliated with the league.

An interesting exhibition opened last Tuesday in the Chicago galleries, 220 North Michigan avenue. Landscapes by Frank C. Peyraud, portraits and figure studies by Elizabeth K. Peyraud, landscapes with figures—work and play 'round Grand Detour—by John T. Nolf, and the Chicago scene in water color by Arnold Turtle make up this unusually diversified and excellent exhibit.

The Hoosier Art gallery, 211 West Wacker drive, opened last Tuesday an exhibition of figure compositions and landscapes in oil by Ruthven Byrum and water colors by Esther Ruble Richardson. The exhibition will continue through March 16.

The Art Students' league of the Art institute school is holding an exhibition of work by members in the school lobby. About forty works are on display. They include oils, water colors, drawings, pastels, and tempera.

Elmer E. Forsberg, an instructor in the Art institute school, has a oneman show of portraits and landscapes in the Interfraternity club, 106 South Wabash avenue.

Chinese robes with exquisite embroidery have been placed on view in Gallery H-9 of the Art institute. They are unique and well worth seeing.

A brilliant exhibition opens today to continue through the first two weeks of March at the Shawnee Country club, Wilmette. Karl Plath is showing some twenty paintings of birds and Edgar Forkner offers water colors of flowers.

Water colors and drawings by D. Penner Gelb are on view at the Chicago Woman's aid to March 18.

The Jewish artists of Chicago under the auspices of "Around the Palette" are having an exhibit of recent works at the Sholem Aleichem Folk institute, 1214 North Washtenaw avenue, to March 8.

Noblewoman's Heirs Battle Spiritualists Over Great Estate

LONDON

Spiritualists are much stirred over the death of Lady Caillard, the rich and eccentric widow of the late Sir Vincent Caillard, diplomat and banker. Their interest is partly due to the elaborate arrangements which Lady Caillard had made for communicating with them from "the other shore" and partly because Lady Caillard's children are making a determined effort to upset her arrangements for leaving a substantial part of her great estate to the Society of Progressive Souls, which she had founded.

Lady Caillard was an extremely wealthy woman. Her first husband, Oakley Maund, left her a large fortune, and her second husband, Sir Vincent, who died in 1930, left her another. By her first marriage she had a son and a daughter, but she became estranged from them after she plunged into spiritualism and forbade them her house, which she had converted into the headquarters for her society.

The well known American spiritualist, Arthur A. Ford, seems to agree with the children that Lady Caillard was being imposed upon in the séances which she held. "On Lady Caillard's invitation, I sat in five different séances," he says, "and from the beginning I had reason to be suspicious of the phenomena."

One of Lady Caillard's favorites was that tuneful red Indian Os-Ke-Non-Ton, who sang the anthem "There Is No Death" at her funeral this week. However, there is no suggestion that Os-Ke-Non-Ton claimed exceptional phychic powers, though he appears to have frequented the séances.

At any rate, the case promises to be highly picturesque. It should give some bewigged judge some hard nuts to crack.

When Chicago Was Young

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

By Herma Clark.

Chicago, July 16, 1885.

DEAR JULIA: We have had rather an anxious week, as Martha Junior developed some symptoms that troubled us. It is strange that Sandy, so calm and collected when he is attending a patient outside his own family, is quite nervous when any one of us is ill. But I have heard of this of other doctors.

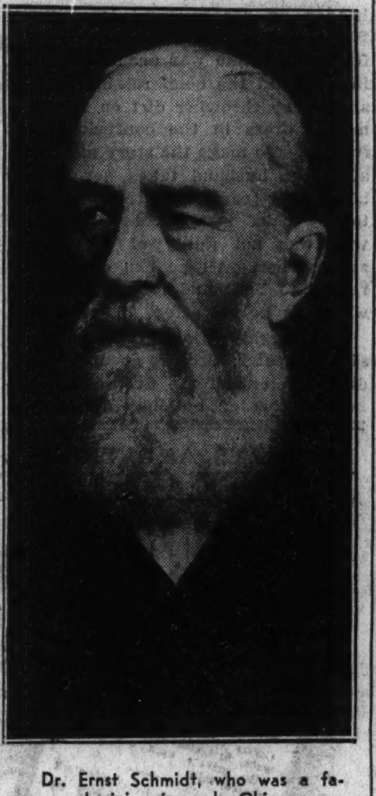
He asked Dr. Ernst Schmidt to come in to see Martha this evening, and I could just see how relieved he was to have this great Chicago physician there. Dr. Schmidt is a comforting sort of person and we were all glad to see him. His German thoroughness and his training in the best hospitals of Europe give one great confidence in him.

Dr. Schmidt reassured Sandy, telling him that Martha was progressing nicely and commending Sandy's treatment of the case. So we breathe more freely tonight. He walked over to Rush street with us when we left and sat smoking with Will in the library a while before going to his home. The two men enjoyed reminiscing about civil war days, and Dr. Schmidt told us of some strange cases he had seen during his service in the Union army when he was a surgeon in a Missouri regiment.

What an eventful life he has had . . . this man of 55! He was born in Bavaria, he told us, in 1830, and so was a youth of 18 when the German revolution broke out, but he took part in it with the zeal of youth. He studied in the Universities of Zurich, Heidelberg, and Wurzburg, graduating from Wurzburg in 1852. Then he took a post-graduate course in medicine in Vienna and Prague, after which he was appointed an assistant surgeon in the hospital of the University of Wurzburg. So you see what a training he has had and why his opinion has such weight with us. When he came to Chicago in 1857, he told us, he found many of his German friends here and organized the German Medical society. After three years here he received an appointment at Humboldt Medical college in St. Louis, but in a few months the civil war came on and he entered the Union army as a surgeon.

Since 1864 he has been in Chicago and has been held in high esteem as one of our leading medical men. For years he has been on the staf of the Alexian Brothers hospital, and he organized the staf of Michael Reese hospital, our fine Jewish institution.

Will told me after he left what a fine classical scholar the doctor is . . . that he is fluent in Latin conversation and that translating Aeschylus is just child's play to him. His young son Otto is a doctor, too, and Sandy thinks he is much like his father.



Dr. Ernst Schmidt, who was a famous physician in early Chicago.

Now I'll stop for tonight, but won't close my letter, for I want to tell you how Martha seems in the morning.

Gen. Grant is fighting bravely for his life at Mount McGregor. A losing battle, I fear. Love from

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Post script—Noon, next day: Will is just starting for the telegraph office to send you our good news. Little Julia Boyd Macleod came to town at 3 o'clock this morning . . . a beautiful little creature, weighing seven pounds. We are so thankful that all is well with Martha and the baby.

FOOTNOTES.

Dr. Ernst Schmidt, mentioned by Martha as a prominent physician of the '80s, was the father of Dr. Otto L. Schmidt, Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, and Richard E. Schmidt. Frederick M. Schmidt, another son, died in 1918. Dr. Otto L. Schmidt has devoted much time to the interests of the Chicago Historical society, acting as its president for a number of years.

Several readers have sent in names of Chicago high schools alluded to in this column. The first was Wendell Phillips, the second Carl Schurz. Here is a third:

A Chicago high school is named for him—American naval officer, born in Tennessee 1801. Died 1870. During the civil war commanded the Union naval forces which captured New Orleans and Mobile. Who was he?

Two Astor street friends of the column send us "Henry Ward Beecher's Paradise Catechism." We have not space for the entire list of questions, but you might puzzle over this one:

"How did Adam introduce himself to Eve?" [The answer reads the same backward and forward].

A new discovery in hand lotions VELURE HELPS NATURE!

Velure, the new hand lotion, works in an entirely new way. It immediately softens the outer skin, of course. But it does more. It is quickly absorbed to the underskin where it protects and aids Nature's own oil cells and thus restores the normal flow of natural softening oils to the outer skin. Velure leaves no thick, sticky coating, no artificial veneer.

Scientists know that Nature does the real softening job. Tiny oil cells in the underskin produce oils which keep the outer skin soft. But nature needs help. And Velure, the new hand lotion, gives her just the help she needs.

Natural, refreshing softness comes to hands that use Velure. This remarkable new hand lotion goes into the skin quickly and leaves no "tight" or sticky after-feeling as ordinary lotions do. And it's very economical. Use just two drops on the back of each hand after housework, exposure to cold, or washing.

Velure is orchid in color, delicately scented. The Velure bottle is an authentic copy of an Early American hand blown bottle. Made so you can shake out only one drop at a time.

The fairest flowers of England know only 3 beauty charms

Queen Alexandra's Day—celebrated in London by debutantes whose petal-perfect skins outrival her flower, the wild rose

OLD TRADITIONS—young complexions! One of England's gay spring fête days finds them in dazzling contrast from Piccadilly to the Mall. Flower-faces, exquisite as the wild-rose petals. One can scarcely tell the buds from the flowers they present to one—or from their freshly youthful, radiant chaperones!

Have they then some alchemy of beauty, these English-women . . . some secret of climate or nurture to keep them always young and fair? Perhaps the answer lies rather in one of their most cherished traditions . . . the use of Yardley's three complexion guardians for their skins.

Exquisite cleanliness is their first important secret; Yardley's Soap their first complexion aid. No speck of modern grime or marring impurity is allowed to linger. (It's a soap so gentle, during the urban season, London women do not hesitate to use it several times a day!)

But travel, keen sport, late hours take toll of freshness also. And modern skins need softening, whitening, lubricating care. Yardley's snowy English Complexion Cream guards the modern English élégante against tiny lines and aging, insidious dryness always!

It's used again beneath her Yardley Powder—and until you've used that you can't imagine what an aid a powder can be. It's so freshly, delicately blended it spreads an imperceptible, lasting veil of radiance—really protective against skin's bitterest enemies.

If your skin is weary of heavier, costlier beauty rituals, why not try this simple English recipe?

For now Yardley has placed these exquisite products in America at your own shopping center (with rouge, lasting lipsticks, bath salts, powder and even compacts to complete your toilet)! Find them and know what charming sophistication lies in the beauty art of perfect simplicity.

Yardley & Co., Ltd., 620 Fifth Avenue (Rockefeller Center), New York City; 33, Old Bond Street, London; and also in Paris, Toronto, and Sydney.

Yardley's English Lavender Powder* — An exquisite cosmetic experience in 7 shades, including English Peach (with a delicate glow) and Gipsy (a radiant sun-tan shade unlike all others), $1.10 a box. Yardley's English Complexion Cream, in the Wedgewood-shape container, $1.10. Yardley's English Lavender Soap, 35c a tablet ($1 for a box of 3). Yardley's Cream Rouge, 85c a jar. Yardley's new Indelible Lipstick, $1.10. Yardley's new Triple Compact, with one lipstick, $3.30 (loose powder style, $3.60); with two lipsticks for day and evening, $3.95 (loose powder style, $4.25). Yardley's English Lavender itself, the subtle perfume closest to the hearts of women who know the uses of charm in dealing with an agreeably masculine world, in smart containers priced from $1.10 to $13.20.
